VICTORIA THE GOOD.

Imperial Mother! Victoria the Good!
Majestic Heart! Earth's Greatest Sovereign!
Consummate now thy great and glorious reign.
Consummate now thy great and glorious reign.

Thy throne was not of granite or of gold,
Nor wrought by genius rare and skilful arts;
Thy loving subjects, hundred million-fold,
Declare it was constructed of their hearts.

Peace and prosperity, throughout thy realm,
Didst thou promote for more than sixty years;
Guided the Ship of State with steady helm,
Thou saved every and vanquished fears.

Fair Liberty, thy sister Empress-Queen,
Hath ever proudly sat enthroned with thee;
Thy banners clean her radiant wings have been,
To spread the noble message of the free.

Thy heart beats, full of love and tenderness,
Thine Empire heard with ever quickening ear.
Thy steadfast courage made each Briton bless
Thy fearless justice and thy pitying tear.

Exalted One! Pure Messenger of God!
Thy lessons manifold will long enroll!
Mankind is richer for thy footsteps trod,
And future ages will thy name extol.

Imperial Mother! Victoria the Good!
Majestic Heart! Earth's Greatest Sovereign!
Consummate now thy great and glorious reign
Consummate now thy great and glorious reign

SATURDAY'S PAGEANT

It Will Surpass the Jubilee in Solemne Magnificent.

A PUBLIC HOLIDAY IN CANADA.

Naval Pageant Will Exceed in Grandeur Any Ever Before Held—In London There Will Be a General Suspension of Business—Service at Windsor—Royal Borough Draped.

Cowes, Isle of Wight, Jan. 31.—King Edward arrived here soon after 4 o'clock yesterday. Count Von Eulenburg, representing the German court marshal, accompanied him. A large crowd of spectators was present.

The construction of the mortuary, chapel on the quarter deck of the royal yacht Alberta, proceeded yesterday.

The gray clouds and heavy seas of the past week or so gave way to a blue sky and smooth water.

PROCESSION FROM COWES.

Warships are Assembling For the Greatest Naval Review Ever Held.

Portsmouth, Jan. 31.—The warships are assembling for Friday's naval pageant. The arrangements, which are now completed, provide that eight torpedo boat destroyers will lead the procession from Cowes, followed by the royal yacht Alberta with the Queen's body on board. The royal yacht Osborne and Albert, with King Edward and Queen Alexandra and the Kaiser, will follow; the royal yacht Osborne, with other royalties, and the imperial yacht Hohenzollern, with Emperor William, the Duke and Duchess of Connaught and other Admiralty yachts, follow. Princess and a Trinity House yacht will be the last yachts on board.

The main squadron of battleships and cruisers will be moored two and a half miles from the shore, extending from Cowes to Spithead. The chosen fleet, under the command of Rear-Admiral Sir Harry Holdsworth Rawson, will form the eastern purview and the western fleet, under Rear-Admiral Sir Gerard Henry Noel, will form the western purview. The foreign war vessels are to be moored southwest of the British ships, in the order of their arrival, and alongside of them will be moored eight British gunboats, the Antelope, Pelorus, Sylph, Leda, Rattlesnake, Alert, Circe and Speedwell.

After leaving Trinity pier, the Alberta will be the slowest moving vessel, will steam along the deep channel between the west end of the Isle of Wight and the single line of battleship and cruisers. The main line will be as follows, beginning at Cowes: Alexandra, Camperdown, Rodney, Benbow, Howe, Collingwood, Hood, Anson, Nile, Howe, Melampus, Severn, Galatea, Medina, Factorian, Pelorus, Iris, Cossack, Arrogant, Minerva, Niobe, Hermione, Trafalgar, Resolution, Jupiter, Hannibal, Mars, Prince George and Majestic.

Minute guns will be fired by all the ships in the Solent, and at Cowes, commencing the moment Alberta leaves the pier. Each ship will be directed to cease firing immediately after the tail of the procession has passed her. After the procession has passed the Majestic, the forts and ships in Portsmouth harbor will commence firing minute guns. And continue firing until the Alberta is alongside the royal yacht. Minute guns will be played and Union Jacks will be at half-mast. The bands are to play the funeral marches of Chopin and Beethoven only. No national anthem will be played.

On the approach of the procession, the ships in the line will man yards, guards and bands will be paraded. The officers will wear full dress and the men "full rig" and "ceremonial."

The guards will present arms as the Alberta passes each ship, and then rest on their arms reversed until the procession is abreast the attachment of marines and the Admiral's flagship, which will be on board Nelson, when the guard will stand fast in Portsmouth harbor.

All the sea forts and dockyards will be manned by marines and sailors, while Barrow Island is to be manned by boys from the training ship St. Vincent, and men from the gunnery ship Excellent.

The Spanish battleship Pelayo, Spain's representative at the funeral, is commanded by Capt. Diaz Moren. Japan was represented by the cruiser Chiyoda, which was lost in the battle of Pantiago.

ALL BUSINESS SUSPENDED.

His Majesty President of Privy Council and Signed the Proclamation.

London, Jan. 31.—Shortly yesterday morning King Edward presided in a meeting of the Privy Council. The business transacted was of a formal character. The King signed a proclamation ordaining that on Saturday throughout the United Kingdom, the hours of work will be so curtailed that crops the Exchanges and schools will be shut up for four or five hours in the middle of the day.

Some of the afternoon papers will not be published Saturday.

The funeral in London, as indicated by the War Office orders, is used less morning and more for military pageant. Detachments of 40 regiments will be almost equal number of distinctive uniforms, embracing all arms of the service, will make a most gaudy changing picture. The uniforms of all the great armies of the world will participate in addition to the brilliant entourages of the various royal and princely envoys, there will be the military attaches of the embassies and legations.

All the field marshals of the British army will be present in full dress and will ride with their staffs. The naval corps will also take part in the procession, which will be a mile and a half long.

The War Office directs that Beethoven's and Chopin's funeral marches only shall be played. From the time the coffin reaches London until the departure guns will boom slowly in Hyde Park.

Lawyers are now awaiting with the full proportion of the obsequies, and the result of days of mourning, which, to numerous traditions and others, means absolute closure, and to some, considerable loss, will begin to stop every industry in the United Kingdom and to cover the streets, as the streets, with millions hoping to concentrate along the two miles of the route of the procession, is an undertaking which has begun to be fully appreciated by the public, but the public of London is dismayed to find that all the great streets, Piccadilly, Strand, Cheapside and others, are to be almost entirely occupied, or supplied, are to be absolutely closed until the end of the week. The railways of the United Kingdom will reduce their arrangements to the Sunday schedule, and their arrangements to the Sunday schedules. Restaurants and bars will be shut, and the crowds will have to wander in the streets, without food, and will be driven from hand to mouth, and the closing of the accustomed avenues for the sale and distribution of food, drink and amusement from Friday to Monday will mean a loss and inconvenience that no American city could appreciate.

Newspapers are protesting against the lack of arrangements for the press in London and Windsor, while householders along the route were asking a year's rent last evening for single windows.

BOUND BY THE RIBBON

The German Alliance With Britain Again Strengthened.

THE GARTER FOR CROWN PRINCE

Frederick William Invested With the Order at Osborne—King Edward's Touching Words of Thanks to Emperor William—Has Ordered Saturday As a Day of General Mourning.

Cowes, Isle of Wight, Jan. 28.—The Crown Prince of Germany, Frederick William, was invested with the Order of the Garter this morning by King Edward VII. The investiture occurred in the Council Chamber of Osborne House. It was a brilliant function. The high officers of the household, military and civil functions, the Knights of the Garter, and others, including a party from the Imperial yacht Hohenzollern, were present in full uniform. While the Crown Prince knelt before the King to receive the insignia, His Majesty addressed a few cordial words to the Prince, and then, turning to Emperor William, in a loud voice, he thanked him for his visit at this time of sorrow and expressed his joy and delight on the personal and other ties which bind the two countries of Germany and Great Britain.

It is well known Emperor William will attend the Order of the Red Eagle on Prince Arthur's birthday, the son of the Duke of Connaught.

IMPRESSIVE CEREMONY.

Proclamation of King Edward VII. in Old City of Windsor.

London, Jan. 28.—The ceremony of proclaiming King Edward VII. as King of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and Emperor of India continues in all corners of the Kingdom.

An impressive function took place in the Royal Borough of Windsor today. Thousands witnessed the historic proceedings. The spot where the proclamation was made the base of the Queen's statue on Castle Hill. The weather was good as it dawned and the sound of trumpets and cheers for His Majesty, King of the Realm, was a prominent part, and closed the ceremony.

The Route Extended.

London, Jan. 29.—In order to give Londoners a full opportunity to witness the funeral procession, it has been decided to extend the route, which is now fixed to pass Buckingham Palace, then St. James' Park, and past St. James' Palace to Piccadilly, then along Piccadilly to Hyde Park, through the Hyde Park, emerging at the Marble Arch, then along Edgeware-road to Finchley-road, Hampstead, to the length of the route originally thought, and will occupy fully two hours. The Mall and Constitution Hill at Windsor has been extended to include High-street, Park-street and Long Walk before entering the castle.

DAY OF MOURNING.

Saturday, Feb. 2, Ordered by the King.

The Funeral Arrangements Progressing—Route of Procession Lengthened.

London, Jan. 29.—It was officially announced late last evening that King Edward has ordered Saturday to be observed as a day of general mourning. All the banks will be closed and business suspended.

The arrangements for the funeral have been only partially determined. It is generally understood that he is provisional, and subject to the approval of the King, who will come to London today, to look over what has been Proposed, and to give his decision.

By order of the King, the Office of Works has given that all draperies displayed by citizens shall be of purple.

The procession from St. George's Chapel, at Windsor, to Frogmore, will be abandoned, and the cortege will remain in the chapel until the royal party, including the Kaiser, will probably be Monday.

Prince Arthur has commanded Count Von Wedel, Master of Horse, to bring six of His Majesty's charger from Windsor to Frogmore, for the Crown Prince and the other Germans who will attendance at the funeral will ride in the procession.

The gun carriage to be used at Cowes and Windsor and in London is to be painted the color of khaki and fitted with rubber tires.

King Edward has commanded Mr. Ellis to paint the well-known effigy of Black and White, to draw the King-drawn carriage.

The King and Queen, with the Princes, will attend the memorial service in St. George's Chapel, Windsor, on Sunday.

According to the present arrangements the United States is the only country which will be specially represented at the funeral of Queen Victoria. The United States Embassy has received no instructions so far, and it is supposed that only United States Ambassador Choate and his staff will be present.

A supplement of the Gazette yesterday afternoon announces that it is not deemed right that the public wear deep mourning after March 6, but that half-mourning should be worn until April 17.

There has been a strong outcry against the proposal to wear mourning at a prolonged period of mourning. Many Londoners regarded it as a mockery with dismay, and widespread injury to the retailers of goods trade, in many cases actual ruin, was anticipated.

Practically all business will be suspended Saturday, and Monday is not open, except in the poorer quarters.

The route of the funeral procession will be covered with black and purple throughout, the latter color predominating the coffin will be drawn by six horses, the same number that was used by the late Queen at the Diamond Jubilee, and the same harness will be used, covered with trappings. The outermost casket was sent to Osborne last night. The silver and brass inscription plates bear in old English letters the names and titles of Her Late Majesty.

The Procession at Cowes.

Cowes, Isle of Wight, Jan. 29.—The funeral procession will leave Osborne House Friday at 2 p.m. The route to the pier will be lined with troops, and the royal personages will follow the coffin on foot.

An order issued by Admiral Sir Charles Frederick Hotham shows that 38 British vessels will take part in the naval display.

Services at Washington.

Washington, Jan. 28.—It has been decided that Mr. Choate should pay his condolences. His old credentials accredited him to the Queen. He will now be accredited as United States Ambassador to the King, his formal commission being signed by the Queen. It has been decided that the funeral service in memory of the Queen should take place here in St. John's Episcopal Church, Feb. 2, coincident with the services in England, Bishop Satterlee, Rev. McKay-Smith, rector of St. John's, and Rev. Dr. McKimm, rector of Epiphany Church, participating. Lord and Lady Pauncefote are attendants at St. John's Church.

Secretary Hay has charged Ambassador Choate to represent the Government of the United States.

MILITARY OBSERVANCE.

In Canada Permanent and Local Corps Are to Attend Church—Feb. 2 Not a Public Holiday.

Ottawa, Jan. 31.—Lord Minto and General O'Grady-Haly have practically perfected arrangements for the military observance in Canada of the Queen's state funeral. At every militia district the permanent corps will parade and march to the church where the appointed State service is to be held. The local militia in each case will be asked to cooperate therewith. Each procession will move off at 12 noon, and as it starts the firing of 101 minute guns will begin.

The Ti. C. C. of the various military districts will be instructed to invite church parades of the brigades under their command for whatever day the local memorial service will be held, and the commanding officers of detached battalions will be invited to parade on the day fixed for the memorial services in their towns or villages.

There will, however, be no general order for any military church parade, the commanding officers on the occasion of her late Majesty's funeral, but the invitation to hold a church parade on this occasion almost amounts to an order, and will effective in every case be complied with.

SETTLED BY PROCLAMATION.

Government Has Acceded to the Bankers' Request and Declared Saturday a Public Holiday.

Ottawa, Jan. 31.—The Bankers' Association having expressed a desire that Saturday may be proclaimed a holiday, in order that the banks may be closed on that day, the Government have acquiesced in the request, and will issue a proclamation declaring Saturday a public holiday. The banks in England will be closed on that day, and the New York Stock Exchange has also resolved to suspend business Feb. 2.

An Extra Canada Gazette.

Ottawa, Jan. 31.—An extra of the Canada Gazette was issued this afternoon containing a cable from Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, stating that the remains of the late Her Late Majesty the Queen lasts until Jan. 24, 1902.

The public will wear deep mourning until March 6, next, and half mourning until April 17.

In consequence of this intelligence there will be no parade at Government House until after Jan. 24, 1902, but the Governor-General asks all persons to join in the general mourning.

ALL WINDSOR DRAPED.

The Services Will Be the Ordinary One With Special Music.

Windsor, Jan. 31.—Rehearsals of the elaborate funeral of the obsequies are recurring constantly. The Princess of the whole of the royal borough will be shown in mourning, whereas, elsewhere, only the route of the procession will be so adorned.

The service in St. George's Chapel will begin at 3 o'clock. The Queen is expected to arrive at Windsor at 4 o'clock, and proceed to the chapel, which occupies half an hour, will be lined by troops two deep, the Household Cavalry being mixed with the Guards.

The service will be the ordinary service used for the burial of the royal family, and the Dean of Windsor will sing from the altar steps, while where the Garter King at Arms will announce the decease of the sovereign and all her rights and titles.

Accommodation has been reserved on the Long Walk for the funeral procession. The King and other crowned heads will walk at its head. The service Saturday will be conducted by the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Bishop of Winchester and the Dean of Windsor. The Archbishop of York will also be present, but will not be present. The interment Monday will be conducted by the Bishop of Winchester and the Dean of Windsor.

By the Queen's Explicit Order.

London, Jan. 31.—"Queen's Victoria's explicit directions as to her funeral were written in 1862," says the Times, "and have not been altered in any material respect. It was her wish that the ceremonial should copy that of Prince Albert's burial, so far as practicable. The Queen will be the first English sovereign who will not be buried at night and by torchlight.

Punch will commemorate the occasion by not printing any joke in its current issue. It will publish, instead, selections from past cartoons dealing with the story of the Queen's reign, in addition to a new one having special reference to her death.

THE FACE BEHIND THE MASK

A ROMANCE.

CHAPTER XIII.

Probably not one of you, my dear friends, who glance carelessly over this, was ever shut up to a dungeon under expectation of hearing the unpleasant operation of decapitation within half an hour. It never happened to myself either, that I can recollect, and of course, you of personally can form no idea what the sensation may be like, but in this particular case, fortunate as Sir Norman Kingsley's state of mind was decidedly depressed. As he paced door shut violently, he leaned against it, and listened to his jailers place the great bars in their sockets, and felt he was shut in, in the dreariness, darkness, dismalness, hopelessness of place that ever had been his misfortune to enter. His thoughts of Leoline, and reflected that in all probability she had passed into the sleep of the just—perhaps dreaming of him, and little knowing that his head was to be cut off in half an hour.

In the course of time, morning would come—it was not likely the ordinary course would be cut off because he was, and Leoline would get up and dress herself, and, looking a thousand times prettier than ever, stand at the window and wait for him, and he might wait—much good would it do her, about that time he would probably be where? It was a rather uncomfortable, and unnerving, not easily unnerved, and depressed him to a very despondent degree indeed.

He thought of Ormiston and La Masque—no doubt they were billing and cooing in more approved fashion then, and never thinking of him; thought, that if for La Masque and his own folly, he might have been half married by this time. He thought of Count L'Estrange and Master Hubert, and found himself convinced, if one did not find Leoline, the other would, and, each being equally bad, it was a matter of angry wonder to her.

He thought of Queen Miranda, and of the adage, "Put no trust in princes," and had plenty of time to reflect—of what a bad sign of human nature it was—more particularly and based some human nature—human nature, figuratively speaking, put him on the rack one moment, and kick him on the scaffold the next. He thought, decidedly, what a fool he was to ever have come back; or even, having come back, not to have taken greater pains to stay up aloft, instead of pitching abruptly head foremost into such a sea of trouble without any invitation. He thought, too, what a cold, damp chamber they had lodged him in, and how apt he would be to have a bad attack of ague and rheumatic fever, if they would only let him live long enough to escape from these dungeons. And this having brought him to the end of his pathetic cogitations, he began to reflect how he could best amuse himself in the interim, before quitting his vale of tears. The candle was still burning, and by the gray, shedding tears of wax in its feeble prostration, and it suddenly reminded him of the dwarf's advice to examine his lower of repose. He rose, lifted it and snuffed it off with his fingers and held it aloft, much as Diogenes, he remarked, he used to do the dark cavern with the dead goat.

In his musings, the dwarf's advice he alluded to, its small, wan ray pierced but a few inches, and only made the darkness denser. But Sir Norman groped his way to the wall, search he knew he all over grew and noisome slime, and broken out into a sweat, during perspiration, and though it were at its last gap. By the aid of his tinder box, and tiny ray, for which he was really much obliged—a fact which, had his little friend known, he would have felt it—he managed to make the circuit of his prison, and he found rather spacious, and by no means uninhabited, for the walls and floors were covered with fat, black beetles, whole families of which, from great specimens of the insect world he crunched remorselessly under foot, and massacred at every step, and great, depraved-looking rats, with flashing eyes and sharpened teeth, who made frantic dives and pushes at him, and jut at his jack-knife, and fled, leaving, in their small, cunningness reminded him forcibly of the Shoot, especially in the region of the eyes and the general countenance and he began to reflect that if he had a soul—supposing him to possess such an article as that which seemed open to debate—passed after death, into the body of any other animal, it would certainly be into that of a rat.

He had just come to this conclusion, and was applying the same to the note of an impulsive beetle, when it seemed to be hard voices in altercation outside his door. One, clear, ringing, and imperious, yet withal feminine, was certainly not heard for the first time, and the subdued and respectful voices that answered him were those of his guards.

After a moment he heard the sound of the withdrawing bolts and his heart beat fast, thinking his behaviour had not already expired, and if it had, would she be the person to conduct him to the scaffold. The door opened, a puff of wind extinguished his candle, and he had scarcely time for the glimmer of jewels, the shining of gold, and the flicker of long black hair, then someone came in. The door was closed, and he was left alone with the Queen.

There was no trouble about recognizing her for she carried in her hand a small lamp, which she had set up between them, that its rays might fall directly on both faces. Long rays rather white, perhaps, and one heart beat faster than it had ever done before, and that one was decidedly not the queen's. She was dressed exactly as he had seen her, in purple and ermine, in jewels and gold, and strangely out of place she looked there, in the dungeon, with the rats and the beetles and rust. Her face might have been a fair black shell carved out of cold, white stone, for all it expressed; and, as she lightly held her robe from relic on one hand, and in the other bore the light, the dark eyes looked over and over him, then, and were as barren of interest, expression, and meaning, as those of any other feeling, as the shining black jewels over a wax doll. So, they stood looking at each other some long seconds, and then, as she did not speak, felt at him, Miranda spoke, and her voice was as clear and emotionless as her eyes.

"Well, Sir Norman Kingsley, I have come—see you before you die."

"Madame," he stammered, scarcely knowing what he said, "you are kind."

"Am I? Perhaps you forget I signed your death-warrant."

"Probably it would have been at this date your sweet will to refuse."

"Nothing of the kind. Not one of them would hurt a hair on my head if I refused to sign fifty death-warrants. Am I kind, Sir Norman?"

"Very likely it would have amounted to the same thing, madame, for they would kill me whether you signed it or not, so what does it matter?"

"We are mistaken. They would not kill you; at least, not tonight. If I had not signed it. They would have let you live until there came a meeting, which will be this night week, and I would have incurred neither risk nor danger by refusing."

"I do not know that that prospect is much more inviting than the present, madame, and I think it would be a week's imprisonment in a place like this."

"But in the meantime you might have escaped."

"Madame, look at this stone floor, that stone roof, these solid walls, that barred and massive door, before then; that I am some forty feet underground—cannot perform impossibilities, and then ask yourself how?"

"Sir Norman, you are one of those of good fairies visiting brave knights and setting them free!"

"I am afraid the good fairies and brave knights went the way of all flesh with King Arthur's round table, and even if they were in existence, I think my friends had time by twice to limp down so far as to save such an unlucky dog as I am."

"Then you forgive me for what I have done?"

"Your majesty, I have nothing to forgive."

"Bah!" she said, scornfully. "Do not mock me here. My majesty, forsooth! You have but fifteen minutes to live in this world, Sir Norman; and if you have no better way of spending them, I will tell you a strange story—of my own, and all about this place."

"Madame, there is nothing in the world I would like so much to hear."

"You shall hear it, then, and it may happen that it will use up some of time before you go out into eternal rest."

She set her lamp down on the floor among the rats and beetles, and stood Watchful and Silent for a moment, with a gloomy, downcast eye; and Sir Norman gazing on the beautiful darkening face, so like and yet so unlike Leoline, grood eagerly, awaiting the story of blackness.

Meantime, the half hour sped. In the chamber of the dwarf, the trial was over, and Lady Castlegaine, a clever little lawyer, and Mr. Tilt, stood condemned to die.

"Now for the other prisoner," exclaimed the dwarf with sprightly exclamation, "and while I go to the cell, you, fair ladies, and you, my lord, will seek the Black Chamber and await our coming there."

Ordering one of his attendants to precede him with a light, the dwarf skipped jauntily away, to gloat over his victim. He reached the dungeon floor which the guards, with some trepidation in their countenance, as they thought of what his highness would say when he found her majesty locked in with the prisoner, flung open.

"Come forth, Sir Norman Kingsley!" shouted the dwarf, rushing in, and peering out past your guards, with an air of amazing coquetry, the pleasant invitation, and a dull voice from the darkness there, answered him. There was a lamp burning on the floor, and near it, lay a form, shining and speckled with white in the gloom. He made for it the seventeen fear and fury, but there was something red and slippery on the ground, in which he fell headlong, and he fell. Simultaneously they "Ha, ha! Well my friends the two guards and attendant, that was echoed by a perfect screech of rage from the dwarf, as on looking down he beheld the young Canadian lying on the floor in the pool of blood, and apparently dead, and Sir Norman Kingsley gone!

CHAPTER XIV.

The interim between Miranda setting down her lamp on the dungeon floor among the rats and the beetles, and the dwarf's finding her bloodless and senseless, was not more than 20 minutes, but a great deal may be done in 20 minutes judiciously managed, and most decidedly it was so in the present case. Both rats and beetles, and the dungeon floor, and Sir Norman gazed to contemplate, and felt, and felt, and felt the marvellous resemblance to Leoline, in all but one thing, struck him more and more, and made the same beautiful transport, colorless complexion, the same delicate, straight classical figure, the same small, oval, delicate features, the same profuse waves of shining dark hair, the same large, dark, brilliant eyes, the same little, rosy, pretty mouth, like one of Correggio's amazing angels. The one thing wanting was expression—in Leoline's face there was a kind of childlike simplicity, a look half-shy, half-curious, half-serious in her wonderful eyes, but in this, her prototype, there was nothing shy or solemn, all was cold, hard, glittering, and the brooding gloom was as dark, deep, as ever. She looked as hard and cold and bitter, as she was beautiful; and Sir Norman became to perplex himself inwardly as to what had brought her there. Surely not simply, for one thing wanting that face of stone was enough to make a thousand of such a word. While he looked at her, half-inclined, half-glittering, half-bewilderedly, half-pitying, half-curious, dwarf was great with that last, but the feeling was caused by her resemblance to Leoline—she, the mostly been watching an old gray rat, the poisoned, the dying, the rat was making toward her in short runs, stopping to screech once or twice at her, and, out of his unpleasantly bright eyes. Suddenly, she shook her teeth, stretched her hands, and with a sort of fierce suppressed exclamation, kicked the poor beast and planted it on the rat's head. So sudden, so fierce, and so strange was the action that the rat was crushed flat, and uttered a shriek of intelligent surprise and exultation, while Sir Norman looked at her, thinking she had lost her wits. The rat was crushed to death with a fierce and stronger fierce every second; and taking with reddish black fangs, she said, in a sort of fiery hissing, "Ha! I have killed something! Did you ever see anything look like this? Do you ever see anything look like this? Look!"

There must have been some mysterious rapport between them, he understood at once upon whom the solitary personal pronoun referred.

"Certainly, on the general expression of countenance there is rather a marked resemblance between the rat and the face of the tenth and eyes."

"Except in the tenth's eyes are a thousand times handsomer," she signed it or not, as what I do."

"But as to shape," resumed Sir Norman, eyeing the excited and astonished dwarf, with a smile mingled with the glance of a connoisseur, "I confess I do not see it. The rat is straight and shapely—which is a highness, will all reverence to the said—is not—but rather the reverse, and I do not be offended at me for saying so."

She broke into a short laugh that had little of mettlesome ring in it, her face darkened, blackened, and she stamped her foot that could be the farcer, and with a sort of passionate vindictiveness, as if she had the head of the dwarf under her heel.

Sir Norman, in the meantime, she said, through her clenched teeth, and though her tone was scarcely above a whisper, it was too fierce for a fierceness that Sir Norman felt and recognized. "Yes, I hate him with all my heart and soul, and I am afraid I shall be tempted to do this rat, to trample to death under my feet."

Not knowing very well what reply to make to this strong and heartfelt speech, which contained sentiments of female propriety, Sir Norman gave a cough, and looked curiously after the rat, which, when she performed, was at last to go free, jumped away with an ineffably sneaking and cruelly malicious expression on his hitherto amiabled features. She watched it, too, with a gloomy eye, and when it crawled into the darkness and was gone, she looked up with a face as dark and moody that it was almost sullen.

"I hate him!" she ejaculated, with a fierce moodiness that was quite dreadful. "Yes, I hate him, and I would kill him, like that rat, if I could. He has been the curse of my whole life. He has made life cursed to me, and his heart's blood shall be worst for it some day, if I live long."

With all her beauty there was something so horrible in the look she wore, that Sir Norman involuntarily recoiled from her. Her sharp eyes narrowed to slits, her face red and fiery as two devouring flames.

"I would, if I could, kill him, and, would you? You, too recall in horror! Horrible! And I have come to see if you would."

"Madame, I recall not from you but from the fiend in a temptation you to utter words like these. I have no reason to love him of whom you speak—you, perhaps, have even less; but I would not have his blood, shed in murder, on my head, for a thousand worlds. Pardon me, but you do not know what you say."

"Do I not? That remains to be seen. I would not have the murder plunging a knife into the heart of a human creature like this, and I would have done it long ago, and he would have done it, but for the chance."

"What has he done to make you so bitter against him?"

"Bitter! Oh, that word is poor and pitiful to express what I feel against that accursed man. Listening and hatred come a little nearer to it. Listen, and I will tell you, if you are the utter—there—" She stopped in a sort of white passion that choked her very words.

They told me he was your husband! I thought Sir Norman, utterly repelled.

"They told you! he said with a cold sneer; "he is, too—at least, is far as church and state can make him, but I tell you I more hate a foot than I am Satan's. Truly of the perfect screech of rage from the dwarf, as on looking down he beheld the young Canadian lying on the floor in the pool of blood, and apparently dead, and Sir Norman Kingsley gone!

"Dry our tears, you seem to forget that the one is reversed, and that he is going to rid the world of one," said Sir Norman, with a sigh.

"No, not if you do as I tell you, and when I have told you how much cause I have to abhor him, you will agree with me that life may well be no murder. Oh, if there is one person in this world I wish and will judge us all, why does he permit such monsters to live?"

"Because he is more merciful than his creatures," replied Sir Norman, with a sigh, "and, though his avenging hand is heavy on this doomed city, he, madame, lies on the wing, and the heedless will be the less heavy over our sinking land."

"Ah, that story! How am I to tell it? Shall I begin at the time I first prize it all—sin and misery—misery and sin! For, buried alive, he was a fiend incarnate, and he always was—I know what both words mean, since I have been tortured and made brain in letters of fire. And that hereditary sensitivity is the curse of all, that loathsome, misshapen, hideous affection has fanned and cursed my life, and made it a living hell, and, as I said, I hate him, madame, with a fierce hate that has lasted years, that horrible face, that gnarled, twisted trunk, those devilish eyes place at me like the eyes of a wild beast, and, madame, I am stronger and more vivid. I can see that same face still—the dwarf the dwarf! the dwarf!—Satan's true representative upon earth, darkening and blighting everywhere he goes. I do not know where we lived, but I remember the dark, dreary, old of the villed, and lowest dens in London, the lowest and most cursed place for that matter, decent and orderly enough, but those rooms the daylight never entered, the windows were boarded up within, and fastened with bolts and bars, and I, a child of the world beyond I was as ignorant as a child of the world, and I had but two human faces, he—she second to me, and I thought it was the nature—his name—and his housekeeper, and I thought it was the nature of a woman, and who is now a servant, here, and with this precious life on her hands, I suppose, is fifteen years old. My outer life consisted of school, sleeping, eating—for the wretch taught me to read—and beating, and sitting in terror and listening to old Margery's stories. Then there was his sister, fierce and strong, as it was rank and morbid, lived and brooded over alone, and hated everything and everybody except my mother, and I remember hearing her say that I was the image of my father, and made her hate me. Then there was my mother, weak and pitiful, and I remember everybody and who she was, where she came from, what she was, what she did, and what lay in the great world beyond? That crooked little monster was a great book I was allowed to read; he should have known that books are made that I may grow and flourish tall and green, till they become fit for cutting, and, I was enough to be certain there was a world beyond and glad world without, from which they shut me in and shut them out, and I knew enough to hate them both for it, with as fierce and heartfelt hatred, only second to what I feel for him.

She stopped for a moment, and fixed her black, glittering eyes on the swarming floor, and shook off, without a shudder, the hideous things that crawled over her rich dress. She had scarcely looked at Sir Norman during the time she had been at work, but done enough looking for them both, for, if, with a face of stone, the handsome darkening face. He thought how strangely like her story was to Leoline's—and how far, far, apart from the cold world. Verily, destiny had been cruel to both, and warp of their respective fates wonderfully together for their lives were as much the same as their face. Miranda having shook off her gloomy musings, resumed the story.

"It was three years ago, when, with the exception of the dwarf, I had a great change took place in my life. Up to that time I was miserable, and would have me dressed up and displayed to them, with a demoniac pride the revolting one beyond words. Most of the precious crew of reunion, Twelfth Night, were there to see the beast, to be bought with them of an evening; and then, what with dancing, and music, and wine, and feasting, we had quite a carnival of it.

Lame for Two Years

It is not necessary for a man to meet with an accident to become lame or otherwise physically impaired. Friends of Mr. Samuel Donaldson, Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, at Dufferin, Ont., postoffice, have wondered for some time how he could be the matter with him, and when told that his crippling was due to rheumatism, could hardly believe it. But such was the case, however. Mr. Donaldson was lame with rheumatism for two years, and during that time suffered internal pain and experienced the greatest difficulty in getting out of a rig. Mr. Donaldson used liniments and mixtures of all kinds to no purpose. At last he tried Dr. Hall's Rheumatic Cure on the suggestion of a friend, who had been cured of a similar complaint, and after taking one bottle of this wonderful preparation the pain disappeared, and now he is as well as ever.

Dr. Hall's Rheumatic Cure is put up in 50 cent and $1.00 sizes by all druggists and dealers. For sale by all druggists and dealers in medicine. Ask for Hall's Rheumatic Cure. 1000. Out.

THE PASSING OF VERDI

The Famous Author of "Il Trovatore" Goes to His Rest.

A BRILLIANT MUSICAL CAREER.

King Victor Emmanuel and Queen Helena Join "in the Homage, Regrets and Admiration Offered by Italy and the Civilized World"—The Nation's Loss—Sketch of His Career.

Milan, Jan. 27.—Verdi died at 2.50 o'clock this morning.

King Victor Emmanuel sent to the family a telegram of condolence on behalf of himself and Queen Helena, saying: "We join in the homage regrets and admiration offered by Italy and the civilized world to the immortal memory of Verdi. The nation and the glorious art of our country have suffered a loss so serious that it is beyond repair.

Sketch of His Life.

In the development and perfection of the Italian school of music, no name stands higher than that of the great master, who has just passed away.

Giuseppe Verdi was a native of Busseto, Northern Italy, and was born in 1814 of humble extraction, his father being an innkeeper. He was indebted for musical initiation to a local organist and in 1833 the munificence of a wealthy patron furnished him the means for perfecting his studies at Milan. Failing to obtain admission to the Conservatory, he was placed under the tuition of a member of the orchestra of La Scala. The next six years he spent in mastering the details of operatic structure, and in 1839 launched on his great career by the production of his first work, "Oberto di San Bonifacio," which was moderately successful. His next effort was "Il Giorno di Regno," a comic theme, hastily written to order in 1841, and a positive failure. The following year saw the production of "Nabucco," which instantly established his fame. In this work he developed those characteristics of brilliant melody, combined with vivid musico-dramatic effects, which have maintained his popularity intact to the present time. In 1843 he produced "I Lombardi," a work somewhat of the same type, musically, as "Nabucco," the rather more finished in detail. The next two years brought forth four grand operas "Ernani," "I Don Foscari," "Giovanna d' Arco" and "Alzira." For a time "Ernani" was the most popular of his works. Its distinguishing features are extreme vigor and brilliancy of melody, without floridity, strongly marked melodramatic effects and resonance of orchestration. It was first presented in Venice in 1844. His next opera, "Attila," followed two years later, at Venice, but was not a success. In 1847 appeared "Macbeth," which, tho exceedingly faulty, was accorded extraordinary public recognition. The author was called before the audience more than 30 times at each of the first three performances, escorted to and from the theatre by enthusiastic crowds and presented with a golden crown. This, however, was not altogether on account of the artistic merits of the opera. Verdi was an ardent sympathizer with the Liberal politicians of Italy and the libretto of "Macbeth" contained many allusions which the populace interpreted in a political sense. The same year Verdi visited London and there produced "I Masnadieri," in the representation of which Jenny Lind took the leading role. In spite of this, however, the opera was a decided failure and was pronounced by a local critic the worst ever heard in England. In 1847 also a French version of "I Lombardi," under the title, "Jerusalem," was given at the Grand Opera, Paris. The following year the composer wrote for Trieste "Il Corsario," which failed, and for Rome "La Battaglia di Lagano," which was interdicted on account of the political significance of the argument. In 1849 "Luisa Miller" was written for Naples; 1850, "Stiffelio" for Trieste; 1851, "Rigoletto" for Venice; 1853, "Il Trovatore" for Rome, and "La Traviata" for Venice. In 1855 followed "Les Vepres Siciliennes" at the Grand Opera, Paris, and in 1859, "Un Ballo in Maschera," first given in Rome. Subsequent works were "Aroldo," a revision of "Stiffello," "Simone Boccanegra," "Una Vendetta in Domino," "La Forza del Destino," presented at St. Petersburg, 1863; "Don Carlos," 1867; "Aida," first production at Cairo in 1871, and written at the request of the Khedive of Egypt; and in recent years, "Othello" and "Falstaff." The last three operas, constituting what may be considered the third and final stage in the evolution of the author's genius, have done much to elevate his reputation, being characterized by great elaboration and amplified with all the resources of modern instrumentation. Verdi usually spent the winter at the Doria palace in Genoa. In 1859 he was elected a member of the National Assembly of Parma and in 1861 sat as a deputy in the Italian Parliament. In 1874 the King appointed him a Senator.

EMPEROR WILLIAM'S BIRTHDAY.

Marked by His Being Made a Field Marshal of the British Army—Notable Congratulations.

Cowes, Isle of Wight, Jan. 27.—This morning Emperor William received from the hand of the Duke of Connaught his sword, on his appointment as a field marshal of the British army, in the presence of the household of King Edward and the dead Queen, as well as a number of British and German naval officers. His Majesty has expressed great delight at the appointment. He will entertain King Edward and the members of the Royal family at tea on the Imperial yacht Hohenzollern.

To-day he celebrated his birthday at Osborne, and received congratulations from the members of the German Embassy at London.

After the memorial service in Whippingham Church to-day Emperor William and the Crown Prince went direct to the Hohenzollern, receiving a salute of 21 guns. His Majesty tok luncheon there, the guests including Lord Kintore, Col. Carrington, who is attached H's Majesty's staff while in England, the members of the German Embassy, and others.

Crown Prince Frederick William proposed the Emperor's health, which was drunk with "Hochs." The Kaiser then drank the Health of King Edward, the entire company standing.

Then His Majesty donned the uniform of a British Admiral to receive visitors who might call to tender congratulations. Among those who came were King Edward, in the uniform of an admiral; the Duke of Connaught, Prince Christian and other royal personages, Lord Roberts and Mr. Brodrick, all in full uniform.

The Emperor received the King at the gangway. The yacht was rolling heavily, owing to the gale, so that the Queen and the royal ladies were prevented from accompanying the King.

After tea had been served the royal party returned to Osborne House, Emperor William and the Crown Prince immediately returning the visit and dining with the King.

In addition to the sword of a field marshal, King Edward has presented Emperor William, already a knight of the Garter, the insignia of the order in diamonds. The fact that this gift was ordered by the late Queen, with the intention of presenting it on the Kaiser's birthday, gave a pathetic interest to the presentation.

Emperor William, on learning of the King's intention to appoint him a field marshal, sent the following telegram to Lord Salisbury:

"The King, my august uncle, confers upon me the rank of a field marshal in his army, and informs me that my appointment will be published on my birthday. I hasten to apprise you of my deep appreciation of so signal a mark of His Majesty's affection for me, and I rejoice to think that I shall be numbered among those of the highest rank in His Majesty's gallant army. (Signed) William."

The Emperor sent a fac-simile of the despatch to Lord Roberts.

Lord Salisbury replied as follows: "I beg with most profound respect to tender to Your Imperial Majesty my thanks for your telegram and my sincere congratulations upon the anniversary of Your Majesty's birthday, and upon the appointment to the exalted rank of field marsha which my august sovereign, the King, has been pleased to confer upon your Imperial Majesty, and I am convinced that your acceptance of the office will give the liveliest gratification to all classes of the nation, who have been deeply touched by the consideration and kindly feeling exhibited in your gracious visit on this solemn occasion."

Lord Roberts responded in the following terms: "I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of Your Majesty's gracious telegram, giving me the joyful tidings that His Majesty King Edward has conferred upon Your Majesty the rank of field marshal. I would beg, sir, that I may be allowed to offer, on behalf of myself and the army I have the honor to command, our most heartfelt and respectful congratulations on this mark of our sovereign's affection and appreciation of Your Majesty's great and soldierly qualities.

"All ranks will be proud to think that Your Majesty will henceforth be even more closely associated with them than hitherto, and will feel that the army is highly honored by Your Majesty's name being enrolled among the field marshals of Great Britain. "Roberts."

The correspondent of the Associated Press is informed that at 11 o'clock tomorrow moning, in the presence of Emperor William and members of the British royal family, King Edward will confer upon Crown Prince Frederick William the order of the Garter.

The Hohenzollern will take part in the naval display at Spithead. The Emperor will accompany the King to London and Windsor, and will return to Germany immediately after the funeral.

As a German Admiral.

Berlin, Jan. 28.—The Vossiche Zeitung announces that Emperor William has offered King Edward VII. the dignity of Admiral of the German Navy.

PRESUMPTUOUS ANTICOSTI.

King Was Not Proclaimed Emperor of India in Canada.

Ottawa, Jan. 28.—The style of Mr. L. O. Cometant's message of condolence has attracted considerable attention here. When the message was given out for publication at the Governor-General's office, the special request was made not to use the words "In the name of the Administration and population of Anticosti," on the ground that it would never do to in any way countenance Mr. Cometant's apparent pretensions. The publication of the message by Mr. Cometant is not according to etiquette. There is no recognized or unrecognized administrator of Anticosti.

A serious discussion is being conducted as to whether the Canadian proclamations of King Edward VII. will not have to be made over again, as the title Emperor of India was left out. The part in the proclamations of George IV.'s and William IV.'s deaths were used with merely alterations in the name.

Seventy-Eight Below Zero.

Seattle, Wash., Jan. 25.—Advices from Dawson and the Yukon Valley report that that section of Alaska has just passed through the coldest weather recorded since the white man inhabited that country. The climax was reached on Jan. 16, when the thermometer at Dawson fell to 78 degrees below zero. A message from Forty Mile Creek the same day said that it was 78 below. The coldest recorded before this was in 1896, when it was 67 near Forty Mile. The average for the seven days ending Jan. 16 at Dawson was 58 below zero. All the time a dense fog hung over the entire valley.

Cut Arteries in Wrist.

Chatham, Ont., Jan. 25.—A man arrived here from St. Louis, Mo., Wednesday night and registered at the C. P. R. hotel. He was well dressed and apparently in good circumstances. He was given a room, and, after taking a drink, retired. Last night he was found dead in his room with a severe gash in his wrist, the arteries having been severed. The man, whose name is supposed to be Collins, is said to be an absconding railroad man from St. Louis.

BOERS CAPTURE A TROOP TRAIN.

Looks Like Cowardice—Twenty Cape Police Surrender Without Firing a Shot—Gen. Prinsloo Reported Wounded—Cunningham Drove Delarey's Force to the West With Babington's Help.

London, Jan. 28.—The War Office has received from the commander-in-chief in South Africa a despatch dated Pretoria, Jan. 26, reporting numerous engagements, the following being the most important:

"Cunningham was engaged at Middlefontein and Kopperfontein yesterday with Delarey's force. Babington, while moving north from Ventersdorp, threatened the enemy's flank, whereupon the Boers retired west. Cunningham's casualties were two officers wounded, four men killed and 37 wounded.

"In the engagement at Lichtenberg, Jan. 17, some Yeomanry were captured. These have since been released, with exception of a major and three men. No details are yet at hand.

A Five Hours' Battle.

"Smith-Dorrien had a successful engagement of five hours while on the march from Wonderfontein to Carolina, where the Boers had lately been concentrating. The enemy were in considerable strength, and held the river, but were driven out. Our losses were one officer killed and two officers and 13 men wounded."

Lord Kitchener confirms the report that a British train with troops and military stores on board, was waylaid and captured at Slijplijp, near Fourteen Streams, last Friday, but says the Boers retired on the arrival of the armored train sent in pursuit.

Everything Goes Boers' Way.

Cape Town, Jan. 26. — Twenty Cape Police surrendered to the Boers at Devondale, north of Vryburg, on Jan. 21, without firing a shot. It is reported that Gen. Prinsloo was wounded in the fighting of Jan. 16.

Whole Train Captured.

Kimberley, Friday, Jan. 25. — A train with troops and military stores on board was waylaid and captured by the Boers at Slijplijp, near Fourteen Streams, this morning. The Republicans captured a small post of Dublin Fusiliers, then blew up a culvert and waited for the train. An armored train has gone in pursuit of the Boers.

Harold Mackenzie Remembered.

Parkhill, Ont., Jan. 28.—Harold Mackenzie, son of Judge Mackenzie, Sarnia, and a former employe of the Canadian Bank of Commerce here, who has just returned from South Africa, was presented with an address and a purse of gold by his friends at Parkhill.

DEATH ON A CROSSING.

H. J. Hallett and Misses Helen and Amelia Knight of Bowmanville Killed by G.T.R. Flyer.

Bowmanville, Ont., Jan. 28.—The Wharf road crossing on the Grand Trunk Railway, southeast of this town, was yesterday the scene of an accident that terminated in the loss of three young lives. Herbert J. Hallett, son of the late W. H. Hallett, of Whitby; Helen Knight, who lived as companion with her aunt, Mrs. William Puley, near the station, and her sister, Amelia Knight, were returning from making a call on their uncle, James Knight, on the lake shore, and, not observing the Montreal express, locally known as the Sunday Flyer, coming down the steep grade, extending one and a half miles eastward from the station Hallett attempted to drive across the track. Before he got the carriage clear it was struck by the engine, severed from the horse and borne on the front of the iron monster to the station. Hallett and Miss Helen were thrown with such violent force against the engine as to be instantly killed, their heads being very badly cut, and Miss Knight's body was also terribly smashed. Amelia was not so badly disfigured, but had received an ugly wound on one side of her head. She was found lying in the ditch beside the track, about half way between the scene of the accident and the station, quite dead.

Coroner A. S. Tilley, M.D., was sent for, but, after hearing all the facts, considered that an inquest was unnecessary, and handed the bodies over to their friends.

Thieving Lawyers Punished.

London, Jan. 28.—The courts have administered a striking lesson for honesty in handling trust funds, dealing severe sentences to three defaulting lawyers, the discovery of whose crime, a few months ago, greatly disturbed the people's confidence in the profession. Benjamin Take, president of the Law Society, whose firm swallowed £170,000 of its clients' money, was sentenced to 12 years' imprisonment. His only defence was that he left the details of the business to his nephew. Two minor lawyers were sentenced to 10 years' imprisonment for similar embezzlements.

Gordon, the Cattle King.

Winnipeg, Jan. 25.—The nomination for vacancy in South Winnipeg for the Provincial Legislature caused by the retirement of Hon. Hugh John Macdonald took place yesterday morning. As there was only one candidate nominated, Mr. J. T. Gordon, the western cattle king, that gentleman was declared elected.

Gave Life For Science.

Rio Janeiro, Brazil, Jan. 24.—Despatches from Para tell of misfortune that has come to a British expedition sent to that city from Liverpool to study yellow fever. Dr. Meyers, a distinguished physician, recently conducted an autopsy on the body of a person who died from yellow fever. He became infected and died on Tuesday. Dr. Durhases, who was also infected, is seriously ill.

MONTREAL'S BIG FIRE

The Most Disastrous in the History of the City.

LOSS ESTIMATED AT 3.000,000.

The Board of Trade Building and Several Other Important Structures Totally Destroyed—Block Bounded by St. Paul, Nicholas, St. Sacrament and St. Peter Streets Wiped Out.

Montreal, Jan. 24.—Three million dollars will probably be a conservative estimate of the loss of the greatest conflagration that has taken place in Montreal for years. In fact it is doubtful if ever the business section of the commercial metropolis received such a scorching as it did last night between seven and midnight.

The alarm sounded shortly after 7 o'clock, and for five hours the entire city fire brigade stubbornly fought the devouring elements in a section extending from St. Sacrament to Commissioner streets, and from St. Nicholas west almost to McGill. The fire broke out in Mr. Saxe & Co., extended across to St. Peter's, to H. A. Nelson's warehouse, and in half an hour the magnificent Board of Trade building, bounded by St. Nicholas, St. Peter's and St. Sacrament streets.

At present only the walls of this splendid structure, valued at $400,000, remain. The leading warehouses burned on St. Peter's were: Laporte, Martin & Co., M. Saxe & Son, and H. A. Nelson, with a probable loss of $500,000, the first named being covered by insurance to the extent of $200,000.

Business Centre Gutted.

On St. Paul's street such well-known houses as Coristine, Silverman & Bolter, J. Hirsch, J. Cohen & Co., Burnstine & Wolseley, H. Levy, Hiram Johnson, Bell Simpson & Co., The Davidson Mfg. Co., H. W. Decourtney, Seybold, Son & Co., British American Overall Co., Gilmour Bros., B. Levin & Co., and a few smaller firms. It looks at midnight as if the fire would reach along St. Paul's street to the westward as far as McGill street, and this wide street will probably stop the fire fiend's ravages.

At 12.30 a. m. a prominent insurance man said that the loss will be at least $4,000,000. At the time of wiring the fire is being kept among a poorer quality of buildings on St. Paul's street, although in a good many cases the structures are of considerable value.

Some of the Losses.

The following are some of the losses: Coristine, $200,000; Silverman & Polter $300,000; Seybold, Son & Co., $80,000; H. A. Nelson, $150,000 Corticelli Silk Company, $60,000; Levine & Co., $100,000.

The Board of Trade Building was insured for $350,000, and a later statement gives the cost of the structure at half a million. Although there were many narrow escapes no loss of life is reported.

THOUSANDS HAVE DIED.

Important Edict Sent Out by the Chinese Court.

Pekin, Jan. 27.—There has been great distress in the Province of Shansi, owing to the famine, and thousands have died. The court has ordered rice relief to be issued in large quantities. A report reached the foreign envoys that native Christians, suffering from the famine, were to be discriminated against, and to be punished if they even begged for food. Mr. Conger, Sir Ernest M. Satow and M. Pichon, the United States, British and French Ministers, protested to Prince Ching and Li Hung Chang against such discrimination, and the court issued an edict, dated yesterday, ordering all relief officials and Chinese soldiers to treat Christians exactly the same as others throughout the empire, under penalty of decapitation.

The foreign envoys consider this a most important decree, if it is carried out.

Glasgow Filled With Smallpox.

Glasgow, Jan. 28.—The smallpox epidemic here is somewhat alarming. Twenty-nine fresh cases were reported on Saturday, and hundreds of cases are in the hospitals.

Germany's Foreign Trade.

Berlin, Jan. 28.—Official returns of the German foreign trade for 1900 show the imports to be 5,837,312,000 marks, an increase over 1899 of 50,084,000 marks; and the exports 4,555,291,000 marks, an increase of 186,882,000 marks over the previous year, largely agricultural products.

New Telephone Company.

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 24.—The Atlantic Telephone Company was incorporated yesterday with a capital stock of $5,000,000. The company proposes to maintain a telephone system connecting New York City, Albany, Syracuse, Rochester, Buffalo, and all the cities and villages along the route, which cities are also to be connected with other municipalities in the United States and Canada.

THE KING AT CHURCH.

Royalty Attended the Memorial Service at Whippingham.

EMPEROR WILLIAM'S AFFECTION

Memorial Services at St. Paul's Cathedral, Westminster Abbey and Canterbury Cathedral—All in Black, and Thousands Unable to Gain Admission—The Foreign Churches—Services in the Colonies.

Cowes, Jan. 28. — Lord Roberts and Mr. William St. John Brodrick, Secretary of State for War, were present at morning prayers in Whippingham Church at 11 o'clock yesterday. An hour later King Edward, Queen Alexandra and all the royal personages now at Osborne, arrived at the church for the memorial service. This was a similar function, the hymns being sung by an unsurpliced choir of school children. Sir Walter Parratt, private organist to the late Queen, and organist to St. George's Chapel Royal, Windsor, played several funeral excerpts.

The Bishop of Winchester, who was the preacher for the occasion, delivered an eloquent panegyric upon Victoria, and declared that Emperor William's action in coming to her deathbed had touched the hearts of the British people and cemented the unity and friendship of the two kindred nations.

At the conclusion of service all stood during a performance of the dead march.

MEMORIAL SERVICES.

London Leads, But There Were Similar Functions in the Colonies.

London, Jan. 28.— Yesterday throughout the Kingdom all places of worship held services in memory of Queen Victoria. At St. Paul's Cathedral there was an unusual scene. Before 9 o'clock in the morning an enormous crowd, wholly attired in black, streamed from all directions to the vast edifice, and by 10 o'clock it was packed. Thousands, unable to gain admission, stood vainly waiting on the steps and around, listening to the low organ strains and muffled peal. The service began at half-past 10. The Most Rev. Frederick Temple, Primate and Archbishop of Canterbury, preached a most touching sermon.

There was a similar scene at Westminster Abbey, where all the services throughout the day were attended by enormous congregations.

All the Roman Catholic and foreign churches in London held special memorial services. The members of the French Embassy attended the French Church and very elaborate services were held at the chapel of the Russian Embassy by command of Emperor Nicholas.

The Venerable William MacDonald Sinclair, Archdeacon of London and Canon of St. Paul's Cathedral, preached a commemorative discourse at Canterbury Cathedral.

Services in the Colonies.

Special sermons were preached in St. George's Chapel at Windsor. Everywhere cathedrals and churches were draped and hung with mourning emblems. Telegrams from the colonies and from all the principal cities abroad where the British subjects reside report memorial services. Sir Alfred Milner attended the service at the Cathedral in Cape Town.

ORDER OF PROCESSION.

The probable order of the procession is as follows:
The Knight Marshal's men.
Drummers of the Foot Guards.
The Household Staff.
Judges.
Privy Councillors.
Peers of the realm.
Bishops.
The royal crown of Hanover.
The Imperial Crown.
The Crown of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland.
The royal body on a gun carriage.
Princes of the royal blood.
Equerries.
Yeomen of the Guard.
Units of the army will be interspersed in the column and at its head, and there will be a firing party.
Preceding the cortege military bands will play the Dead March.
The standards will all be draped.

THE FUNERAL PROCESSION.

It Will Be the Greatest Pageant Seen in a Generation.

London, Jan. 28.—The preparations for Queen Victoria's funeral are gradually assuming definite form. It promises to be the most tremendous pageant of the generation. The influx of members of the Royal Families and representatives of foreign countries has been so wholly unprecedented that the court officials are finding it difficult to secure suitable accommodation.

The procession is expected to occupy two hours, traversing London from Victoria Station to Paddington Station, whence the funeral train will depart at 11.15 a.m., reaching Windsor at 11.50. The coffin will be conveyed in the Queen's special saloon carriage, attached to the royal train — built especially for the Diamond Jubilee, by which the King and the Royal Family will journey to the royal borough.

The King as chief mourner, accompanied by Emperor William will ride on horse back at the head of the procession through London, with Field Marshal Earl Roberts, the Commander-in-Chief of the forces, and his staff in close proximity. At least six battalions of infantry, eight squadrons of cavalry and a number of batteries of artillery will participate in the procession, besides the multitudinous assemblage of peers, members of the House of Commons.

Pope Warned by Queen's Death.

Rome, Jan. 28.—Mgr. Ingell, private secretary to the Pope, says no sovereign's death caused His Holiness such profound emotion as that of Queen Victoria. The Pope is said to be already engaged on a memoriam poem. He is convinced that the death of Queen Victoria is a solemn notice to him to prepare for his own end.

BERLIN BLOCK BURNED.

Economical Life Insurance Co., Fennell & Son and Others Suffer.

Berlin, Jan. 28.—The big three story brick building of the Economical Fire Insurance Company was destroyed by fire here Saturday morning. The total loss is about $35,000. The building was occupied by the insurance company, Fennell & Son, hardware merchants; several law firms and Grand River Lodge, A. F. & A. M., occupied the third floor.

McBrine & Co.'s big bag and valise factory also caught fire, and suffered about $2,500 loss. This was covered by insurance. Fennell & Son's loss is $20,060, with $15,000 insurance. The Economical's loss of about $10,000, was fully insured as was also the $750 loss of the Masonic Order. The fire was not completely quelled until noon.

The Walkerville Victims.

Walkerville, Ont., Jan. 28. — The funeral of W. M. Brindle and George E. S. Phillips, the victims of the explosion at the Walkerville Match Company's fire, on Friday last, took place at Windsor yesterday. Both were given a military funeral, as they were both members of Walkerville Co., No. 4, 21st Essex Fusiliers The remains of Mr. Brindle, however, had been taken charge of by the Masons, he being a prominent member of that order.

The body of George Phillips had been taken charge of by the Sons of England, and had been lying in their hall since the accident, guarded by his comrades of the Royal Canadians, who had gone through the South African campaign with him. All felt his death keenly, and the more so that, after going through the hardships of the war, escaping Boer bullets and fever, he came home to be crushed to death by a heap of bricks.

New Ocean Steamship Co.

Ottawa, Jan. 28.—Robert A. C. Smith and David C. Reid, ship owners of New York, associated with Sir William Van Horne and Charles R. Hosmer of Montreal and T. G. Fitzgibbon of Toronto, have given notice that they will apply at the coming session of the Canadian Parliament for a charter of incorporation for a new company, the title to be "The North American Mail & Steamship Company."

It is proposed to operate steamships between British and foreign ports and carry on the business of forwarding agents, ship brokers and warehousemen. The capital stock is placed at $175,000, consisting of 1,750 shares at $100 each, and the headquarters of the company will be in Montreal.

Homburg, Jan. 25.—The condition of the Dowager-Empress Frederick continues satisfactory. Lately she has not suffered any pain, but this does not imply improvement. Her Majesty's sorrow and personal loss, owing to the death of the Queen has been borne with comparative fortitude.

The Toronto Mail thinks it would be a good idea to keep the 24th of May as a holiday. It will then like the Queen's birthday, the 9th of November, the King's birthday, might very well be celebrated as Thanksgiving day.

"Englishmen may like to have their game high," but they will not buy tainted cheese," says the Pellerville Times. The Canadian cheese maker might have known that from the experience of the United States without learning it at their cost.

Ottawa teachers have decided that in future the junior third-class pupils shall not be required to have the arithmetic, grammar and geography text books, and will use the blackboard for lesson purposes. They take at absolutely zero—no marks for grades also. This experiment will be watched with interest.

By order of the London School Board the teachers in all its schools have posted the sight of the children under their care. The result is that 23 per cent. were found to be defective. Five visits among children were given notices to take to their parents announcing that they were suffering from defective vision, and advised to consult an oculist without delay.

"There never was a royal sufferer for whom so much was unnecessarily mourned," says the New York Herald. "Not England's only, but a world's bereavement," is the title of a very striking cartoon in the Brooklyn Eagle. And the cartoon is a very striking one in the same strain. It has been reserved for the Toronto Hall Mayor, and Tim Werk, to discredit his city by bringing down the flag on the city hall at half mast when, as it proves, the national flag of other must saw the national flag half down.

Toronto Telegram: Public ownership would cost the city of Toronto, not only nothing, but a world's big saving the money which is now wasted in unearned dividends. Private ownership would cost the city of its stock by the economies it effects in dispensing with every cents of unnecessary profit to the private owners ship of the City Company, the Street Railway Company, and the Electric Light Company does not give the public the benefit of its economies, but it gives the public the benefit of its economies in the form of increased rates, and the public pays for the privilege of private ownership which simply increases the profits of those with the results of its own efficiency.

Speaking of the late Queen Victoria, the Philadelphia Record says: "Her sympathies were with the poor and the oppressed, and she was not far to seek. It was her womanliness. Always pure, patient and gentle, she was a good wife, a good daughter, wife or mother she typified what was best in the woman's character. Those qualities she intuitively herself into the hearts of the people. The sweetness was the touch of nature which made her kin to the whole Empire, which made her, as it is, the loved. The Queen's influence has been important and beneficial. She was loved for her womanly qualities. The influence of good women might has probably been chivalrously exaggerated, but it is true that what she thought was good, and her sympathies were rarely wrong. But the purity of her life and the high ideals of her Christian faith, matter were her best adornments. It was for these she was the hearts of her people.

War brings many sorrows and desolations in its wake, but the word of peace and goodwill, which it is from which God forbid, that the bubonic plague has broken out, extensively in India, and the prospect is that pestilence will be complete. The report comes from a source of unquestionable honesty, is of pro-Boer sympathies, and, therefore, open to suspicion. It is to the effect that concentration camps of the Dutch people were reported at Durban and Capetown months ago, and in both of the cities reported to have been exercised to prevent alarming reports being published. It is not improbable that any army escapes the potential horrors of war, but when nations are long-continued in the field, it is not to be wondered that South African climatic conditions, severity of the weather, and the decomposition of men and animals, must have a sickening effect on any camp reported to them. This is an enemy more to be dreaded by Britons than from them either by the other, and may happily have the effect of hastening about the peace which all should desire.

One of the speakers at an anti-vice meeting in New York the other day told the audience that the conditions exposed "cried to Heaven for vengeance." Unfortunately, that is primarily to corporate dishonesty, that is, the sin of those who, for profit, are making concerns wring excessive profits out of the people, as the Standard, the consolidated Gas Company, which manufactured gas by a new process at a cost of only 40 cents per thousand feet, and charged consumers over a dollar. Policemen who levied blackmail on the poor, and who are worse in his estimation that other people, who pay for the protection they get for nothing. The most flagrant instance of the corporate dishonesty, and of the contempt of the people, whom representatives of the people and public servants, have sold franchises for public utilities on private corporations, whose extortions were only equalled by the insolence with which they defied public opinion. Light was breaking, however, as investigation revealed the source of evil, and the convict on guilt ground that municipal reform is impossible so long as city governors have the power to grant to private persons the right to tax the public at will under the guise of rendering it service.

Don't Make Another Botch of It.

(To the Editor of The Post.)

Sir,—I would like to take an humble part in the Electric Light discussions now going on in the papers, mainly for the purpose of asking the Mayor, Council and the special Light committee and all other good citizens the Board of Trade to read and ponder over the following clipped from The Toronto Star, and which is one of the best things I have seen, and which can be applied in general principle to the Lindsay problem before the town.

I would, therefore, say to the council and to the special committee dealing with this matter—that, at the beginning of the new century, make a notch of it. Don't be in a hurry. As midgley Pigeiow says, we can get along a little while with kerosene.

Mr. Kylie is correct in saying that the people generally don't fully and clearly understand all the intricacies of the electric light question and are not an expert would—but they do understand very clearly that the 19th century give away many valuable franchises, and the vote in favor of a monopoly, plant was a strong expression of opinion—an unmistakeable expression against any course that would hand the town over to what might not be an exciting monopoly this or next year, but what might be a very exciting monopoly before long. Not, of course, in the hands of the present honorable owners, because they are too good to do anything but the most advantageous use of the monopoly.

Mr. Ingle is a good man and means well; but will he kindly take the pains to find out, and tell us, just what HE THINKS is for the best interests of the citizens generally and the town, before he puts his "thinks" into a formal report and a formal bargain—when it may be too late for discussion and amendment. Even the Ti Kinnon, whom he scorns, might be right. Mr. Ingle's opinion upon his Worship's "thinks," and the town should have an opportunity to get the benefit of the combined wisdom. What I am humbly trying to impress on the Council and Mayor is this: a thing or a policy is not necessarily going to be good because the town or the town because he thinks it is. I think it is all right, because I "think" the Mayor means well, but I think it is wrong because I think manifestly, as well as illegitimate and illegal and perhaps dishonest.

I hope to see Ti Kinnon in the council—and hear his wisdom and see the man there.—Yours, etc.

NORTH WARD.

P.S.—This is The Star's article. It is headed:

THE NINETEENTH CENTURY MADE A BITCH OF IT.

The twentieth century will have a mighty poor opinion of the nineteenth. It will be astonished at everything it touched. The nineteenth century gives away valuable franchises to the contractor that was worth having. It gave away the Canadian Pacific railway and water powers, and nearly gave the land, except some wild country supposed to be no good. It gave away all kinds of franchises for nothing, and bonused railways and other things, and the twentieth century will be kept busy trying to get back millions and billions of dollars to get back and restore to the people the wealth the nineteenth century gave away and thanked the plutocrats for the privilege. The nineteenth century did not know what a franchise meant and attached no or of no value because it was not made of logs or stone. Because there was no deed of it in the registry office. The nineteenth century gave away to lawyers, contractors and other special interests. Under a democracy like ours in Canada, rights and emoluments given to those formerly enjoyed by barons and monarchs. The nineteenth century did not understand what democracy means, and left it for the twentieth century to mend what it muddled. It gave away the right of road-making in Ontario, but it did not make it a crime to be patched and turned out. It did its statute labor, but its work was not permanent, and the twentieth century must do it all over again. It gave away valuable franchises in the country, that the twentieth century will have to replace with subways and overhead bridges. It put up water-works, and left the twentieth century so close to the railway tracks that it cannot extend them without knocking the heads off engineers. It gave away the water power of Ontario, because it was the easy thing to do, and the twentieth century will have to change all that. It gave away the Niagara Falls, and left the twentieth century to pay for it. It left to the nineteenth century airbrake, and left the twentieth defrauded the common people, joyed in the hands of the rich, and left the twentieth century with a bunch of corporations that are a little frenzied and good enough for them. It left the twentieth century to have much to think in nineteenth century for, but it certainly did not live up to its opportunities.

Curling Notes.

—Lindsay sent two rinks to Bracebridge Tuesday to play a friendly game with the local Curling Bonspiel Club, and as the score shows, their opponents were too much for our men.

Pays to Raise Good Stock.

Mr. M. Moriarity, who occupies the McHugh homestead, Ops, Victoria, is quite a breeder of fancy stock. His penchant is for shorthorn Durhams, and he has a number of very fine specimens of that breed. His recently sold three yearlings to Mr. Mills, Ops, and received a cheque for Mr. Michael Fox—and netted $175 for the number. The bull calves brought him $65 each. It pays to raise first-class stock.

E. W. Johnston Heard From.

Hamilton Times, Tuesday: E. W. Johnston, the ex-champion heavyweight athlete, will have a case before the police magistrate to-morrow. He was arrested this afternoon on a charge of assaulting an aggrieved gentleman on Joseph Leslie, an officer for Bailiff George Burkholder. Johnston lives on McNab st., near Simcoe st., and this morning a seizure for rent was made by Leslie. There was a mix-up, in which Mrs. Johnston figured. The big athlete then appeared and tossed Leslie out of the house, just as easy as he would a cooer. Johnston alleges that Leslie showed his wife rough usage, and was opening, but Mr. Leslie denies this, and claims Mrs. Johnston attacked him.

Next Saturday a Day of Mourning.

Union Memorial Services will (D.V.) be held on Saturday morning (the day her late Majesty's funeral) at Cambridge-st. Methodist church and St. Paul's church at Kent-st. at 10.30 o'clock. The day has been proclaimed throughout Canada as a day of mourning, and we are sure many of our citizens will avail themselves of the opportunity of universal sorrow. The Mayor and Council have accepted an invitation to attend the services at the Cambridge-st. church.

Lindsay Interested in this Bank Change.

The Sioux City (Iowa) Daily Journal of Jan. 19 contains the consolidation of the private bank of Weare & Allison, established in 1856, with the Iowa National Bank. The business will be continued under the latter name. Mr. John McHugh, at one time of Lindsay, is interested in the change. He is now assistant cashier. In connection with the change Comptroller of the currency has in reference to Mr. McHugh, under the heading, "How He Gets Into Trouble," issued our readers and may induce reflections on the subject of luck: It may not be inappropriate to tell the curious story of how Mr. McHugh came to be an American citizen. It begins in a mere coincidence. He was a Canadian, living in a little town in Ontario. One day he received a letter, which on examination, proved to be intended for some other man of the same name. Investigation proved it was addressed to Hon. John McHugh, National Bank examiner of Iowa, who was at that time visiting his brother, Mr. George McHugh and other friends in the same town. When the letter was turned over to the rightful owner with the explanation that it had been opened by mistake by another John McHugh, his fellow man became interested. He told Mr. McHugh, then a young man of 25, that he should come to the United States; that it was the country of opportunities for young men. Out of that conversation grew the relations that brought Mr. McHugh into association with G. M. Nattiles, of Omaha, then operating a chain of banks in the part of the country. Mr. McHugh first went to Sioux City, and became cashier of one of the Iowa National, in which position he remained three years. His experience, energy and abilities will add much to the equipment, of the recognized institution.

The Weekly Post

LINDSAY, FRIDAY, FEB. 1st, '01.

OUR COUNTY LEGISLATORS

VICTORIA COUNTY COUNCIL IN SESSION.

THURSDAY'S PROCEEDINGS.

On account of leaving for Peterboro on the 10.30 train, the county council assembled for business at 9 o'clock. The minutes of Wednesday's business were read and confirmed.

County Magistrate's Doings.

The report of the County Police Magistrate for the year ending Dec. 31st., 1900, was received, and on motion of Mr. Bailey, seconded by Mr. Bryans, was referred to the standing committee on finance and assessment.

The County Stone Crusher.

On motion of Mr. G. Johnson, seconded by Mr. F. Shaver, the report of the committee in charge of the stone crusher for the year 1900 was introduced and referred to the committee on roads and bridges.

On motion of Mr. Bryans, seconded by Mr. Robertson, the report of the standing committee on county property was received read and adopted as follows:

Your committee have examined the following accounts and beg to recommend that the same be passed, viz.:

Bell Telepone Company, Court House...	$ 12.25
Light, Heat & Power Co., Court House...	37.32
Light, Heat & Power Co., Registry Office...	5.87
Water Commissioners, Court House...	9.52
A. Campbell, sundries, Court House...	12.38
E. Gregory, sundries, Court House...	4.95
McLennan & Co., sundries Court House...	12.66
Dundas & Flavelle Bros., oil cloth, gaol...	4.43
J. Boxall, repairs, etc....	19.38
Town of Lindsay, fire alarm box...	135.00

Your committee are gratified to find that the renovation and decoration of the council chamber, authorized at the November session, has been done in a highly satisfactory manner by Messrs. W. A. Goodwin & Sons. The portraits of ex-Wardens to the number of eighteen, and of the ex-Treasurers and Clerks, have been hung on the walls with a most gratifying effect, and confirming the view expressed by the Portraits Committee, appointed by last year's council, that the collection will prove of historic value. The Clerk reports that a number of ex-Wardens have not responded to the request that they should supply their portraits at their own expense. Your committee have cause to believe that the failure to do so is largely accounted for by reasons of sentiment that must be respected, and recognizing this fact, and the desirability that the portrait of no ex-Warden should be lacking, your committee would recommend that the whole expense of the undertaking be borne by the county.

Your committee recommend that the following accounts be passed:

W. A. Goodwin, work in council chamber...	$147.20
B. Cook, scaffolding, council chamber...	14.10
J. Brimmell, work in council chamber...	6.00

Your committee recommend that the chairman be authorized to ask for tenders and award contacts for fuel and other supplies at such time as he may deem most expedient in the interest of the county.

Your committee recommend chairman be authorized to make such repairs on the county buildings as he may find to be needed, and to exercise supervision of these buildings and grounds during the year.

Board of Examiners.

Moved by Mr. Shaver, seconded by Mr. Johnston, that the standing committee on appointments to office be instructed to consider and nominate a board of examiners.—Carried.

Report of Printing Committee.

On motion of Mr. Austin, seconded by Mr. Fairbairn, the report of the standing committee on printing was introduced, read and adopted without amendment.

Proposed Grants.

On motion the finance and assessment committees were instructed to consider the advisability of making a grant to the Children's Aid Society, and giving $50 to the Victoria Rifle Association.

On motion of Mr. Bailey, council then adjourned till 10 o'clock to-morrow.

FRIDAY'S PROCEEDINGS.

The county council resumed business to-day at 10 o'clock, members all present. The minutes of Thursday's proceedings were read and confirmed.

More Reports.

The reports of the Woodville and Oakwood Public Libraries were received and referred to the proper committees.

Another Deputation.

On motion of Mr. Bryans, seconded by Mr. Staback, a deputation comprising Messrs. Flavelle, Stewart and Taylor addressed the council asking that a sewer be constructed from the proposed hospital site to connect with a projected town sewer. They stated that an architect was here last summer and plans for the building had been prepared. The site chosen was on the boundary near Mr. Matthews' former residence, and no better grounds for a hospital could be desired. Mr. Ross was a busy man hence the delay, but no doubt work would commence early in the spring. The Warden assured the deputation that their request would receive careful consideration, as it was for a good cause. Referred to the committee on finance and assessment.—Carried.

Grant to Pte. Jas. Moffatt.

On motion of Mr. Shaver, seconded by Mr. Johnston, the committee on finance and assessment was instructed to consider and report on making the usual gratuity to Pte. Jas. Moffatt, one of the soldiers recently returned from South Africa.

About Bridges.

On motion of Mr. Fairbairn, seconded by Mr. Austin, the committee on roads and bridges was instructed to consider the wisdom of appointing a committee of the council to wait on the Ontario government at the next session relative to the rebuilding of the bridge over the Burnt river at Kinmount.

Moved by Mr. Austin, seconded by Mr. Fairbairn, that the committee on roads and bridges be instructed to consider the adoption of a by-law for the purpose of assuming the cost of building and maintaining all bridges within the county of Victoria being one hundred feet or over in length, also to limit the liability of cost for maintenance of boundary bridges to eighty feet in length and over.—Carried.

Brown's Bridge.

Moved by Mr. Robertson, seconded by Mr. Adams, that the committee on roads and bridges be instructed to appoint a sub-committee to have Brown's bridge, between Ops and Emily, completed.—Carried.

Appointments to Office.

Mr. Fairbairn, chairman, presented the following report, which was adopted:

Your committee have considered the resolutions of councils directing them to report as to certain appointments, and have also considered the applications referred to them, and beg to recommend as follows;

1. That David Eagleson and John Kelley be appointed auditors of County accounts.
2. That Adam E. Staback and Vincent C. Cornwall, M.D., be appointed auditors of accounts for Administration of Justice.
3. That Wellington C. Jeffers, M. D., be appointed a trustee of the Lindsay Collegiate Institute for a term of three years.
4. That Samuel R. Grandy be appointed a trustee of the Omemee High School for a term of three years.
5. That James H. Knight, Henry Reazin and John C. Harstone, be appointed a Board of Examiners.

Your committee beg leave for the introduction of a by-law to give effect to the foregoing recommendations.

In committee it was moved in amendment by Mr. Austin, seconded by Mr. Staback, that the name of Dr. Burrows be substituted for the name of Dr. Jeffers in the report. The amendment was lost.

Turned Down by Peterboro.

Mr. McNeillie informed the council that he had received a message from the Clerk of the County of Peterboro relative to the bridge over the Burnt river at Kinmount, and that the council had decided that on account of other large expenditures on bridges in that county, they could not see their way clear to assist in rebuilding the above bridge.

On motion of Dr. Wood, seconded by Mr. A. E. Staback, the report of the standing committee on education was received, read and adopted as follows:

Your committee have examined the following accounts and beg to recommend that the same be passed, viz;

Board of Examiners, expenses, Model School examination,...	$166.10
George W. Beall, stationery for Model School examination...	3.80

Your committee have considered the communication from the secretary of the Trustees' Association of Ontario, and beg to recommend that Dr. John W. Wood and John Austin esq., be appointed to represent the county of Victoria at the forthcoming meeting of the Association.

A statement of the settlement with the Board of Education of the town of Lindsay for the maintenance of County pupils at the Collegiate Institute for the year 1900 has been submitted. Under the agreement entered into with the board for a term of three years, 1900, 1901 and 1902, the amount for which the County is responsible annually is $ 2,342.16. There was received by the board in fees from County pupils, $506.00, leaving the net amount paid by the County, $1,836.16. Your committee recommend that the seettlement be approved.

On motion of Mr. Staback the council adjourned till 10.30 Saturday.

SATURDAY'S PROCEEDINGS

The county council assembled for business this morning at 1.30. Members all present. Minutes of Friday's session read and confirmed.

A Portrait of the Queen.

On motion of Mr. Fairbairn, seconded by Mr. Staback, a committee composed of Dr. Wood, Mr. Adams and the mover and seconder, was appointed to procure a portrait of our late and beloved Queen to be placed in the council chamber.

Roads and Bridges Committee.

On motion of Mr. Johnston, seconded by Mr. Bryans, the report of the standing committee on roads and bridges was received, read and adopted adopted without amendment as follows;

Your committee have examined the report of the committee who had charge of the stone crusher in the year 1900, and beg to express approval of the management and recommend that the report be re-introduced to the council.

Your committee recommend that a committee composed of the chairman of this committee, the Warden, Robert Bryans and Adam E. Staback, be appointed to control the operation of the road machinery during the current year.

Your committee have considered the resolutions of council instructing them to report on the various proposals embodied therein, and beg to recommend as follows:

1. That a committee composed of J. W. Wood, M.D., Alexander McGee and John Bailey, be appointed to examine McLeod's bridge on the Victoria road, where it forms a part of the boundary between the townships of Fenelon and Eldon, with authority to take such steps as they may deem expedient for the repairing or rebuilding of the bridge, the work to be intrusted to Mr. Bailey. Your committee deem it advisable that the same committee should examine the other bridges on the same boundary between the villages of Victoria Road and Glenarm with a view to Mr. Bailey carrying out such improvements as the committee may decide to be needed for the safety of the users of the road.
2. That William Adams and James Robertson be authorized to complete the repairs and improvements on Brown's bridge, on the boundary between the townships of Ops and Emily.
3. That the sum of one hundred dollars be granted to the township of Dalton to assist the municipality in rebuilding Kehoe's bridge across Black river, and that John Bailey, be appointed to supervise the expenditure on behalf of the county.

In considering the resolution of council relative to this bridge, the petition of Alexander Montgomery and other ratepayers of the township of Dalton has also been considered.

4. That the chairman of this committee, the Warden, Frederick Shaver and John Austin be appointed a deputation to wait on members of the government respecting the rebuilding of the bridge across the Burnt river, at Kinmount, and to ask that the work be undertaken by the province, there being, as it appears, no municipal control or responsibility.
5. That the important question of assumption by the council of all bridges within the municipalities of the county which are one hundred feet in length or over, and the limiting of the liability for maintenance of boundary bridges to structures which are eighty feet in length or over, be deferred for further consideration at the June session.

Your committee have considered the communications from the clerk and treasurer of the township of Somerville, respecting a grant made at the January session of 1900, to assist the municipality in cutting down the limestone hill on the Monck road, east of the Argue settlement. It appears that for various reasons the contemplated work has not yet been commenced. Your committee recommend that the municipality be allowed until the June session to report the expenditure of the grant made by the county, and a like amount which was voted by the local council.

Your committee recommend that the minutes of the joint meeting held at the Pigeon Creek floating bridge, relating to repairs, be filed.

Your committee recommend that the application of Mr. William McMullen for the position of foreman of the stone crusher, which has been handed to your committee, be referred to the committee in charge.

Your committee have considered the petition of the council of the united townships of Laxton, Digby and Longford, for a grant towards rebuilding certain bridges in the township of Longford, and beg to recommend that the petition be held over until the June session.

Your committee recommend that the following accounts for services in 1900 be passed, viz:

Wm. Kennedy, inspection, Talbot river bridge, Eldon and Thorah...	$12.00
George A. Avery, towing timber for Coboconk bridge.	2.50

Your committee have given earnest consideration to the documents transmitted by the Municipal Good Roads Association, and especially to the questions submitted in relation to the proposed legislation under which government aid would be granted for the improvement of leading highways throughout the province. Your committee quote the questions and recommend that they be answered in the terms following them:

Question 1. "If aid is to be granted, should county councils designate the roads to be improved and supervise the construction, or would you prefer some other method?" Answer. The designation and supervision should be entrusted to the county councils.

Question 2. "Would you favor the cost of constructing the road to be divided between the government and the county, or between the government, county and local municipality through which the road passes?" Answer. Between the government and the county.

Question 3. "Where roads are built by government and county, what would you recommend regarding statute labor on lands adjoining such roads?" Answer. The control should be left in the power of the local councils.

Question 4. "Would you favor allowing counties to apply a portion of their government grant for road purposes to the purchase of improved road-making machinery?" Answer. Yes.

Question 5. "Have you any other suggestions of a general character to offer?" Answer. No.

Report of Stone Crusher Committee.

On motion of Mr. Johnston, seconded by Mr. Shaver, the report of the stone crusher committee was introduced, read and adopted.

Finance and Assessment Committee.

On motion by Mr. Staback, seconded by Dr. Wood, the report of the committee on finance and assessment was received, read and adopted without amendment as follows;

Your committee have examined the certificate of the County Clerk shewing the result of the vote on the question of the erection of a House of Refuge, which was submitted to the municipal electors of the county at the municipal elections held on the 7th day of January, inst. There was a majority of 738 in the negative. Your committee recommend that the certificate be printed in the minutes.

Your committee have examined the treasurer's statements shewing the moneys at the credit of the corporation on the 31st day of December, 1901; the current liabilities and available assets, Jan. 1st, 1901; and an abstract statement of the receipts and expenditures for the year 1900. The statement of liabilities and assets exhibits a deficit of $670.58.

Your committee have considered the resolution of council, instructing them to report on the proposals contained therein, and beg to recommend as follows:

1. That further consideration of the application made by a deputation that waited on the council relative to the construction of a sewer for the purpose of the hospital to be established for the county by a generous donor be deferred until the June session, with the assurance that whatever method may be finally adopted in assisting the promoters, the establishment of the hospital appeals strongly to the earnest interest and support of the council.
2. That the sum of one hundred dollars be granted to the North Victoria Agricultural Society to assist in making improvements on the premises owned by the Society.
3. That the sum of fifty dollars be granted to each of the Public Libraries in the county.
4. That the sum of twenty-five dollars be granted to the Children's Aid Society.
5. That the sum of twenty-five dollars each be granted to the East and West Victoria Farmers' Institutes.
6. That the usual gratuity be paid to Private James Moffatt, one of the volunteers to South Africa.
7. That the sum of fifty dollars be granted to the Victoria Rifle Association.

Your committee recommend that the report of the County Police Magistrate be filed.

Your committee recommend that the Registrar's return of fees and emoluments for the year 1900 be filed.

Your committee have considered the communications referred to them and beg to recommend as follows:

1. That no action be taken respecting amendments to the Municipal Act in relation to hawkers and pedlars, proposed by the draft petition transmitted by the Clerk of the County of Norfolk.
2. That no action be taken respecting changes in the jury system, as proposed by the draft petition transmitted by the Clerk of the county of Dufferin.
3. That no action be taken respecting various amendments in the Municipal Act, as proposed by the draft petition transmitted by the clerk ~~of the~~ county of Waterloo.
4. That the application for a grant made by the secretary-treasurer of the Victoria Rifle Association, be filed, the matter having been disposed of under a resolution of the council.
5. That no action be taken in supporting a bounty for the promotion of the cultivation of the sugar beet as requested by the secretary of the Ontario Beet Sugar Association.
6. That the sum of fifty dollars be granted to the Sick Children's Hospital, Toronto.
7. That the sum of ten dollars be granted to the Prisoners' Aid Association, of Toronto.
8. That the sum of twenty-five dollars be granted to the Lindsay Law Association.
9. That the treasurer be instructed to subscribe for thirteen copies of the Municipal World for the years 1901 and 1902, respectively, one to be mailed to each member of the council and to the county clerk.
10. That the support of an indigent man named McCullough be not undertaken by the council, the township of Ops and Mariposa being, as it appears, the municipalities directly interested.
11. That no grant be made to the Ontario Rifle Association.
12. That the communications from Messrs. J. S. Russell and George W. Hall, architects, respecting plans for a House of Refuge, be filed.
13. That the communication from William Steers, esq., Police Magistrate of the town of Lindsay, relative to the report adopted by the council at the November session, as to his action in committing four boys to the Industrial School at Mimico, be filed.
14. That the statements of moneys paid to the county treasurer in the year 1900, transmitted by the treasurer of the united counties of Northumberland and Durham and the treasurer of the town of Lindsay, be placed in the hands of the auditors, as directed by the statute.
15. That the report of the Manager of the Bank of Montreal of the amount at the credit of the treasurer on Dec. 31st, 1900, be filed.
16. That the communications from the clerks of the united counties of Northumberland and Durham, the counties of Hastings, Oxford, Grey and Lennox and Addington, respecting the address of His Honor Judge Dean on the subjects of Courts and Juries, be filed. It is gratifying to know that a majority of the replies are favorable to the proposed changes in the branch of jurisdiction indicated.

Reports have been submitted from the North and South Victoria Agricultural Societies; the East and West Victoria Farmers' Institutes; the Public Libraries of Kinmount, Fenelon Falls, Oakwood, Woodville and Bobcaygeon, and the Victoria Rifle Association.

Your committee have further considered the case of a woman whose maintenance was assumed by the council in November until this session. As the municipality on which she might have claim for support cannot be ascertained, your committee see no other course open to them than to recommend that the woman, who is a Mrs. Irvine, be maintained at the expense of the county.

Your committee recommend payment of accounts for services and disbursements as nominating officers, as follows;

W. F. O'Boyle, 2nd Div....	$13.06
R. J. Grandy, 3rd Div....	16.00
Geo. W. Taylor, 4th Div....	13.25

As an evidence of the large scale on which Arch Campbell transacts business, we may state that he received Friday a carload of gem jars for next summer's preserving operations. COMMUNICATIONS

Ti Kaison and Street Lighting.

(To the Editor of The Post.)

Dear Sir,—Lately there has been much talk in connection with the proposed new town hall, and it seems to me that the time is ripe for a little talk about the proposed new system of lighting the streets, and such like. The only difference is the extra expense of the company, the extra power and the better light we would get for the money. Now, I know the boys will say, "Let the Ti Kaison and Trent Valley Power Co. alone, they are doing their best to kill its usefulness."

I did say that some people voted for the Ti Kaison and that we would be stuck up at the company, and I am rightly enough, and I am sorry I voted for it last night. Only Post will see this letter and I protested against the company, as its condemnation contract with them before it is made, and then got a letter from the manager of the company to show that Mr. Gilleglyn's composition was not a fair one. He says that Toronto gets twice as many nights as we do, who is he known to, or how do know that our contract calls for 200 nights. Why, I understand that much in proportion for an oil night service as they get for half the nights and the reason is obvious; the plant is installed, the money is invested, the light is on hand, the power is there, and it costs very little more to run all night. Speaking from memory, I think the difference is the company's offer between an oil night and half night and an all night is about $100 a year, and we must rather and go to show that even in winter to get a rap at the company.

All members of the lighting committee are property-owners and ratepayers, and interest is equally with the welfare of this town as Ti Kaison.—Yours, etc.,

Error Piled Upon Error.

(To the Editor of The Post.)

Dear Sir,—Allowing that I have lapsed into so many errors in his letter of yesterday, 24th inst., that I feel called upon to correct them. Says I have paid $2,000 e.p. during the whole night and every night, for 800." Ti Kaison is misinformed, as company pays for these lamps $7182. He says again, "The L. H. & P. Co. of Lindsay, offered to give the town 1500 c.p. lamps for half the night on the dark nights, or more than double the power we get now, again he is wrong. The L.H. & P. Co. offered these lamps every night, for two moonlight nights and all and half in May, which is one hour longer than half the night. Ti Kaison says again, "For an honest comparison you must make things equal; $45 for half the night means $90 for the whole night." This is also wrong. The exact same capital will install and equip a plant that shows light the whole night, as one that shows light half the night, and the same amount of labor will keep the line and the lamps in repair, and each line. The same the lamps, and each line. The only difference is the extra expense of the company, the extra power and the better light we would get for the money. Now, I know the boys will say, "Let the Ti Kaison and Trent Valley Power Co. alone, they are doing their best to kill its usefulness."

The Street Lighting Contract and Municipal Ownership.

(To the Editor of The Post.)

Mr. Editor,—I am not surprised at some members of the council wanting to keep the reporters away from the committee meetings after reading the report of Tuesday evening's meeting in the Post, and some members of council who are so angry that they never thought of. My own remarks, for instance, if it reported I said that the people didn't know enough to give an intelligent vote. So one with an ounce of common sense would make such a remark. What I did say was that the question of municipal ownership of a lighting plant had not been sufficiently submitted at that time, as the ratepayers had not given the matter enough consideration to enable them to give an intelligent vote, and I think I am right. Mr. Southern made just the same remark the night of nomination, and I am sure no one took it as an insult. So a majority of the town is more in favor of municipal ownership than I am; no one worked harder than I did to induce the town to own the Waterworks system, and if that plant at the Falls was for sale at what I consider a fair price I would say buy it, but it is not for sale just now. If the company is producing electricity by steam I would go in at once for a municipal power plant, but if we can make a fair deal with the company I will not vote for a steam plant to run in opposition to that water power at the Falls, and I hope of being able to purchase the Falls power at a fair price in the future, because I believe that is the power that will do the lighting of this town in the future.

I may add, for the benefit of the town of Orillia is making use of the steep electric power, that Gooderham's mill ponds back there as a lever to bring manufactories to that town. Our company have brought this power into Lindsay, and some of our citizens taking hold of it and helping the company to make the most of it, they are doing their best to kill its usefulness.

I did say that some people voted for the Ti Kaison and that we would be stuck up at the company, and I am rightly enough, and I am sorry I voted for it last night. The Street Lighting Contract and Municipal Ownership.

(To the Editor of The Post.)

Sir,—Although I profess to be a municipal ownerer, my past experience as councillor and alderman, as well as the material interest I have in the welfare of the town, justifies me in saying a few words on this most important question.

After a great deal of agitation for and against the town and the L. H. P. Co.—without results—the council of last year, with all the best of intention that should get and can only get of a municipal ownerer, operated street lighting plant, decided to place the matter before the electors and to be guided by the will of the ratepayers of the public. Had the oil contract been entered into, the ratepayers of the electors, yes, and by a vote of over three to one, in favor of a municipal plant. I am a radic they would have taken kindly to a municipal power plant, but if we can make a fair deal with the company I will not vote for a steam plant to run in opposition to that water power at the Falls, and I hope of being able to purchase the Falls power at a fair price in the future, because I believe that is the power that will do the lighting of this town in the future.

The exact same capital will install and equip a plant that shows light the whole night, as one that shows light half the night, and the same amount of labor will keep the line and the lamps in repair, and each line. The only difference is the extra expense of the company, the extra power and the better light we would get for the money. Now, I know the boys will say, "Let the Ti Kaison and Trent Valley Power Co. alone, they are doing their best to kill its usefulness."

Affection

Exhales from children as fragrance from flowers. The little lips are always puckered to give or take a kiss. In homes where there are children, love reaches its fairest and sweetest proportions. In childless homes the kiss of wife and husband grows formal, and presently is neglected; the springs of love in the heart become choked for want of use and exercise. Childlessness is a great sorrow to many women. It is like a curse from Nature, who bids all creatures to be fruitful. It is not a curse but a misfortune. Often the conditions which cause childlessness are removable. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has brought joy to many a woman by giving her the happiness of motherhood. It gives to the womanly organs vigor and vitality, removes local obstructions, and practically does away with the pains and pangs of maternity.

There is no alcohol or narcotic in "Favorite Prescription."

"I have never written you how grateful I am to you for your help in securing good health and one of the sweetest, dearest, thirteen pound girls that ever came into a home," writes Mrs. M. Vastine, of 617 South Liberty St., Galesburg, Ill. "I took six bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, four of the 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and four vials of 'Pleasant Pellets.' Before I had taken four bottles of the 'Favorite Prescription' I was a new woman. I cannot make pen describe my heart-felt gratitude."

To keep the bowels regular use Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

CANNOT WIN THE TROPHY

OUR HOCKEY BOYS SHUT OUT LAST MONDAY.

Their Defeat by Peterboro Intermediates was a Disappointmemt to a Large Crowd of Well-wishers.

About 400 enthusiastic lovers of hockey gathered at the rink last Monday evening to witness the match between the Peterboro Intermediate team and the local seven. The game was fast and exciting, and was entirely free from roughness, although some severe checking was done. It was the return game of the second round of the Intermediate series of the O.H.A. and as the visitors had two goals to their credit by the match a week ago in Peterboro, our boys were determined if possible to win the round, but unfortunately for Lindsay their opponents came on the ice with almost a new outfit, and as a result were able to trim our boys to the tune of 7-3. The ice was in the pink of condition for swift play, and the large crowd of spectators saw a first-class exhibition. Mr. Hugh Jack, of Parkdale, refereed the game with great impartialty, giving entire satisfaction to all.

The visitors played a maginificent combination, and their checking and lifting proved a feature. Lynch, on their forward line, is a dandy; being fast and a straight shot he kept the Lindsay goal in danger on many occasions. Parnell got in some nice work, and was well supported by Morgan and Watt. Their defence was almost impregnable. Cavanagh at cover-point is a brilliant player, and Glover is equally as good. His rushes and checking were excellent and Comstock at goal displayed some wonderful skill.

The Lindsay boys put up a good game at times, especially in the last half. Their combination was pretty and many a time Peterboro's goal was stormed, but the boys had bad luck—they were unable to score when the opportunity presented itself. Too much cannot be said of Callaghan—although suffering from a sore knee he played an excellent game, and being an expert stick handler he bothered the visitors considerable. Parkin, Taylor, Hartley and Martin, of the forward line, got in some good play; they did some hard checking and their combination and rushes were exceptionally good. Knight at point put up a good game and stopped many a hot shot. His lifting was not as good as usual although he worked hard. Burke at goal made some brilliant stops.

The puck was faced off at 8.30,, and for a short time much excitement prevailed, when Peterboro scored amidst great cheering from the Peterboro rooters. Lynch did the trick in a rush and shoot. Hard play followed after this brilliant combination work being much in evidence. Constant rushes were made by the Lindsay forwards, but Peterboros defence proved hard to overcome. Our boys would be relieved of the rubber and then a hot scramble would take place. Peterboro would rush it to Lindsay's goal, only to meet with some difficulty at the hands of Knight and Callaghan in scoring. That kind of play continued for several minutes, but finally the visitors scored their second goal. When the bell sounded for half-time they had 5 goals to their credit; while Lindsay had none. Shortly after resuming play Lynch scored for the visitors on a daisy shot, and immediately following that Callaghan performed a brilliant feat by putting the puck through Peterboro nets by a magnificent shot from centre ice. When Call. shoots, the boys fly, as the puck is sure to go. The next goal went to Lindsay by a scrimmage, and things were commencing to look more favorable for the locals. Shortly after this Lynch, by fast play, added another for Peterboro, and the next went to Lindsay, but the visitors managed to add one more game before time was up, making the score 7-3.

During the second half the Peterboro boys scored one, which was not credited owing to an off-side. Peterboro are the winners of the round by 6 goals, and will now play Port Hope for the championship of the Midland district.

The teams lined up as follows: Peterboro — Goal, Comstock; point, Glover; cover-point, Cavanagh; forwards, Lynch, Morgan, Watt and Parnell. Lindsay — Goal Burke; point, Knight; cover-point Callaghan; forwards, Parkin, Hartley, Taylor and Martin. Time-keepers — W. English and H. Knowlson. Goal Umpires—Mr. McPherson and Dr. Walters.

SLAYTON JUBILEE SINGERS.

Delightful Entertainment Under Y. M C. A. Auspices.

The third of the Y. M. C. A. concerts, given by the Slayton Jubilee Singers last Tuesday night, in the Academy of Music, was one of the most enjoyable entertments of the season. The old plantation melodies always have a charm, and more especially so when delivered as only the colored folks can—there is a peculiar tone color, a heartiness about the singing, that is possessed only by the negro. How they do enter it to the spirit and fun of the old plantation melodies, which are so admirably adapted for their voices!

Every seat in the Academy was occupied, and the large audience seemed thoroughly appreciative, if the applause is any criterion, for encores again and again were demanded and responded to. One of the best features was the mimicry of birds, etc., by Mr. Washington; he was the most clever in that has ever visited this town. Mr. Tutt, the comedian, convulsed the audience with his funny antics. His singing and acting in "Old Black Joe" was the gem of the evening. Mr. Helm was the manager, and announced the various numbers from the stage. The work of the company was excellent, and gave evidence of training and culture.

The reference to the death of Her Majesty Queen Victoria by one of the company, previous to the entertainment, was timely and appropriate. Tak n altogether, the entertainment was charming, and we hope to have another visit f om the company next season.

C. M B. A. Entertainment.

The members of C.M.B.A. Branch 77, Lindsay, gave a very successful entertainment last Friday in their rooms in the Parish Hall. Fully 200 people were present by 8 o'clock, when the program commenced. The President and chairman, Mr. W. F. O'Boyle, delivered a short address, after which followed some well rendered vocal and instrumental selections. Instrumentals were given by the Misses Cairns, violin and piano, and the Misses N. M. O'Boyle also violin and piano. Mr. C. Podger, who is always popular, contributed some banjo selections, assisted by Mr. Robt. Spratt on the mouth organ. The vocal selections were well given by Miss A. Duffus, Messrs. E. Gillogly and W. Steers, Mr. Walter Cain, Separate School principal, contributed a well-written essay, for which he received well-merited applause. The gramaphone selections given by Mr. Mulvaney, were pronounced the best ever heard in town. His gramaphone is a new and up-to-date one and the selections were very distinctly heard. Mr. C. Podger contributed some very humorous songs, which were thoroughly enjoyed. At the conclusion of the program the chairman addressed a few words to those present, thanking them for their attendance, after which the national anthem, "God Save the King," brought the successful and pleasant evening to a close.

RENEWED VIGOR

BROUGHT ABOUT THROUGH THE USE OF DR WILLIAMS PINK PILLS.

Mrs. Peter Beamer Tells how These Pills Released her from Years of Neuralgic Pains After Doctors' and Other Medicines had Failed.

Among the best known and most respected residents of the township of Gainsboro, Lincoln County, Ont., are Mr. and Mrs. Peter Beamer. For a long time Mrs. Beamer was the victim of a complication of diseases which made her life one of almost constant misery, and from which she nearly despaired of obtaining relief. To a reporter who recently interviewed her, Mrs. Beamer gave the following particulars of her illness and ultimate cure: For some nine years I was troubled with a pain in the back, and neuralgia, which caused me unspeakable misery. The pain in my back was so bad that whether sitting or lying down, I suffered more or less torture. My appetite left me, and I suffered from headaches accompanied by attacks of dizziness that left me at times too weak to walk. My nervous system was badly shattered, so that the slightest noise would startle me, and my sleep at night was broken by sheer exhaustion. I was under the care of three different doctors at various times, but did not succeed in getting more than the merest temporary relief. I also used several advertised medicines, but with no better results. I was finally urged to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and got half a dozen boxes. In the course of a few weeks I noted considerable improvement, and as a consequence, I gladly continued the use of the pills for several months, with the result that every symptom of the malady left me, and I was able to do my housework without the least trouble. As several years have passed since I have used the pills, I feel safe in saying that the cure is permanent, and the result also verifies the claim that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure when other medicine fails." The reporter can only add that Mrs. Beamer's present condition indicates a state of perfect health, and speaks louder than mere words can do, the benefit these pills have been to her.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have restored more weak and ailing women and girls to robust health than any other medicine ever discovered, which in part accounts for their popularity throughout the world. These pills are sold by all dealers or may be had by mail at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, by addressing the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

—Dr. Giles, of Haliburton, Warden of the County for several years, has retired from municipal life, and takes with him the credit of having managed affairs so successfully as to have relieved the county of a large and burdensome debt. Mr. Thos. Graham, reeve of Monmouth, is the new Warden.

Local Brevities.

—The estate of the late Sir Frank Smith will approximate $1,500,000, and the province will benefit largely by the succession duties.

—Notwithstanding the numerous applications for vacancies, school teachers are so scarce in Muskoka that Inspector Day cannot get enough to fill the schools.

—The only fraternal order the Queen ever joined was that of the Ancient Order of Foresters. She was a member of Court Victoria 8,100, Islington, London, Eng., which is largely composed of office, laundry and shop girls.

—Midland Free Press: Mr. Wm. Steers, barrister, of Lindsay, represented Midland at the hearing of foreshore applications at Ottawa on Friday last. Mr. Steers was sent because he is said to have a thorough knowledge of the matter in hand.

—Mr. John Carew had 150 men on his wage list for some months last summer, and an average of slightly over 100 for a period of over seven months. To-day he is paying good wages to 125 men engaged in taking out logs for the coming season's mill run; ten years ago his pay-sheet bore the names of only seven men. Would that we had a dozen citizens of the same stamp.

—A peculiar accident is reported by the Huntsville Forester. Two young men were out shooting and their canoe upset. A shot-gun went to the bottom, and was recovered by means of grappling-hooks. As the owner took hold of the gun to lift it into the boat, the weapon went off, and the charge tore a deep hole through the right arm, badly lacerating the muscles.

—A case of great interest to men who work in the lumber woods was tried at Gravenhurst the other day, when a man named McDonald sued Playfair & Co., of Midland, for wages due him. The plaintiff had been hired at $26 per month, and having left before the time agreed on the company paid into court a sum representing $20 per month, they alleging he was only entitled to "jumpers' wages." The judge ruled against the company.

—It has long been the custom for indulgent mothers to do the family washing and baking while their daughters thumped the piano in the parlor for the edification of callow youths, and pretty soon the old folks will have to do all the work. At Barrie the other day a 19 year old youngster named Robt. Scott appeared before the Magistrate, charged with having attempted to commit suicide by hanging. When questioned as to his reasons for wishing to solve the great mystery he said his father had compelled him to get up and light the fire, and had threatened him with punishment for smashing a stove lid. Truly the Chinese are old-fashioned and have no place in 20th century civilization. They still reverence their parents and elders.

ARTHUR COLEY LIVES.

Not Dead, as Many of his Friends Thought he would be.

Swan Lake, Man., Jan. 28. — A young man is living here to-day whom many people in and about Somerset, Man., no doubt think to be in the grave. His name is Arthur Coley, and when he left Somerset in 1894 he was in the last stages of Bright's Disease and Diabetes. "Many will be surprised, I am sure, to find that I am alive," says Mr. Coley, "for I was utterly prostrated with Bright's Disease and Diabetes."

"I did not expect to live. Now I am able thankfully to say that pain and weakness are unknown to me. I am a farmer, and can now do as hard a day's work as anyone, whereas before using Dodd's Kidney Pills I was given up to die with Bright's Disease and Diabetes. This was in 1894. I am well to-day. Dodd's Kidney Pills saved my life. They cure to stay cured."

The Large Exhibitions Advantageous.

The old question, whether exhibitions are of ultimate advantage to a locality or not, has been revived in an American serial, and it may reasonably asked whether anyone has ever figured out the real benefits accruing to a city through the exhibition? "How did Philadelphia gain by the Centennial? What material aid did the World's Fair give Chicago?" asks the writer. It was indeed said not ten years ago that Philadelphia had not then "recovered" from the enervating effects of the exhibition and Chicago people do not talk enthusiastically of the consequences of the recent "Fair." The question might be asked over a more extended area and Toronto and other places have something to say in reply. The recent Paris Exhibition ruined hundreds who had paid extortionate prices for privileges, and there are no reports of any great good done to the city or State; rather, if anything, the reverse. The "Great Exhibition" in London in 1852, which was to be the harbinger of universal peace, love and domestic prosperity, and wasn't, seems to have been one of the most successful on record. It was open 144 days, in which period it was visited by over 6,000,000 people. After all expenses were paid there remained a balance of $750,000. The "exhibition question" may yet become one call for more consideration from the economic standpoint than it has yet received.

THE C. E. AND S. S. MEET

THE ANNUAL CONVENTION OF THE ABOVE ORGANIZATIONS.

Sessions Held in Cambridge St. Methodist Church—Able Addresses and Excellent Papers—Officers for the Ensuing Year—Resolutions.

The twenfieth century union convention of Victoria County Union of C. E. and S. S. Associations opened on Thursday afternoon, January 24th, at two o'clock, at Cambridge St. Methodist church, the president of the S. S. Association, Mr. W. J. Hitchon, of Bobcaygeon, in the chair. The devotional exercises were conducted by the vice-president, Rev. T. Langford, B. D. The reports of township associations were given, followed by an interesting paper by Miss Grace Robinson, Bobcaygeon, on "Primary Work." An able address was given by Mr. R. J. McLaughlin on "Some Points of Emphasis in Our Sunday School Work." Young men, he said, should guard against an atheistic and materialistic belief. The rational opinion of parents as to sending their children to S. S. and also giving a proper training at home, were emphasized. "The S. S. and Worldly Amusements" was well discussed by Rev. J. R. Stillwell, B.A., late of India. The world for Christ in this generation and the onward movement at the present age, and great results would follow if the Bible would be taught aright to the rising generation.

The officers were elected for the coming year as follows: President, Rev. L. S. Hagmen, B. D., Lindsay; vice-pres., Mr. L. McKee, Little Britain; sec.-treas., Mrs. Birchard, Linden Valley; and presidents of township associations together with six councillors, Mr. R. J. McLaughlin, Lindsay, Rev. J. R. Robinson, Little Britain, Mr. W. W. Jarvis, Lindsay, Mr. N. F. Black, Lindsay, Rev. J. McD. Duncan, Woodville, Rev. R. H. Leitch, Fenelon Falls.

The Evening Session.

This session was held upstairs, the organ above and auditorium being nicely decorated with flags and bunting. A good program being suspended across the above. A picture of Queen Victoria, draped in black, was placed in front of the platform which was covered with a large Union Jack.

After devotional exercises Rev. W. H. Kannawin, of Omemee, delivered an able and informing address on "The Bible in the Twentieth Century." The Bible, he said, was the greatest book in the present century—a divine library—containing the purest of poetry, the purest history—as it was written from an unprejudiced point of view—sublimest biography and deepest philosophy. The only book that deals with the problems of life, that goes beyond the well and tells us of immortality. Mr. E. Sackville-Griffin read a song, "Blest," with good expression. Rev. T. Manning followed with a helpful address on "The Work of the S. S." He pointed out the necessity of inspiring knowledge in the teachers, and those who grew up by honor or dishonor, patronage or pay, passed through the S. S. and day schools. Early impressions for good are ineradicable from the mind. Build up character as the one thing invaluable for the individual for the nation.

FRIDAY'S PROCEEDINGS.

C. E. day opened with a helpful earnest prayer meeting in the Y. M. C. A. rooms, led by Mr. H. J. Wood, Bobcaygeon, vice-pres. Y. M. C. A. At 9.30 the morning session opened, the president, Mr. W. A. Leigh, in the chair. Reports of officers and delegates were given. The report of the secretary, Miss E. J. Levey, showed a marked increase in new societies during the year. Miss A. Fasken, of Kirkfield, junior superintendent, gave an excellent paper on "Junior Endeavor: its field and work." The central thought was the importance of early training in the home and schools for usefulness in God's vineyard. This was followed by an able address on "Twentieth Century Missions," by Rev. A. E. Leigh, B. A., of Dunsford. God is moving on, he said. No such great work for Christ existed in years, no such door has ever been opened to the church. The spread of the missionary ideas we've cardinal principles, and the 1903 Valuing human souls at an infinite worth, informing ourselves as to our actual needs, avoiding all putting of stumbling blocks in the way, watching opportunity to do good unto all, preaching Christ crucified as our one theme, inspiring confidence by a Christlike life, establishing schools for Christian education, watching over and training native converts, raising up a native ministry for service, translating the Holy Scriptures into the vernacular, cultivating prayerand self-culture in piety, surrendering self unreservedly to God and service.

The afternoon session opened at 2.15. "The Soul-Saver Outfit" was helpfully discussed under four heads: "Sympathy," by Miss J. Campbell, Woodville; "Prayer," by Rev. C. F. Hopkins, Little Britain; "Bible Knowledge," by L. E. Hughes, B.A.; "Prayer," by Miss E. A. Pogue, Reaboro; "Two very instructive papers followed on "The C. E. Covenant." "What it means for the Young Life," by Mr. Wm. Stevens, Lindsay, "What it means for the Society," by Mr. W. Suggett, Valentia. "What it means for the Church," was ably discussed by Rev. J. E. Robson, of Little Britain, and Rev. R. H. Leitch, of Fenelon Falls.

The Evening Session

opened at eight o'clock. The devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. T. Manning, B.A. The choir led the service of song. Miss E. A. Pogue, assistant secretary, (due to the illness of the secretary, Miss E. J. Levey), read the report of the nominating committee, as follows: President, Mr. E. E. Allen, Bobcaygeon; president, Miss Libbie Smith, Little Britain; secretary, Miss E. A. Pogue, Reaboro; assistant secretary, Miss I. Matthews, Lindsay; editor, Miss E. Wood, Kirkfield; treasurer, Miss J. Wilson, Fenelon Falls; junior superintendent, Mr. J. Morgan, Omemee; directors, Mr. W. A. Leigh, Miss E. Duncan, Miss E. J. Levey, Lindsay, Miss J. Campbell, Woodville. The President-elect, Mr. J. E. Allen, returned thanks for the honor conferred.

At this point the resignations of Mr. W. A. Leigh read a telegram from Mr. S. J. Duncan-Clark, of Toronto, who had been announced to address the convention, expressing his regret at being unable to attend, owing to illness in his home. Miss E. Duncan gave an admirable address on "Rev. C. M. Sheldon as the Prophet of Convention," being a thorough review of his address "The Open Door." The address emphasized the importance of Endeavorers taking advantage of the open door of opportunity afforded to them in all relations of life—social, political, national and spiritual, and also of the part to be taken in the great reforms. Miss E. Fee favored the audience with a well-rendered solo.

The executive of the C. E. were indeed fortunate in securing Mr. S. J. Hardy, B. A.—so well informed in C. E. work, being associated with the Provincial society of C. E. as secretary for a number of years—to give the address on "Christ and Our Work." The address was filled with facts and figures of much importance to the C. E. worker especially. He reviewed the growth of the Society from a little seedling to an honored president, Rev. F. B. Clark, D. D., as the William Lloyd Garrison, Dr. Ross, on February 2nd, 1881. The marvellous growth has been unprecedented by any like organization. In nearly all parts of the world Christian Endeavor are familiar words, and its benefits to young people cannot be estimated. Millions are now enrolled under its banner. The speaker then referred to some of the disappointments met with since organization. Denominational societies had come into prominence, and in some cases the young people's society had almost entirely from the C. E. into the denominational society. Many of the social boards and pastors had not recognized the movement as a distinct and powerful power in the church, but he trusted the day would come when such prejudice would prevail. The C. E. has done much in bringing out talents in the young people of the land, as well as bringing them into closer touch with church and Sunday-school work.

The report of the committee on resolutions was read by Rev. A. W. Hunter, of Bobcaygeon, containing expressions of grief on the death of Her Majesty, Queen Victoria, and the extending thanks to the managers of the church, Mr. Hitchon, ministers for entertaining delegates, the various committees, and to the retiring officers.

Rev. A. J. H. Sirike, pastor of Queen-st. Methodist church, conducted the consecration service with much acceptance, and the last session closed with a rousing meeting brought to a close by singing "God be with you till we meet again" and the national anthem.

Fish Poachers Fined.

Three men named Logue, McPherson and Maltey were summoned before County Magistrate Deacon last Tuesday at Omemee, to answer to a charge of illegal fishing. The informations were laid by Fishery Overseer Brady, Omemee, and the evidence showed the fact that the accused had seared moonlight and set nets. They were fined $10 and $3.72 costs each. Other convictions will be reported later. The Post will publish the names of all parties found guilty of illegal fishing, as the Provincial Warden so recommends, hoping that it will be a powerful deterrent.

HANDSOME COUNCIL CHAMBER.

Now in Use—Concerts Now Have Pleasant Surroundings—Mr. Will Goodwin, our Local Decorator, Scores a Success.

At the November session of the County Council it was decided to have the chamber put into habitable shape. The matter was left in the hands of Coun. Jas. Graham and Treasurer McNeillie, who, after consulting Mr. Will E. Goodwin, our local decorator, decided to have the walls and ceiling tinted with "Muralite," a new sanitary wall coating, the decoration to be done with fresco stencil work.

The ceiling is done in a light cream tint, with an all-over floral design in deep cream and white. The handsome cornice is done in white, relieved with a few touches of blue and terra-cotta tipped with gold. There are beautiful panels in all corner pieces stencilled with terra-cotta tint, and connected with a light design in the same tint. Then comes a heavy plaster panel moulding, which is tin ed in cream and terra-cotta, with two gold beads and a band of light blue, with a deep blue design on it. The large ceiling panel is artistically panelled with harmonic ny colors. Below the cove is a heavy cornice tinted cream and relieved with terra-cotta tints, having a nice inch and a half moulding. Under the cornice is a 4 inch picture moulding, then an artistic drop design for the frieze. Above the stencilled frieze is also a stencilled design.

The walls are done in a light terra-cotta tone and stippled, and make a harmonious background for the fine portraits of the past Wardens, which the council have recently procured, the portraits of past Wardens and Reeves Hon. S. C. Wood and the late Thos. Mattchett being hung on each side of the Warden's chair. The woodwork has also received its share of attention, after 40 years' service it is now turned in light quartered oak and varnished. New window shades are placed on the five large windows. In all the council chamber is now in an up-to-date condition, and reflects much credit upon the decorators and the executive of the County Council.

G. T. R. MAY GIVE TROUBLE.

Company Demand Concessions in connection with the Spurier Switch which the Council will not Concede.

A meeting of the Council of Bobcaygeon held Saturday evening in the clerk's office, at which all members of council were present except Deputy-Reeve Hopkins and Mr. Paton, G.T.R. station agent.

The meeting had been called to deal with a request made some time ago by the G.T.R. Co. through Supt. Tiffin of Peterboro, that the town grant to the company in perpetuity a certain strip of land adjoining the tracks in Victoria Avenue, and adjacent to the portion occupied by the switch leading to the Spurier seed pea warehouse, towards the cost of widening the street, the year's council granted the sum of $175 for the same purpose, Mr. J. E. Southerna and Mr. Flavelle, of the Board of Trade.

Councillor Hopkins, by means of a plan, made the council aware of the extent of the G.T.R. demand, and explained that if granted the company could fence their property on the avenue, and the town had relinquished its rights.

Mr. Tiffin's Telegram.

Followed a few days after, and of the telegram from Supt. Tiffin laid before the committee he made it clear to interview with Messrs. Southerna and Flavelle.

Allandale, Oct. 19, 1900.

A. M. Paton, Lindsay.

Cost Mr. Spurier's siding—cash payment $175, at interest $100. Land not already comprised owned siding. Had parallelling present track on Victoria avenue to be conveyed to the Railway Company. The town to maintain the planking on the track across avenue. All subject to approval of the management. If satisfactory send formal application immediately. Advise Mr. Southerna.

W. R. TIFFIN.

Board of Works Decline.

Following is a copy of the resolution passed by the board of works at the meeting in question:

Present, Mayor Smyth, and Messrs. Graham, Hopkins, Crandell, Hogg, and Gillogly; in the absence of the mayor Mr. Graham took the chair and presided and first read a resolution from the board of the G.T.R. requesting the G.T.R. to build a switch for the use of the company on the south side of Russell-st., crossing Victoria avenue at the intersection of Colborne-st., so as to connection with siding on south side of Victoria avenue, instead of from the north, as granted in the year 1899 on the last, submitted to this committee, and to convey to the Railway Company in perpetuity for the purpose, as asked for in Mr. Tiffin's telegram dated 19th inst.

Every member of the committee, after hearing the full explanation of the proposed resolution, expressed the opinion that they could not, and more than they could, approve by the resolution should be granted, and a resolution to that effect, moved by Aldermen Jackson and Blackler was carried unanimously.

Ald. Jackson—When Supt. Tiffin inspected the site of the switch he said it was unsuitable and hoped that Mr. Spurier would choose another site, but there was no commission in it for the board to do, and he, for one, did not trouble.

Solicitor Hopkins was asked to be very careful in drawing up the resolution prepared to be passed entirely by the resolution, and to assume no liability for planking the crossing.

Mr. Paton—"All right, gentlemen, you'll see the switch locked up inside of a week or I'm mistaken."

The Post's Christmas Supplement is a beauty. It will be given free to prompt paying subscribers paying in December and January.—wtf.

WEDDING BELLS.

Thompson—Greenway.

At 8 o'clock Thursday morning a quiet wedding took place at the residence of Mr. J. Jenkins, the principals being Mr. W. J. Greenway and Miss Nellie Thompson, both of Little Britain. Rev. S. S. Ferguson officiated. After the ceremony the happy couple left for Toronto.

Hamilton—Bradburn.

Wednesday afternoon, Jan. 23rd, quite a fashionable wedding took place at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. James Hamilton, when their eldest daughter, Alice Isabella, was married to Mr. R. H. Bradburn, of Peterboro, are of the late Thomas Bradburn. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. W. Manning in the presence of only the immediate friends of both families.

The bride was attired in a gown of crepe de chine trimmed with lace and worn over an underdress of pink; she carried a shower bouquet of white roses. Her travelling gown was of brown cloth, trimmed with applique of white cloth embroidered in brown and with brown and green silk. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Lizzie, whose pretty costume of pink, the bride's, she carried a bouquet of pink roses. Miss Jinnie Gillogly, maid of honour, was dressed very becomingly in a white silk dress, accordion pleated. Miss Lizzy played the wedding march. The groomsman was Mr. W. Ball, of Peterboro. Mr. and Mrs. Bradburn left on the morning train on an extended trip through California and British Columbia.

Oakes—Malins.

Many friends in Lindsay and district will be interested in the following news from the New Westminster, B.C., Daily Columbian of Jan. 12th:

A pretty wedding was quietly celebrated in Holy Trinity Cathedral this morning, when Miss Ethel Malins, daughter of Rev. Mr. Shildrick united in wedlock Miss Annie Malins Oakes and Mr. E. Cowen Mollins, both residents of this city, and well known and respected. The bride was given away by Mr. H. E. Edmonds. Miss Schnitzer, of Agnes-st., made a charming bridesmaid, while Mr. Schnitzer, brother of Johnson, supported the groom. Only a few of the most intimate friends of the contracting parties were present. The pretty bride was neatly and becomingly attired in a dark green tailored travelling suit, with a Spanish turban to match, with a pink rose and pink chiffon trimmings to match. Immediately after the ceremony the happy couple drove to a neat red cloth suit, trimmed with sable and sable tippets, and left on the train immediately after the ceremony for a trip through Washington and Oregon. Mr. and Mrs Johnston, left on the same train for Seattle, where Mr. and Mrs. Malins will be absent for a few days. The groom's gift to the bride was a beautiful diamond ring, while the bridegroom's gift was a brooch, set with pearls and rubies. Mr. Mollins's gift to the bride was a nice pair of Japanese vases. Mr. Mollins is with Mr. Collister & Co.—the bride having been in the employ of the firm's millinery department for some time—presented with a fine set of chesterfield and rocking chair, this morning, the presents being on view at the Mollins home, Dufferin bridge. Mr. Malins is a member of the firm of Malins & Son, dealers in their honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Mollins will take up their residence in the Brine block.

THE ROOT OF THE MATTER.

He Cured Himself of Serious Stomach Troubles and Feels Grateful.

A man of large affairs in one of our prominent eastern cities by too close attention to business, too little exercise and too many club dinners finally began to pay nature's tax. Indeed it was the first symptom of chronic trouble, the failure of his digestion brought about a nervous irritability making it impossible to apply himself to his daily business and finally deranging the kidneys and heart.

In his own words he says: "I consulted one physician after another and each one pronounced himself my case, but all the same they each failed to bring about a cure of my trouble, indigestion, appetite and vigor. For years I could not eat food, or even drink anything but a cup of coffee and a glass of water without any marked improvement.

"Friends often advised me to try a well known proprietary medicine, Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets and I had often read of the most emphatic testimonials of the remedy, but I thought, as I had tried so many medicines nor could believe that I should ever be cured, I could not touch my case.

"However, a long story short I finally bought a couple of packages in the nearest drug store and began using three tablets after each meal and occasionally one at bedtime, and even when I felt any feeling of nausea or discomfort.

"I was surprised at the end of the first week to see a marked improvement in my appetite and digestion, and after using the two packages were gone I was convinced that Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets was going to cure completely my long and tedious disease. I can eat and sleep and enjoy my coffee and tea and even drink what I suppose I had ever known the horrors of dyspepsia.

"Out of friendly curiosity I wrote to the proprietors of the tablets for some information as to what the tablets contained, and I was surprised to find the principal ingredients were nux vomica, pepsin, bismuth, lactate of pepsin and other natural digestives, which I knew had proved most beneficial to my stomach."

The root of the matter is this, the digestive elements contained in Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets digest the food, give the overworked stomach a chance to recuperate, the nerves and whole system receive the nourishment which the digested food yields, stimulants and nerve tonics never give real strength, they only force the nerve strength, invariably followed by reaction. Stuart's Dyspepsia tones the nerves and tissue is manufactured from the digested food, and you can see in its prompt action and complete disappearance of the symptoms of so good and wholesome a remedy as Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, you will have no need for nerve tonics and stimulants.

Although Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets have been in the market only a few years, they are probably every druggist in the United States, Canada, and Great Britain now sells them and consider them the most meritorious and successful of any preparation for stomach troubles.

FEE VS. OPS TOWNSHIP.

The Drain Appeal Dismissed.

The judgment delivered by Chief Justice Falconbridge in this case in favor of the township, in August last, appears in Irons, and proceedings meantime stayed. The appeal was argued at Toronto a month ago by Mr. Sloane for the appellants, and by Mr. McSwyn for the township. Westopp from Monday's Globe the contrasting points in the appeal, which finally disposes of the case in favor of the township:

Fee vs. Township of Ops (before Meredith, C.J., MacMahon, J.)—Judgment (1.) on appeal by plaintiff from judgment of Falconbridge, C.J., dismissing the action. The plaintiffs (Fee and wife) are the owners of lot 22, in the 4th concession of the township of Ops, and tile-drained their farm, and in 1898 drained into a natural watercourse west of it. In 1881 defendants constructed a drain west of plaintiffs land and compelled them to contribute money towards its construction, which, plaintiffs allege, was improperly done as it enlarged their tile drain and injure their land, and they sought damages and a mandamus for the repair and maintenance by the defendants of their drain. It was conceded that it was proper whether the defendants' drain, which was built under a by-law passed under sections 9 to McLear, and Ops, 45 (1.C.R., 325), was constructed for the drainage of the drained lands or not, that it had been proved to have been negligently and improperly constructed in many respects, and as a result surface water was thrown on plaintiff land; that the work contributed to the building of the drain, they were entitled to, and if it failed to perform its functions; that they given the notice required by sec. 75, R.S.O., ch. 226, and having a good cause of action in the drain, they were entitled to a mandamus; and that if the statute of limitations applied, and all it affects only the amount of the damages because plaintiffs contended, Held that Williams vs. Tp. of Raleigh (1898), A.C. 548, has overruled the claim for damages arising from the construction of the drain, the work having been completed, the municipal act upon the report of a duly appointed engineer, and the drain not having been shown, and that sec. 438 of the municipal act, 1892, gave a complete answer to the claim for compensation for injuries resulting from the construction of the drain. Besides, the plaintiffs were responsible for the work, and agreed to an assessment against their land in respect of it; besides, that the claim for damages for improper use of the drain and for its damage is not well founded. As held by the court below, the drain was intended only for taking off the surface water, and was not, and did not provide an outlet for the drainage of farms intended to be benefitted by the construction. Upon the evidence the filling in of the drain where it was filled in for a long distance, caused flooding, and the fires which swept over the part of the country through which the drain ran have so changed the conditions that it is impossible now to restore it to its original state, and if so restored would be useless. Besides all this, a railway culvert, over which plaintiffs have no control, is insufficient to permit the waters flowing down in the drain to pass through it, and a mandamus should issue to compel the defendants to make a drain which will be unnecessary when the new work the engineer has undertaken is completed. Appeal dismissed (Fee vs. Township of Ops) for plaintiffs. McSwyn (Lindsay) for defendants.

It has been brought to our notice that the Statutes make provision for fixing the prices of street and domestic lighting by arbitration, and as this does not seem to be known by the public we publish the numbers of the sections of the Statutes bearing thereon for the information of our readers: On Ontario Act 1899, chapter 22, sections 2-6, 5-7 and 8. BREAKFAST FOODS

Not many persons can face a plate of Oatmeal Porridge morning after morning without a feeling of nausea making itself felt at times. That's because Oatmeal is a strong food—too rich and heating for those who are unable to take active exercise.

Habit is responsible for this disagreeable sameness. Science has evolved a great number of breakfast foods that are much more palatable and pleasant to the taste than is Oatmeal, but housekeepers neglect to keep themselves informed of the fact.

We handle almost a score of breakfast Foods for well persons and invalids. This demand for these is constantly growing and sales have doubled in a week if people only knew how superior most of the goods are when compared with Oatmeal. Why not call and enquire.

TOWN AND COUNTY

Martin Discharged.

Thomas Martin, the man who was accused of assaulting and robbing Mrs. Jackson on the night of November 20th last came up for trial this morning before His Honor Judge Ardagh, but has been rather unfortunate, as a few days before his trial was to take place he was in December contracted typhoid fever, and has been laid up ever since. After hearing the evidence His Honor dismissed the case, although he excused to leave the vicinity of Lindsay as soon as possible. Mr. A. P. Devlin appeared for the Crown, and Mr. E. E. Weldon for the accused.

Cheap Fuel Gas

At the last session of parliament says the British "Gas World" power is to be sought for the carrying out of a huge scheme for the manufacture and supply of fuel gas in the Midlands. The gas, which is called Mond gas, after its inventor, Dr. Ludwig Mond, is produced from a cheap bituminous coal or slack, and in the part of the Midlands in respect of which parliamentary powers are sought the charge for this gas is not to exceed 3d. per thousand cubic feet, and for smaller quantities than that the charge is not to exceed 4d. per thousand cubic feet.

Tribute to our New Senator.

Bob. Independent: Sir Frank Smith's successor in the Dominion Senate will be Mr. Geo. Millyard, who earned for himself so good a reputation in political circles as member for South Victoria. Mr. Millyard will be lost of friends who will be pleased with the preferment bestowed upon him as an evidence of the high character and estimation in which he is held by the political leaders in Ottawa. Indeed, it is quite on the cards for Mr. Millyard to have a portfolio in the government at no distant date. He is a man of great parts, broad and liberal in his views, full firm of purpose, sound judgment, and eminently practical. He is a native of the county of Victoria, being born in the township of Ops on July 7th, 1845. Mr. McHugh will be an acquisition to the Upper House, and his friends, while grieving by his advancement, will rejoice that still further promotion in the counties of his early and the public affairs of the country.

Curling Notes.

—The first match of this group in the Ontario Tankard series proved disastrous to Lindsay. Both rinks were down. Mr. Hunter's team of Peterboro to Mr. T. Butherford by fifteen points, and Mr. G. A. Little losing to Lindsay by five points. Quite a number of Lindsay citizens were on hand and were very much disappointed at the way the game went. Skip Hay had a strong rink with him here, and likely put up a good game, but Lindsay played in hard luck. Still, the rink from Lindsay scored exactly the same number of ends, but lost three and two threes put Lindsay out of the course:

Church Notes.

—Kingston Whig: It is learned that Monsignor Farrelly, the venerable Vicar-General at Belleville, will in March celebrated his golden jubilee anniversary as a priest of the Roman Catholic church, and he will retire from active duties and reside at the Archbishop's palace, Kingston. Mgr. Farrelly was born in Ireland 76 years ago. When nineteen years of age he came to Canada, locating in Kingston, where he entered Regiopolis college. In 1851 he was ordained to the priesthood and served in Kingston cathedral for two years, afterwards he was stationed in Hastings, Belleville, Napanee and Kingston. In 1871 he was appointed to St. Michael's church, Belleville, where he was appointed Domestic Prelate to His Holiness Pio Nono.

The 8 o'clock mass at St. Mary's church Sunday Mgr. Laurent made the following reference to the Queen's death: At this the first meeting of St. Mary's congregation since the sorrowful event of last week, it is proper to recall the great loss sustained by the Empire. We pray fervently to the Almighty Ruler of all, that He may guide and strengthen our new King. In all ages, the people have loved to see the heavy burden of duties to be fulfilled.

—The memorial service at St. Andrew's church last Sunday was a fitting, a very large congregation. The pulpit and front of the church were draped in black, and the music was appropriate to the service. The sermon, Rev. J. W. Mackay, made a very eloquent and feeling reference to the sad event now being deplored in all parts of the world, and nowhere more sorrowfully than in Canada. His eulogium of our late beloved Queen was divided into three parts; 1st, the Queen as a sovereign; 2nd, the Queen as a woman; 3rd, the Queen as a christian.

Very Sudden Death.

The friends and acquaintances of Mr. Robt. Brown, Peel-st., were shocked Tuesday morning on hearing of his sudden death. Mr. Brown had been up town Monday night apparently in his usual state of health; on returning he was complained of feeling ill and retired about 10 o'clock. About 6 next morning his son, who slept with him, was aroused by the sound of heavy breathing, and found his father unconscious. Dr. White was summoned, but could do nothing, the patient, who had been stricken with apoplexy, died at 8 o'clock without regaining consciousness. Why Scott's EMULSION of Cod Liver Oil?

There are others; why SCOTT'S?

The good one is SCOTT'S. It's nearly 30 years old; it is used by intelligent people all over the world; and approved by physicians all over the world.

When anyone says "Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil," he means SCOTT'S. No other is famous.

SCOTT'S EMULSION is made in a certain way; of certain things; it keeps; it is always alike; It does what it does.

The others—nobody knows what they are or do. There wouldn't be any others but SCOTT'S—the good one. There wouldn't be any counterfeit money but for the true.

The genuine has this picture on it, take no other.

If you have not tried it, send for free sample, its agreeable taste will surprise you.

THE NATION'S SORROW

Voiced by Its Statesmen in Both Lords and Commons.

QUEEN KNEW PEOPLE'S PULSE.

Lord Salisbury and Mr. Balfour Tell of the People's Esteem and Love—Her Nation's Enemies Reviewed Her—The Late Queen's Knowledge Amazed Her Ministers—Praise for the King.

London, Jan. 26.—Both Houses of Parliament this afternoon received ministerial messages from the King, and voted condolence with His Majesty on his bereavement, and congratulation on his accession to the throne.

The Lord Chancellor, Lord Halsbury, read the Queen's Mr. William Court Gully, read the message in their respective Houses. It was as follows:

Edward Rex: The King is fully assured that the House of Commons will share the deep sorrow which June-Sanction His Majesty and the nation by the lamentable death of his mother, the late Queen, and the devotion to the welfare of her country and her people, and her wise and beneficient rule during the long term of her glorious reign will ever be held in grateful remembrance by her royal and devoted subjects throughout the dominions of the British Empire.

THE PREMIER'S SPEECH.

Lord Salisbury Eulogizes the Late Queen and King as Well.

In the House of Lords Lord Salisbury read the message to the Kings message in a speech full of dignity. He said that in performing the sad duty of the House of Lords, he felt, he was only echoing the sorrow, deeper than he had ever felt before of this nation, which had been called forth by the singular loss which under the dispensation of Providence, had deprived the nation of the inspiration of the glorious reign and spotless character of the sovereign they had lost. Being a constitutional monarch, with restricted powers, she had reigned by moral force of character, by the loveliness of her disposition, and by the fidelity of her subjects. The example which she set of governing by moral force and love would never be forgotten, for how great was the influence on the elevation of her people by the constant recognition of her brilliant qualities as a monarch, and woman.

Her wonderful powers of observing with absolute strictness the limits of her power, combined with a perfect sovereign, and at the same time maintaining steadily and perhaps influence of the actions of her Ministers, inspired the greatest admiration. She always conducted her business supervision over public affairs, giving to her Ministers the benefit of her advice and warning them of dangers. No Minister could disregard her views, or press her to disregard them, without feeling he had incurred a great danger. She had brought the country peacefully through a great change, from old to new England. She possessed extraordinary knowledge of the people, and knew what they wanted. It was at a time when the Queen

December being by far the largest business ever done by this store, we have decided to continue the Holiday Sale through January, clearing out many odd lots before taking stock of January.

Some of the steady increase in business are that goods are bought right, handling large quantities we always secure very lowest quotations, and turning over stocks quickly to a very large number of customers. We prefer small profits and quick returns. Customers always find the ten departments well stocked with seasonable goods, and prices, that's their wants supplied under one roof, which is a saving of time at least.

To make this January sale more interesting, we keep all the stocks fully assorted, so you have a large selection to choose from, and many of our customers are most intelligent buyers repeatedly tell us that this store serves them better in Cottons, Wraperettes, Flannelette, Cottonades, Shirtings, Towellings, Dress Goods, etc., than other stores. We feel repaid for any trouble taken to secure the very Best Qualities of Dress Goods and sell them at the same prices as many do the lower grade kinds. This is the aim of the store, to serve customers better in qualities as well as prices.

ONE GRATIFYING FEATURE of the past two months' business is that Cash Customers are finding this store a good place to spend their cash in, as no bonuses are made for trade and credit accounts are only run for sickness or other failings. Produce being handled in very large quantities, either for cash or trade at its value, and all goods are sold at One Price, Cash or Trade

THE QUEEN'S FUNERAL

Solemn Ceremony Will Take Place at Windsor Castle Feb. 2.

THE FUNERAL WILL BE MILITARY

King Edward's Return to Osborne—France Pays Its Tribute to the Illustrious and Beloved Dead—Canadian Messages of Sympathy in Lord Minto's Hands for Transmission to the King.

Cowes, Isle of Wight, Jan. 25.—The funeral of the Queen has been fixed to take place at Windsor Castle on February 2. The body of the late Queen will be removed from Osborne House on February 1. It was the expressed desire of the Queen that the funeral should be military in character. Several officials arrived from Windsor yesterday morning, bringing the State regalia.

A naval salute of twenty-one guns was fired here at noon yesterday, in honor of King Edward VII.

The Channel Squadron.

London, Jan. 25.—Orders have been issued to the Channel squadron and all other available ships to assemble at Spithead Feb. 1, the date of the removal of Queen Victoria's body from Osborne. It is understood that the warships will form a double line through which the Royal yacht bearing the body, will pass.

Arrival of the King

An expectant crowd lined Trinity Pier as the royal yacht Alberta, with King Edward on board, turned the point and the first gun of the royal salute thundered from the British warship Australia. All the flags, hitherto half-masted, were hauled down, marking a temporary suspension of mourning.

The King landed at 2.45 p. m., and drove to Osborne House, where Emperor William met him at the gates and warmly greeted him.

Immediately after the King landed the flags were again half-masted.

His Majesty was somewhat careworn, but otherwise appeared to be in excellent health. During the crossing he was busily engaged with state despatches and telegrams of sympathy and indicting replies. Emperor William will not leave Osborne till after the funeral.

THE FINAL ILLNESS.

British Medical Journal Tells of the Queen's Last Days.

London, Jan. 25.—The British Medical Journal publishes an authoritative account of the last illness of Queen Victoria. It says the Queen's health for a year has been failing, with symptoms mainly of a dyspeptic kind, accompanied by impaired nutrition and periods of insomnia. Later there were slight transitory attacks of aphasia. In the general arterial system there were remarkably few signs of age.

After alluding to the symptoms of somnolence, increasing the cerebral exhaustion which Her Majesty's strong will enabled her to hide from momentary visitors. The Medical Journal confirms the Associated Press information that on Thursday her mental confusion was more marked, and a slight fluttering was observed in the right side of her face.

Thenceforward aphasia and facial paralysis were permanent. It is important to note, The Medical Journal adds, that notwithstanding the great bodily weakness and cerebral exhaustion, the heart's action was steadily maintained to the last. The pulse was always regular and temperature normal. In the last few hours paralysis of the pulmonary nerves set in. Beyond a slight facial fluttering there never was any motor paralysis.

MESSAGES OF SYMPATHY.

Different Provinces of the Dominion of Canada Wire to Lord Minto the Sentiments of the People.

Ottawa, Jan. 25.—The Cabinet has approved of the program and plans prepared at the instance of Hon. J. Israel Tarte, Minister of Public Works, by Mr. Ewart, chief architect, for draping the public buildings of the Dominion during the period of mourning.

The decorations are to be more elaborate than it was at first proposed. The whole front of the Parliament Buildings will be draped. There will be a crown and other emblems placed on the buildings, and will partake of a character of mourning. Every public building in Canada will be draped. The expenditure will depend entirely on the size of the town and the cost of the building. Mr. Ewart has prepared a plan and named a figure for each building. The entire cost will be somewhere about $30,000.

Messages of Sympathy.

The following other expressions of sympathy and condolence have been received by the Governor-General:

From Hon. L. A. Jette, Lieutenant-Governor of Quebec: It is with the deepest sorrow that the people of the Province of Quebec, and especially the French-Canadians have heard of the death of Queen Victoria, whose beneficial reign has made them the most devoted and loyal of her subjects. They will never forget that it is since her accession to the throne of England that they have enjoyed that amount of civil, religious and political liberty of which they are now so justly proud.

From Monsignor Falconio, Papal Delegate: Wishing to express the deep sorrow of the Catholics of Canada for the death of Her Majesty the Queen, I beg your Excellency to forward the following telegram to the Royal family: "The bishops, clergy and Catholics of Canada, deeply afflicted for the death of Her Majesty the Queen, express through me their heartfelt condolence."

From Hon. A. R. McLellan, Lieutenant-Governor, New Brunswick: I beg your Excellency will transmit, on behalf of my Government and myself, as well as the people of this province, an expression of the profound grief which is felt at the death of our beloved Queen, and of sympathy with the Royal family in their sad bereavement.

From Hon. Sir Henri Joly de Lotbiniere, Lieutenant-Governor of British Columbia: May I beg your Excellency to forward the following message: "The Government of British Columbia express the profound regret which will be felt by the whole province, to its most remote limits, at the sad news of the death of our beloved Sovereign."

Paris, Jan. 25.—At the opening of the Chamber of Deputies yesterday the Premier, M. Waldeck-Rousseau, said:

"In announcing to the Chamber the event which has just closed a reign in which is bound up almost a century's history, the Government wishes to contribute its tribute to the homage and respect which the world renders to the memory of Queen Victoria, and, gauging the sorrow of the English nation by the affection displayed for its sovereign, the Government bows respectfully before the affliction with which England is stricken."

The Premier's remarks were cheered.

In the Senate Likewise.

The President of the Chamber, M. Deschanel, said the Chamber joined in the regrets the Government had just expressed.

The debate on the law of associations was then resumed.

M. Delcasse, the Minister of Foreign Affairs, referred to the death of Queen Victoria in the Senate yesterday. He said the Queen had acquired singular authority out side acquired singular authority outside of her own Empire and universal respect.

The general discussion of the bill was then closed, and the House voted the bill an urgency measure by 361 to 179, and proceeded to discuss its articles.

THE ARRANGEMENTS HAMPERED.

Body of Her Majesty Still Lies in the Death Chamber.

Cowes, Isle of Wight, Jan. 25.—(12.30 a.m.)—So hampered have been the arrangements at Osborne that the body of Queen Victoria still lies in the bedroom where she died. The elaborate decorations necessary in converting the dining room in Osborne House into a chapelle ardente occupied so much time that, altho the royal household waited hour after hour for the first private service, it was found impossible to hold this yesterday. All being well, however, the solemn function will be performed this evening or Friday morning, by the Bishop of Winchester, in the presence of King Edward, Emperor William and almost every other member of the Royal Family.

The Coffin Arrived.

The coffin was brought to Osborne last evening, and was taken thru the Queen's private gate, which had not been previously used since her death. Emperor William was the first person to see it. The coffined body will be transferred this morning to the dining room now hung with deep red purple. The dias is wreathed with the Royal Standard, and on each side are great candles. Madonnas by famous painters hang from the draped walls. In one corner magnificent wreaths from all parts of the world crush their blossoms one against the other. Among these the most beautiful are from Emperor William and the Empress Augusta Victoria. Around the coffin chairs are arranged for the royal mourners.

No Lying in State.

Lord Pelham Clinton authorized the statement that there will be no lying in state. However, there is good reason to believe that many persons will be afforded the privilege of seeing their dead Queen, as she lies in the gorgeously transformed dining-room, where she will remain until Feb. 1. In the hope that this may be the case, people are already pouring into Cowes. If they are disappointed in this respect, they will at any rate be rewarded by witnessing a naval display such as it would be well worth going miles to see.

King Replied to Messages.

Yesterday King Edward replied to thousands of messages he has received. To those from rulers and great personages he replied in person. To those from minor dignitaries he commanded his equerry to return them with thanks. A particularly grateful message went to President McKinley. The new Queen moved ceaselessly around yesterday, seeing that everything should be done in good order. She refused to allow herself to be called Queen.

"Your Majesty," said one of the entourage. "Your Royal Highness, you mean," was the immediate interruption.

It was chiefly due to Queen Alexandra's desire to carefully design the minutest detail of the death chapel, that the first funeral service was not held yesterday.

The German Imperial yacht Hohenzollern is expected arrive this afternoon with Emperor William's suite.

TOUCHED BY THE SYMPATHY.

St. James' Gazette Pays a Tribute to the Americans.

London, Jan. 24.—England continues to give evidence that she is profoundly touched by the universal sympathy, especially that of America, expressed on the death of Queen Victoria, and papers like The St. James Gazette and Globe, by no means noted for their friendliness to the United States, have been among the first to evince gratitude. The St. James Gazette returns to the subject again to-day, and says: "In particular, we are grateful to our kindred in America. The American is in every way a popular press. It knows and responds to popular feeling and popular will, and it is unanimous in its tributes of sorrow and recognition of the greatness and goodness of Queen Victoria. Nor have her public men been backward. Mr. Whitelaw Reid, whom we remember in London as the special envoy of the United States at the Diamond Jubilee, has pointed out that the Queen had been referred to for more than a generation in America as simply "The Queen." That alone is enough to show how Americans regarded her. All this is well, and should torch us profoundly. But it need not surprise us. The nearness of blood and community of language are not wisely counted on in a political way, but when simple feeling is in question—simple feeling in a matter over which no controversy can exist—then nearness of blood and community of language will surely tell. Beneath the differences of government, the differences in place and many other differences of association, there is, between the Americans and ourselves, a great common heritage. Shakespeare and Milton are part of it, and Washington is part of it.

"What Englishman ever thinks of Washington as an enemy? We think of him simply as a great man, a noble character of our race, and now Queen Victoria is part of this heritage of race and language."

Burford Man Killed by a Train.

Burford, Ont., Jan. 25.—Yesterday morning while driving across the Grand Trunk Railway tracks at the ninth concession, about three miles west of Burford, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Strone of Burford Township were struck by a special train. Mr. Strone was instantly killed, and Mrs. Strone seriously injured. The horse was also killed. An inquest will be held.

PROCLAIMED AS KING.

An Impressive Event in Old London in Ancient Form.

CRIES OF "GOD SAVE THE KING."

Quaint Ceremonies Exactly Followed Ancient Precedent—Text of the Proclamation Read by the King-at-Arms—The King Not Present—King Edward's Gracious Message of Thanks to Canada.

London, Jan. 25.—London was given yesterday a glimpse of mediaeval times. The quaint ceremonies with which King Edward VII. was proclaimed at various points of the metropolis exactly followed ancient precedents. The officials purposely arranged the function an hour ahead of the published announcement, and the inhabitants when they awoke were surprised to find the entire way between St. James' Palace and the city lined with troops. About 10,000 soldiers, Life Guards, Horse Guards, Foot Guards and other cavalry and infantry regiments had been brought from Aldershot and London Barracks after midnight. All the officers had crape on their arms, and the drums and brass instruments shrouded with crape. The troops made an imposing spectacle, but they were entirely eclipsed by the strange spectacle presented by the officials of the College of Arms.

The Proclamation.

The ceremony began at St. James' Palace, where at 9 o'clock Edward VII. was proclaimed King of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and Emperor of India. The proclamation, which was read by William Henry Weldon, King-at-Arms since 1894, and formerly Windsor Herald, was as follows:

"Whereas, it has pleased Almighty God to call to His mercy our late Sovereign Lady, Queen Victoria, of blessed and glorious memory, by decease the Imperial Crown of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland is solely and rightfully come to the high and mighty Prince Albert Edward, we, therefore, the Lords, spiritual and temporal, of this realm, being assisted by those of her late Majesty's Privy Council, with numbers of other principal gentlemen of quality, with the Lord Mayor, the aldermen and the citizens of London, do now hereby with one voice, consent of tongue and heart, publish and proclaim that the high and mighty Prince Albert Edward is now by the death of our late sovereign of happy memory, become our only lawful and rightful liege lord, Edward VII., by the grace of God, King of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, Defender of the Faith, Emperor of India, to whom we do acknowledge all faith and constant obedience, with all hearty and humble affection, beseeching God, by Whom all kings and queens do reign, to bless the Royal Prince, Edward VII., with long and happy years to reign over us."

Greeted With Cheers.

The proclamation was greeted by a fanfare of triumphant cheers and cries of "God Save the King." There was a large assemblage of officials and college heralds. Among those in attendance were Earl Roberts and members of the headquarters staff and other army officers, and there was present a great concourse of people from the commencement to the close. At the conclusion of the ceremony the band belonging to the Foot Guards, in the Friary Court, played "God Save the King."

The King Not Present.

The King was not present, but the members of his household witnessed the ceremony from Marlborough House. On the balcony overlooking the Friary Court, from which the proclamation was read, were the Duke of Norfolk and other officers of state. The balcony was draped in crimson cloth. Beside the officials in resplendent uniforms were stationed the State trumpeters, and here were seen many prominent persons, among them Sir Arthur White, Private Solicitor to the Queen.

In the yard of Marlborough House and the Friary Court was stationed a large body of police, soldiers and Foot Guards. The Foot Guards acted as a guard of honor and they were posted immediately beneath the balcony.

Ancient Precedent Followed.

The quaint ceremonies with which King Edward VII. was proclaimed at various points of the metropolis exactly followed ancient precedents and when the march was concluded, the trumpeters blew a blast, while the wondering crowd stood bareheaded and silenced, not knowing what to do, till the military band in the procession struck up "God Save the King."

This familiar air has still but one meaning in England, and the crowd took up the words feebly with "God Save the King" on the tongue, but with "God Save the Queen" in mind.

A royal salute in celebration of His Majesty's accession was fired at noon in St. James' Park.

A Bit of Excitement.

The vagaries of an apparently harmless lunatic occasioned some excitement at Victoria station. During the entraining of the King for Osborne House a well-dressed individual bearing a letter addressed to His Majesty was permitted to pass the barriers. He hurried to an equerry and said he wished to present the letter to the King personally. The man was handed over to the police. The envelope contained only a telegraph from, nnn nnn nnn only a telegraph form, on which were the words: "I wish to see my beloved Queen."

King Returns to Osborne.

At 12.55 p. m. King Edward, escorted by a squadron of the Horse Guards and accompanied by the Duke of York, Prince Christian of Schleswig-Holstein, the Duke of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha, and other nobles, left Marlborough House at 11 o'clock, to take the train for Osborne.

An Extraordinary Gazette.

London, Jan. 25.—An extraordinary "Gazette" published an order-in-Council: "That it is expected that all persons upon the present occasion, the death of Her late Majesty, of blessed and glorious memory, will put themselves into deepest mourning."

Another order-in-council substitutes "King" for "Queen" and "Edward" for "Victoria." It also inserts "Our gracious Queen Alexandra, George Duke of Cornwall and York, and the Duchess of Cornwall and York.".

The fact that the court goes into mourning for a year, and the further fact that the public is enjoined to go into the "deepest mourning" led to a supposition that the coronation will not occur until 1902.

The instruction that the Duke of York is to be named, in the Prayer Book, "Duke of Cornwall," seems to throw light upon the much-debated question of the Heir Apparent's title. It was supposed that the title "Prince of Wales," which belongs only to a son born of the King, would be conferred upon the Duke of York by Royal patent; but the Gazette announcement seems to indicate that this will not be done, and that the Duke of York will henceforth be known as the Duke of Cornwall.

NORTH BRUCE CASE ADJOURNED.

Judges Will Resume the Trial at Southampton on Feb. 4.

Owen Sound, Jan. 28.—The North Bruce election trial was resumed Saturday morning, at 9.30, before Their Lordships Chancellor Boyd and Justice Street. Two more ballots were produced, one of which had not been initialed, and the other from which the counterfoil had not been removed. Judgment was reserved in the case of the uninitialed ballot, and the other was allowed. The charges of irregularity were then taken up. Charges numbers 18, 34, 79, 27 and 24 were dealt with, and witnesses were called to prove that certain persons had voted in several polling divisions in Elderslie who had not had their names on the list. Several witnesses who were called refused to say how they voted, after being informed by counsel and Chancellor Boyd that they were not obliged to do so. No. 23, a charge of impersonation, against Samuel Westerhead, was not dealt with to any extent, owing to objections from Mr. Grier, counsel for Mr. McNeill, who stated that he was not prepared to deal with it.

John Moon of Keppel, who voted in both North Bruce and North Grey, refused to give evidence until fees were paid. Mr. Campbell promptly threw up a dollar, and Moon began to talk. The judges held that his ballot in North Bruce was valid. The court adjourned, to meet at Southampton, on Feb. 4, subject to affidavit from counsel for Mr. McNeill, that they would be prepared to proceed with the trial at that time.

THE ROYAL STANDARD

At the Masthead in Canada in Honor of the King.

AT HALF-MAST AGAIN TO-DAY.

Royal Salutes Were Fired—Instructions to Lieutenant-Governors—Sir Oliver Mowat Takes the Oath and Swears His Ministers—The Judiciary Also Sworn in the King's Name.

Ottawa, Jan. 25.—Orders were sent out yesterday morning by the Secretary of State to the Lieutenant-Governors of Provinces, asking that the royal standard be displayed at the masthead, and a royal salute fired in honor of the accession of His Majesty King Edward. The emblem of royalty remained at the masthead until sundown, when it was again placed at half-mast, to be kept there until after the State funeral.

Instructions to Lieutenant-Governors.

Telegraphic instructions have been sent to the Queen's representatives in the seven Provinces, with respect to the oath of allegiance. The message to the Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario was wired, and, after notifying Sir Oliver Mowat of the Queen's death, continued, "You will at once take the oath of allegiance to King Edward VII. before the Chief Justice of Ontario, or, in his absence, before the senior Chief Justice of the Province, and then administer it to the members of your Executive Council."

The messages to the other Governors were couched in identical terms, except that the oath was to be taken before the senior Judge of the Province, in the absence of the Chief Justice.

Allegiance to the New King.

Toronto, Jan. 25.—Yesterday at noon, in accordance with instructions from Ottawa, Government House and all other flags in the city were run up to the masthead and a salute of 21 guns was fired at 12 o'clock in honor of the new King.

Swear Loyalty to Edward VII.

The ceremony of swearing in the Lieutenant-Governor, his Cabinet and Chief Justices of Ontario took place at Government House yesterday morning at 10 o'clock. The only oath taken was the oath of allegiance. There were present His Honor Sir Oliver Mowat, Premier Ross, Hon. J. M. Gibson, Hon. Richard Harcourt, Hon. J. R. Stratton, Hon. F. R. Latchford, Hon. J. D. Armour, Chief Justice of the Court of Appeal; Sir John Boyd, Chancellor of Ontario; Sir William Meredith, Chief Justice of the Common Pleas Division. Chief Justice Falconbridge was absent through illness. Hon. E. J. Davis and Hon. John Dryden were the only members of the Cabinet absent. The oaths were read by Mr. J. L. Capreol, Assistant Clerk of the Executive Council.

The ceremony was commenced with the administration of the oath of allegiance to Sir Oliver Mowat by Chief Justice Armour. Then Sir Oliver administered the oath to Premier Ross and the other members of the Cabinet who were present, and then to the Chief Justices. The oath of allegiance to the new King was the only oath administered.

Following this, another ceremony took place at Osgoode Hall. The Court of Appeal was to sit at 11 o'clock, and in order to make the proceedings legal the members thereof had to be sworn. Fortified by the ceremonial at Government House, Chief Justice Armour administered the oath to Judges Osler, Maclennan and Lister, Judge Moss being absent. Mr. Justice Street took his place on the bench after being sworn in by Sir John Boyd.

Preparations were then made for the swearing in of the officials at Osgoode Hall who held their office under Provincial commission.

They Renominated Mr. John Smith, M. P. P., on Saturday as Their Candidate for the Legislature.

Brampton, Jan. 28.—Several hundred Liberals of Peel County assembled in the Music Hall here on Saturday and unanimously nominated Mr. John Smith, M.P.P., as their standard-bearer in the coming provincial contest. The Liberal Association of Peel met in the morning and reorganized, and in the afternoon elected officers. Active committees were elected for every municipality.

A public meeting was held later in the day, President Graham presiding. The hall was crowded. Resolutions of regret for the death of the Queen and of confidence in the Governments of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and of Hon. Geo. W. Ross were passed.

Mr. Smith briefly addressed the meeting, expressing his thanks for the honor that had been shown him, and concluding by referring to the money that had been already judiciously spent by the present Government in furthering the education of the farmers in particular branches of their work.

Hon. J. R. Stratton followed Mr. Smith, speaking for nearly two hours upon the splendid policy of the Ontario Government and upon the weakness and lack of any definite policy of their opponents.

The meeting closed with rousing cheers for the King, Mr. Stratton and the candidate.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

A memorial service for the Queen was held last Sunday evening in the Methodist church, conducted by the pastor, Rev. H. McGuade, who took as his text, "A greater than Solomon is here." Mr. Hoyle and Miss F. Hoyle travelling from the hall with the Union Jack draped around them referred to our beloved Queen in pathetic and touching terms. The King of kings, before her promotion, for the Queen was taken from us before her. At the same time she promised to be faithful and had fully kept that promise, as her life was over all. The speaker then referring to the virtues of Wales, our present King, the proclamation, proclamation and future coronation with the hope that the King would conclusion he desired that all would unite and pray for the welfare and success of the heavenly kingdom. The choir sang "Rock of Ages," and "God Save the King." The subject which is so dear to the hearts of all the British people, was ably and eloquently handled by the pastor.

Miss Katie Douglas, who has charge of the Library in connection with the Librarian, gives perfect satisfaction and is very popular with the people.

Mrs. G. Cosme is able to be attending again.

Mrs. T. Cosme is visiting in Lindsay.

We have learned with much sorrow of the demise of our beloved and gracious sovereign Queen Victoria. She was just a queen over all, and each one felt as though they had lost a personal friend. But our loss is her gain, after a long and prosperous and most glorious reign, she is now present with her Sovereign Lord, the King of Kings.

La grippe is no respecter of persons nor prices, as it is seizing its prey all over. Among those who have succumbed to it here are Mistresses Edwards, Brown, Whitesmith and others.

Mrs. Vim Cosme attended the C.P. convention held in Lindsay, and reports it a success.

At the close of his sermon Sunday evening Rev. H. McGuade (touching) referred to the serious illness of the Queen.

Pleased to see Mr. Harding around again after his illness.

Parties are put the order of the day. Mr. and Mrs. G. Smith enjoyed the company of their friends and neighbors at their own home recently.

Sleighing nearly gone and roads looking rather bare.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

On Friday evening the oyster supper given by the ladies of the C. E. church took place, and was a success in every particular. Everyone pronounced the supper to be above criticism, and the programme was equally well enjoyed. Revs. McGonigle, Kinmount; Curtis, Norland, and Hogg, made short, entertaining addresses. Misses Prior, Doughty and Mr. McCormick sang very acceptably. Proceeds, $30, to be applied on church debt.

About thirty of the villagers drove to the home of Mr. Alexander Prior on the evening of the 23rd ult., and fairly took the latter by storm. After a few hours of social enjoyment tea was served by Mrs. Rumney, after which the party returned home, having enjoyed a very pleasant evening.

This village and vicinity seems to suffering severely from the ravages of la grippe, and several have succumbed to this unpleasant malady.

A couple of correspondents to the Toronto Globe Star are greatly exercising up the council re the bench of Fenelon Falls. Let them alone, it seems as if they are bound to direct the attention of the people to some of the business which last year, and some of they have to resort to the use of "lindsaylies" and "hendaws" to do it.

All places of business will be closed from 8 to half-past 12 o'clock noon till 3 p.m., and the village will down mourning in memory of our late lamented sovereign, Queen Victoria. The Lindsay bands have been requested to Boxyigroon on Friday night. All last week from sticks will have to attem at that hour. The score stood 7 to 5 in favor of the Lindsay boys. The game seems to have been rough, if we judge by our boys friends evidence in the shape of black eyes and disabled limbs.

Church Notes.

—For the 25th time John D. Rockefeller, the best of the Standard Oil concern, has been elected Superintendent of the Euclid Avenue Baptist Sunday School in Cleveland. He seems to be able to square Standard Oil business with his conscience.

—When Queen Victoria ascended the throne Pope Gregory XVI. was the ruler of St. Peter's. Pius IX. was elected to succeed him on June 16th, 1846, and he was succeeded by Pope Leo XIII. on Feb. 18th, 1878. Pope Leo XIII. was born on March 2nd, 1810, and will consequently be 91 in a little over a month.

—The Feast of Candlemas, a holiday of special solemnity in the Roman Catholic church, will be observed at St. Mary's next Sunday, when the wax candles used on the altar during the year and in connection with funerals will be blessed and the members of the congregation, will be similarly blessed with the prescribed ceremonies.

—There are rocky times ahead for "divine healers." Down in Jacksonville, Fla., a city has passed an ordinance levying a license of $500 a year on all "healers" who are not regularly licensed physicians. New York legislature is considering a bill to make "healing" with crucifixes, out the use of drugs, a practice of medicine under the law requiring a medical license.

To the President, Directors and Shareholders of the Victoria Loan and Savings Company:

GENTLEMEN,—We have carefully audited the books and accounts of your Company for the year ending Dec. 31st, 1900, and certify that the accompanying statement shows the true financial position of the Company at that date.

The securities have been inspected and compared with ledger accounts and found to agree therewith.

D. EAGLESON, C.A.,
R. McCAULEY,
Auditors.

Lindsay, January 18th, 1901.

DISCUSSION UPON THE REPORT.

Mr. McLaughlin, in moving the adoption of the Report, drew attention to the satisfactory progress made, as shown by the amount of assets at the end of each year, viz.:

First year	$31,345 00
Second year	94,567 00
Third year	150,195 00
Fourth year	176,414 00
Fifth year	231,910 00

He also showed the possibility of overtaking a great deal more business in this private vicinity, and remarked on the satisfactory history of Loan Companies in Canada.

Rev. Mr. Hill called attention to the remarkably economical management, as shown by comparison with other companies.

Mr. Taylor thought well of the Report and also of the Management; the Company was conducted both economically and carefully; the progress, while not extraordinary, was quite satisfactory. No extraordinary effort had been made, safety being the paramount idea. He was pleased to see the debenture element introduced. This class of investment was very desirable for people who were not accustomed to investing their money, and felt satisfied that if people only knew of the facilities of the Company to issue debentures this department would grow in favor.

Mr. Stevens emphasized the care with which all the loaning was done. The Company did not depend on the report of Agents, who have no further interest than to get their commission, but in every case had a report from parties interested in the Company. He was much pleased with the growth of the Reserve Fund.

Rev. Mr. Roberts said the longer he was connected with the Company the more satisfied he was that his investment was a good one. He was much gratified with the Management.

Mr. McCauley, as one of the Auditors, remarked on the satisfactory and accurate manner in which the books and securities were kept.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.

The Board of Directors consists of 10 members, five retiring each year. Those retiring this year were Messrs. H. J. Lytle, C. Chittick, S. Armour, J. W. Ray, M.D., and Rev. N. Hill. These were re-elected for a period of two years. Messrs. D. Eagleson and R. McCauley were re-appointed Auditors.

Thanks were given to the Manager and Secretary for their efficient work during the past year.

At a meeting of the Directors the following officers were appointed for the current year, viz.:

MR. WM. FLAVELLE,	President.
MR. W. H. Clarke, M.D.,	Vice President.
MR. J. MAGWOOD,	Managing Director.
MR. JAMES LOW,	Secretary. wd1

MUNICIPAL COUNCIL

But They're After the Police Commissioners, Allee Samee.

INTERESTING SESSION OF THE TOWN COUNCIL LAST NIGHT.

Looks as if Chief Crandell, of the Fire Brigade, will Lose his Job—Motion to Dismiss the Police Commissioners was Voted down by Mayor Ingle—New Fire Alarm System Requires Daily Reports—Will Have the Bell Telephone Man—Communications, Reports and Other Business.

Our city fathers met in regular monthly session last night and sat in the council chamber. There were no abscesses and business was taken up at 7.30 sharp, when the minutes of the last regular and special meetings, held Jan. 14th and 21st, were read and confirmed.

A number of communications were received and referred to their respective committees.

Sewer on William-st.

Ald. Jackson presented a petition from certain property owners on William-st. west side, asking that a sanitary sewer be put down the street, the cost to be paid 75 ft. north of Kent-st., to Wellington-st., and spread over 20 years.—Referred to Town Commissioner Chalmers.

Commissioner Reports.

Reports were submitted by Ald. Tourbburn, chairman Board of Works; Ald. Hore, Town Property; Ald. Jackson, Finance; and Ald. Robson, Police and Lighting, which have already appeared in these columns. On motion the reports were adopted.

Thinks he has a Grievance.

On motion Mr. Thos. Robson (Sunny) was heard. He said he appeared to protest against the treatment he had received from the councils of the town of Lindsay. When opposition had been brought here and caused him to throw him out of business, he felt that he should be given fair treatment. He had been promised every concession given to Mr. Beal.

Mayor Ingle—Were you not granted exemption as well as Mr. Beal?

Mr. Robson—Well, I thought the exemption would be granted me, and if it didn't; that suited Mr. Beal, but it put me in for an extra year's taxes.

Ald. Jackson—"Mr. Mayor, this matter has been threshed out repeatedly in committee; when Mr. Robson was present last time we explained to him that owing to a change in the law concerning exemptions it would be impossible to give him what he wants without endangering the whole made. We offered to refer the matter to his own solicitor."

Ald. Tourbburn—"I think we are perfectly willing to do what Mr. Robson asks providing his solicitor will show us how it can be done without invalidating the contract and leaving us in a worse position."

Ald. Hore—"I think the same view of the matter, after which Ald. Robson exclaimed, "It's a dirty piece of business—a despicable piece of business."

Ald. Jackson—"Mr. Mayor, I move that we proceed with the next order of business."

Tips at the Brigade Chief.

Moved by Ald. Tourbburn, seconded by Ald. Begg, that by-law No. 893 to repeal By-law No. 871, appointing a Chief of the Fire Brigade and regulating salary of that person, also amending By-law No. 854, be now read a third time.

Ald. Jackson—"I think before proceeding further he would like an explanation of the object of this by-law. We're at the opening of a new century and he hoped the council would not take a backward step. If the object of the mover and seconder was to dismiss the present Chief he should first see to it that a better man was secured than the one they have. The council had provided a really great and a good man who should not take care of it. He was not defending his present Chief, but thought that he should not be dismissed until a better man was found to take his place."

Ald. Tourbburn thought the council would make a great mistake in dismissing the present Chief and appointing in his stead any member of the brigade. When we have had fires it was only by rare occasions that we have had men on hand to place his men—he usually had not interested in the way, and when the Chief presented his bill for inspecting the system, it was a surprise. Mr. Scott said that the wires were placed at the top of the telephone poles there would be no trouble. The old system had not been inspected daily, or even weekly, and if the new one has to be looked after daily we are but little better off, after all the expense. He would like to see the system run twice for couple. By dismissing the Chief over $250 would be saved.

Ald. Sinclair—"Mr. Jackson wants to know if we can get a second reading of his by-law. I can tell him "Yes;" for $50 a year we can get a man who for years has been on the brigade for 26 years. As for inspecting the system, he has been speaking to Mr. Bessor, an expert electrician; he did not think the present inspections would be necessary, and if so he would look after the system for $50 a year.

Ald. Jackson—"Suppose we allow the Chief to carry out the duties, I speak, it might cost us $200 for an expert to repair it. Certainly, as Ald. Tourbburn remarked, I did not understand that there was to be a daily inspection. Perhaps we have not got the best men available for the position of Chief. I would like to have the matter discussed in committee."

The introduction of the by-law was then voted on and carried on the following vote:—Ayes—Ald. Tourbburn, Sinclair, Robson and O'Reilly.

Police Commissioners Next.

Moved by Ald. Sinclair, seconded by Ald. Tourbburn, that By-law No. 893, repeal By-law No. 893, constituting a Board of Commissioners of Police, be read a second time.

Ald. Tourbburn said that as seconder of the resolution he would give his reasons for taking such a step. He had not been in favor of the council giving up to others the little authority they possessed. The Mayor, while one of the Commissioners, was practically only a figure-head, his vote being powerless against the other two, who cannot be reached in any way. Surely the council ought to be able to handle the police force. Of course, the Commissioners can be dismissed easily, but they had power to make appointments and fix salaries for 12 months ahead. He had no fault to find with anything the Commissioners had done so far, nor had any fault to find with the present Chief of Police, and he would follow the police business no further than the dismissal of the Commissioners. He did not want to open a door for the dismissal of the present Chief—he wanted that distinctly understood.

Ald. Jackson said the motion was a great surprise to him. He knew that his position in council under the old state of affairs had been anything but pleasant, and since the appointment of the Commissioners no manner had had cause to bow his head in shame. He thought the present Mayor—the head of the council—would be content to act as a figure-head anywhere. One great necessity of the present arrangement was that two of the Commissioners were not subject to yearly change, and were thus rendered superior to the pettyfoggery which had led to present himself once a day between Police Magistrate; under the old state of affairs the Chief had not been called on more than a dozen times. It was a strange thing to hear Mr. Tourbburn—a brethrenhood in sin—say that his object was to guard against what might happen. It was doing an injustice to the ex-Chief to stir up his past transgressions and have the press and the public referring to his past errors. We know that there was almost constant trouble with the police for twelve years, and that since the Commissioners were appointed we have been at peace.

Mr. Hore thought that the members who introduced such a motion were not acting in the best interests of the town. Personally he knew of the police troubles during the last four or five years preceding the appointment of the Commissioners. There was no fault to be found with the present Chief, and he believed that to go back to the old plan would be the worst thing they could do for the town.

Ald. Robson said he knew considerable about the old troubles; he had been the principle one asking for the appointment of Commissioners, and would still support them.

Ald. O'Reilly thought the control of the town officers should remain in the council, including the Waterworks Commissioners. The council would make as good a selection as in the case of the town treasurer, the market clerk, the street commissioner, and other officials. For that reason he would support the motion to dismiss the Police Commissioners.

Ald. Tourbburn said there had no doubt been good reasons for the appointment of the Police Commissioners at the time, but he had sufficient confidence to believe the council would replace themselves in the old difficulty if anything happened the present Chief. If he had signed the petition, as Ald. Robson had, he would, of course, hold up to that—he (the speaker) was not one to blow hot and cold in the same breath; he always took a manly course and stuck to it.

Mayor Ingle—"I suppose I'll have to place myself in a position also. Since their appointment the Commissioners have done nothing to justify their dismissal, and I will support them."

Ald. Begg—"Mr. Mayor, I rise to say a few words in reply to Ald. Jackson. I am not a supporter of the present Chief, but I am in favor of the Commissioners being in presence of the whole council.—Carried.

Ald. Sinclair, Hore, seconded by Ald. O'Reilly, that Ald. Jackson be appointed a member of the committee of the council on the Collegiate Lecture Course committee.—Carried.

Moved by Ald. Jackson, seconded by Ald. Hore, that this council hereby guarantees the payment of promissory notes discounted in Ontario Bank, and carried over from 1900.—Carried.

Moved by Ald. Jackson, seconded by Ald. Hore, that the Court of Revision for 1900 comprise Mayor Ingle and Aldermen Robson, Sinclair, Robson and O'Reilly.—Carried.

Moved by Ald. Tourbburn, seconded by Ald. Sinclair, that this council hereby authorize the Waterworks Commissioners to appoint a caretaker to operate the pumping station at the east end of Kent-st. Same to be changed into a saving clerk.—Carried.

Moved by Ald. Tourbburn, seconded by Ald. Begg, that the council assume the taxes on lot 1, north of Mosborough-st., in order to be used for piling and stone crushing.—Carried.

Ald. Jackson then moved an additional by-law, viz.: That Thomas McIlendy rescinded that he had not seen the water, and that the bill be allowed to cost Chief Crandell. It will be necessary to a special meeting to be held in two weeks.

To b: Prepared

For wurs is the surest way for this country to maintain peace. But in the opinion of the wise statesmen, it is better to prepare for war than to prepare for spring is the best way to avoid the dangers of the fever season. This is a season multitudes are learning to dread, for it is known that the blood is sure to be loaded with impurities and to be weak and sluggish. Hu millions begin to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, which purifies, enriches and vitalizes the blood, expels all disease germs, creates a good appetite, gives strength and energy and puts the whole system in a healthy condition, preventing pneumonia, fevers, and other dangerous diseases which are liable to attack a weakened system.

THE FACE BEHIND THE MASK

"I liked this part of the business excessively well at first, and I was flattered and glad to the top of my bent, and made from the first, the ringing bells and queen. There was more policy in that than admiration, I fancy, for the dwarf was all powerful among them and dreaded accordingly, and I was the dwarf's pet and plaything, and all powerful with him. The hideous creature had a soft h'doon passion for me then, and I could wind him around my finger as easily as Delilah did Samson; and by his command and influence I became the queen of society of loyalty, and was the mistress and sovereign head, even over the dwarf himself. It was a queer whim; but that crooked sing was always taking such odd notions into his head, which nobody there dared laugh at. The hand was bound together by a terrible oath, women and all, but they had to take another oath then—that of allegiance to me.

"It quite turned my brain at first; and my eyes were so dazzled by the pitiful glamour of the pageant, the sham splendor of the sham court, and the fawning, ridiculous idolatrous homage paid me, that I could see nothing beyond the shining surface, and the blackness and corruption and horror within, were altogether lost upon me. I felt feeling increased when, six months and months went by, there established to the mock peers of the Midlight Court, real nobles from the Court of Charles. I did not know then that they were ruined gentlemen, vicious profligates, and desperately broken-down rogues who would have gone to pandemonium itself, midst the fire and illusions and lawless excesses they could indulge in here to their hearts content. But I got tired of it all, after a time, and began slowly to open, and my heart—at least what little of it remain'd I ever had—turned sick with horror within me at what I had done. The awful things I saw; the foulest deeds that were perpetrated, would curdle your very blood with horror were I to relate them. You have seen a specimen yourself of the cold-blooded murder of that wretch half an hour ago; and life is not worth a rush, if the vengeance on these men, whose evil violation of their oath was punished, and their plots of treachery and informers was instant death, whether male or female. The sham trials and executions always took place in presence of the whole court, to strike a salutary terror into them, and never, or scarcely, but once a week, when the whole band regularly met. My power continued undiminished; for they knew well that the dwarf—I must be supreme, and though the queen was bad, the prince was worse. The said prince would willingly have pulled me down from my eminence, and have mounted it himself, but that he was probably restrained partly by a feeling that his vassals should not be lawbreakers, and that it set no ill example, have I would be no end to the insubordination and outbreaks that would follow."

"Were you living here or in London, then?" inquired Sir Norman, taking advantage of a pause, employed by Marguerite in shaking off the crawling beetles.

"Oh, in London! We did not come here until the outbreak of the plague—that frightened them, especially the female portion, and I had a special meeting, and resolved that we should take our quarters somewhere else. This place being old and ruined, and decayed, and with all sorts of evil rumors hanging about it, was hit upon, and secretly by night these mouldering old vaults were fitted up, and the goods and chattels of the royal court removed. And here, too, I was brought by night under the dwarf's own eye, for he well knew I would risk a thousand plagues to come to him. And here I have been ever since, and here the weekly revels are still held, and many for years to come, unless something is done to prevent it.

"The night before these weekly assignations the plague was discovered for the first of the time I am alone with Margery and the dwarf, and have learned more secrets during this place than they dream of. For the rest, there is no need of explanation—the dwarf and his crew have industriously circulated the report that it is haunted, and some of those white figures may well do so, and who, by the way, are the daughters of Hell Fire? We have been shown out on the broken battlements, as if to put the fact beyond doubt.

"Now, Sir Norman, that is all—you have heard my whole history as far as I know it, and my secret remains but to tell you what you must see yourself, that I am mad for revenge, and must have it, and you must help me.

Her eyes were shining with the fierce red fire he had seen in them before, and the white face were a look so deadly and diabolical that, with all his beauty, it was absolutely repulsive. He took a step from her—for in such a dead glaming eyes there not a devil.

"You must help me," she persisted.

"You—you, Sir Norman! For many a day I have been waiting for a chance like this, and patient as I have waited is vain. Alone, I want physical strength. Without you I dare not trust anyone else. No one else would venture to believe as you have been; and only weakness, as he die, you must be desperate and desperate enough to succeed. Quick! Delay, Destiny, Providence—whatever you like—is against us, and we must away, and help me you must and shall."

"Madame! madame! what are you saying? How can I help you?"

"There is help—there is—there!"

She held up in the pale ray of the lamp something she drew from the folds of her dress, that glistened like and bright and steely in the dim light.

"A dagger!" he exclaimed, with a shudder and a recoil. "Madame, are you laid weak?"

"I tell you, she said, through her closed teeth, and with a fierce flash in the fire, "that ridding the earth of that hideous incubus would be a good deed, and no murder. I would do it myself if I could take him off his guard; but he never is that with me, and I know I am not strong enough to reach his black heart through all that armor of steel and blood and muscle. No, Sir Norman, Doom has alloted to you your obey. I swear to you, you shall go free—free—and in ten minutes your bad, wild life shall be ended forever.

"Better that than the freedom you offer, Madame. I cannot murder."

"Coward!" she cried passionately; "you fear to do it, and yet you have but a life to lose, and that is lost to you now."

Sir Norman raised his head; and even in the darkness she saw the haughty flush that crimsoned his face.

"If fear no man living; but, madame, I fear One who is higher than man!"

"Then you will die if you refuse; and I repent, and am willing to share the risk. These gurots will not let you out, but there are means of escaping a room than through the door. I have had time to spend the day in poetry to where he is standing, and you can slip out behind him, and escape with me. Quick! quick! there is no time to lose."

"I cannot do it," he said, resolutely drawing back and folding his arms. "In secret, I will not do it."

There was such a terrible look in the beautiful eyes that he half-expected to see her spring at him like a wildcat, and bury the dagger in his own breast. But the rule of life works by contraries; exact a blow and you will get a kiss; look for an embrace, and you will be startled by a kick. When the village spoke, he was calm, compared with what it had been before, even mild.

"You refuse? Well, a wilful man must have his way, and when you are so squeamish about a little bloodletting, we must try another plan. I release you—for short as the time is, I can do that—and promise to go direct to the king this very night, and inform him of all that you have seen and heard since.

She looked at him with an eagerness that was almost fierce, and in spite of her steady voice, there was something hollow and quivering, deadly and terrible, in her upturned face. The firm look faded to a look of erect and immovable, the eyes were quietly received, the mouth half-pitiingly, half-saddly, smiling.

"Are you aware, dear lady, what the result of such a step would be?"

"Death!" she said, coldly.

"Death, transportation, or lifelong imprisonment to them all; misery and disgrace to many a noble house; for some I save there were once friends of mine, who would be ruined in honor and respect. Could I bring the dwarf and his attendant imps to Tyburn, and treat them to a temper rovary, I would do it without remorse—knowing that instead of being cut the former, even then would not be very pleasant, but at it, I would be ready to die, if one without running with me. Could you, some of them were once my friends, Sir Norman, and yet you ask it.

"I have but once to die, madame, and I have lost my life, life all such a life. There is a fearful silence, during which they gazed into each other's eyes, and the fierce look was about as colorless as the other.

"You refuse?" she coldly said.

"I must, but if you can save my life, as you say, why not do it, and my life is yours, for I am mad for revenge. And so escaping, I could have done that any time since, we came here, for I have found out a secret means of exit from each of these rooms, that they know nothing of. But I agree to see him dead at my feet—if not by my hand, yet due by my command; and since you will not do it, I will make the attempt myself. Farewell, Sir Norman Kingsley, before many days you will be a corpse, and your blood be upon your head."

She gave him a glance as coldly fierce as her dagger's glance, and turned to go, when he stepped forward, and interposed.

"Madame—Madame—you are crazed! Stop and tell me what you intend to do?"

"What you feared to attempt," she haughtily replied. "Strike the this dagger into his demon heart."

"Madame, give me the dagger. You must not, you shall not, commit such a crime."

"Let go!" she uttered sternly, "And who are you that dares to speak to me like this? Stand aside, coward, and let me pass."

"Madame, I cannot while you hold that dagger. Give it to me, and you will be free. But while you hold it with the dagger, for her own sake, I will detain you madame, at all hazards."

She uttered a low, fierce cry, and tried to wrench herself from the grasp he had laid, and with sudden force shoved him from her, and he was so taken up by the sudden force, that he was obliged to half-fall with its point, and fall on his knees, kneeling for it in a sort of frenzy, as he rose, and seized her hold it, she slipped forward, and he caught her, and drew her left to her side. There was a fierce struggle, and she was pinioned at both hands over her heart, a struggle, and a fierce, half-smothered taste on the loathsome face.

"Let go!" she hissed. "Fool! but added herself on her elbow, drew the dagger from the wound, and a gush of blood followed the sudden forced he hands. She did not faint; she did not faint; she did not even cry within her heart; she felt the struggle, the pain, the loathsome touch, the gush of blood, as if it were a dream, and felt no pain, no fear, no sorrow, no pity, no remorse—felt only the fierce, fiery, fiendish joy that filled her with a sense of exultation, and made her feel as if she could sing and dance and laugh with the joy of a fiend.

"Won't they?" said Robert, phlegmatically. "What a pity! let em run! and looked mournfully and reproachfully up in his face. These beautiful, soft, violet eyes, gazing up, so wild, savage and fierce, were truly Lesline's own now.

Through all his first shock of horror another thing dawned on his mind he had looked on this scene before. It was the second view in Lady Margaret's mind, but one he remembered to be verified.

The men who had the wounded in his knees in a paroxysm of grief and despair.

"What have I done? What have I done?" was his cry.

"Listen," said Robert, raising one finger, do you hear that?"

Lesline, who had been sobbing along the passage, yes, he heard them, and knew what they were.

"They are coming to lead you to death," she said, with some of her old fire, "but I will baffle them yet. Take that lamp, go to the wall yonder and slide the panel near the floor, you will see a small iron ring. Pull it, it will not require much force—and you will find an opening leading through some steps, and in the end there is a broken flight of steps, descend them, and you will find yourself in the same chamber from which, you fell. Fly, fly, there is no time to lose."

"How can I? How can I leave you dying here?"

"I am not dying!" she cried wildly. "I feel the life ebbing from me, yet would to posh him away, while the blood flowed over the floor, and we will both die if you stay. Go—go—go."

The footsteps had paused at his door. The bolts were beginning to be withdrawn. Under the lamp, few across his prison, found the ring, and took a pull at it, and the panel sprang straight. Part of what appeared to be the solid wall swung out, disclosing an aperture through which, with a rush, the breeze came outways. Quick as thought he was there, forgetting the lamp in his haste. The portion of the wall swung back into back, just as the prison door was thrown open, and Edward's voice was heard, socially inviting him, "Come, Bob's stokes, to come and be killed."

Some people talk of darkness as palpable that it may be felt, and if ever anyone was qualified to tell from experience what it is like, Sir Norman was in that precise condition. He stumbled and groped his way through the blind darkness, and stumbled at interminable distance and stumbled at the end, and was stopped by a wall back, just as the prison door was thrown open, and Edward's voice was heard, socially inviting him, "Come, Bob's stokes, to come and be killed."

He stumbled and groped his way through the blind darkness, and stumbled at interminable distance and stumbled at the end, and was stopped by a wall and. With some difficulty, and at the risk of his jugular, he mounted them and found a ledge, and felt his way along it, and found himself where he could lean against the wall in serene moonlight, and the open air—and heard the voice of Robert.

His horse was still where he had left him, and in a twinkling he was on his back, and flying away to the city, to love—to Leoline.

CHAPTER XV.

If things were all right — but they are not and never will be, while the whirligig world of mistakes spins round, and all the children go to the end of the chapter, will continue sinning to-day and repenting to-morrow, and sinning and repenting waiting it the day after. If Leoline Lagrange had been a good girl, a good dutiful little girl, as Sir Norman expected, she would have very well be such a good deal of trouble and tears; though her pillow sleep were destined to shake hands and embrace for the last time, that night, it was the death of one without running with the world, and you, some of them were once my friends, Sir Norman, yet ask it.

"I have but once to die, madame, and I have lost my life, life all such a life. There is a fearful silence, during which they gazed into each other's eyes, and the fierce look was about as colorless as the other.

"You refuse?" she coldly said.

"I must, but if you can save my life, as you say, why not do it, and my life is yours, for I am mad for revenge. As to escaping, I could have done that any time since, we came here, for I have found out a secret means of exit from each of these rooms, that they know nothing of. But I agree to see him dead at my feet—if not by my hand, yet due by my command; and since you will not do it, I will make the attempt myself. Farewell, Sir Norman Kingsley, before many days you will be a corpse, and your blood be upon your head."

She gave him a glance as coldly fierce as her dagger's glance, and turned to go, when he stepped forward, and interposed.

"Madame—Madame—you are crazed! Stop and tell me what you intend to do?"

"What you feared to attempt," she haughtily replied. "Strike the this dagger into his demon heart."

"Madame, give me the dagger. You must not, you shall not, commit such a crime."

"Let go!" she uttered sternly, "And who are you that dares to speak to me like this? Stand aside, coward, and let me pass."

"Madame, I cannot while you hold that dagger. Give it to me, and you will be free. But while you hold it with the dagger, for her own sake, I will detain you madame, at all hazards."

She uttered a low, fierce cry, and tried to wrench herself from the grasp he had laid, and with sudden force shoved him from her, and he was so taken up by the sudden force, that he was obliged to half-fall with its point, and fall on his knees, kneeling for it in a sort of frenzy, as he rose, and seized her hold it, she slipped forward, and he caught her, and drew her left to her side. There was a fierce struggle, and she was pinioned at both hands over her heart, a struggle, and a fierce, half-smothered taste on the loathsome face.

"Let go!" she hissed. "Fool! but added herself on her elbow, drew the dagger from the wound, and a gush of blood followed the sudden forced he hands. NEWMARKET FRANCHISES

North York Town Controls its own Light and Water.

A MODEL FOR LARGE TOWNS.

A Brief History of Flourishing Enterprises Conducted in a Business Manner by Prominent Citizens.

(Toronto Evening News, Jan. 26.)

One of the pioneer municipalities in both water supply and electric lighting as municipal industries is the town of Newmarket, the present terminus of the Metropolitan Street Railway on Yonge-st. There the two problems of light and water supply have been grappled with perfect success, and these two municipal enterprises are on their way to become revenue producing and tax reducing factors in the enterprising municipality.

In 1887 it was decided to instal a waterworks plant for fire protection purposes. It consisted of pumping station, engineer's residence, and a system of mains and hydrants throughout the principal streets of the town. The cost of this plant was approximately $30,000. It was scarcely completed when it was decided to extend the system to supply water for domestic purposes. This was carried out by sinking artesian wells from which an adequate water supply was obtained. The water from the wells flow into a receiving well, from which it is pumped into a distributing reservoir with an elevation of ninety feet above the ground at the power station. The five wells cost $2,764.80.

Electric Light Plant.

It was in 1896 when Newmarket decided to make domestic and street lighting a municipal venture. A company had previously installed a plant, but failed to make the venture pay and became bankrupt. The town then took the matter up, and the improvement was a marked one from the commencement. The private incandescent lighting service was changed from a midnight to an all-night, and almost immediately the number of lights in use were doubled, jumping up from 450 to over 900. Now, it has reached a total of seventeen hundred lights of 16-candle power. In providing for the electric light plant, the waterworks station was extended to receive another boiler, engine and dynamos, and by combining the two a saving in plant, fuel and wages was effected.

Street Lighting.

There are now on the streets twenty-three arc lamps of a nominal 1,200 candle power each, but a change in the branch of the system has been decided upon. The increasing number and size of the shade trees, and narrowness of many of the streets, some also crooked, militate against successful street lighting unless double the present number of lights was installed. As an alternative the council has decided in connection with the extentions now being made to the plant to replace the arc lamps with a system of incandescent lamps of 32 candle power, which will be installed on two independent circuits of 42 lamps each, one on the east, the other on the west side of the town. On Main-st. in the business portion of the town are to be placed six alternating long-burning arc lamps of 2,000 candle power capacity. With arc lamps suspended in the centre of the main street, and incandescent lamps which can be located as advantageously as gas lamps with respect to shade trees it is anticipated that a good service of street lighting will be obtained. The total number of incandescent lamps for private lighting is seventeen hundred on a 16-candle power basis, there being a few of 32-candle power and a few of 8-candle power. On the water service system there are thirty-three hydrants and 175 services. The principal users of water are two large factories and the Grand Trunk Railway. The latter contracts for 30,000 gallons daily for engines, from which the town derives a yearly revenue of $600.

Such are the main physical features of a system which, however, possesses more interest from the financial point of view. It may be held down as a principle that to be successful a municipal industry must pay for operation, maintenance, extension and debenture charges, as well as improve the conditions of service. When it has paid for itself it is expected to give cheaper service and perhaps give a revenue. The Newmarket light and water system is only in the first stage, but it has been managed so successfully hitherto that the assurance felt by the citizens of its ultimate success may be said to rest on safe foundations.

To put the electric light plant and water services in their present condition Newmarket has issued debentures from time to time amounting in all to $47,783, but this does not accurately represent the total cost of the Newmarket plant as it now stands. Much of the work first installed has been torn up in the course of later improvements and extension, as for example alterations at the lower station, replacing small with large mains. Moreover, the waterworks and electric light services have been continually extended to supply new customers. The cost of these extensions has been provided for out of the current account, a fact which says much for the excellent management of the finances of the services.

A summary of the receipts and expenditures since the installation in 1887 to 1899, inclusive, is as follows:

Receipts.

Waterworks, for private services for 11 years...	$15,250.19
Waterworks, service for fire protection for 12 years..	12,000.00
Electric plant, private lighting, three years...	9,316.00
Electric plant, street public lighting, three years...	2,640.00
Total...	$39,236.89

Expenditure.

General expense for operating...	$21,883.76
Salaries...	6,830.17
Total...	$28,713.76
Surplus of receipts from 1887 to 1899...	$10,523.13

In the statement of receipts it will be seen that the cost of water for fire protection and the cost of street and public lighting are included. The total annual charge for fire protection is about $1,000. This sum would provide twenty hydrants, if rented from a private company at $50 each per annum.

As it is, this town has a good system of fire protection, thirty-three hydrants and an engineer constantly on duty.

Again, during the period since the establishment of the service, the position of the town has constantly improved with regard to the receipts and expenditure. Of course, it never was anticipated that the revenue from the waterworks would, during the first few years of existence, be sufficient to defray all expenses of operation and maintenance, and meet the annual payment of debentures as well. They did not at first, but the position of affairs has greatly changed. Take the year 1899 as an example of what may be expected for the future.

Waterworks revenue...	$1,779.94
Electric light revenue...	3,624.73
Fire protection...	1,000.00
Street and public lighting...	880.00
Total...	$7,284.67

As against these figures there are:

General expense of waterworks and light service...	$3,267.00
Salaries...	968.00
Debentures paid...	2,459.13
Total...	$6,694.13
Surplus for the year...	$ 590.54

The matter of depreciation of plant is an item of cost which is subject to much difference of opinion, but a summary of the situation points to the following facts: that at the end of thirteen years the Newmarket plant has met all costs of maintaining operation, and extending the services, and in addition has paid $10,523.84 of the $18,946.65 annually paid up to the end of 1899.

Water Rates.

The water rates as established by by-law are in part: Private houses, first tap, $6 per annum; second tap, $1; offices $2; bath in private houses, $2. General charge of 20c. per 1,000 gallons is made for water supplied by meter.

Electric Light Rates.

The following is the schedule of rates for lighting, and is of much interest to Torontonians:

House Lights.

1 light per annum...	$4.80 each
2 light per annum...	4.50 "
3 lights per annum...	4.00 "
4 and 5 lights per annum...	3.60 "
6 and 7 lights per annum...	3.40 "
8 and 9 lights per annum...	3.20 "
10 and 11 lights per annum...	3.00 "
12 lights per annum...	2.80 "
13 lights per annum...	2.70 "
14 lights per annum...	2.60 "
15 lights per annum...	2.50 "
16 lights per annum...	2.40 "
17 lights per annum...	2.30 "
18 lights per annum...	2.20 "
19 lights per annum...	2.10 "
20 lights per annum...	2.00 "

The future of these two services will be worth watching as they may be said to be entering upon another stage of their existence. Last year, 1900, there was made an issue of debentures amounting to $10,000, for the purpose of increasing the capacity and duplicating certain portions of the plant. The electric light plant only just suffices to fill demands, but will not stand any extension. It is intended to have a duplicate plant, including boilers, engines, dynamos, and waterworks pumps in case of breakage or other accident. With the improved efficiency, a better and more economic service may be expected. And in one respect Newmarket is very fortunate, and that is in the type and calibre of the men who have associated themselves with the public affairs of the town. They are in every respect the leading citizens, men who are foremost in their business and indissolubly identified with the progress of the place. It is owing to their management of the water and light service that these departments have progressed as well as they have. Newmarket has no natural advantages in the way of water power. The motive power is coal, which is expensive, and has to be transported by rail. In addition, there are many excellent wells in the place, whose owners do not require public water service. On the other hand, the town was not compelled to buy out a heavily capitalized private company when placing the town service under municipal control.

And he with courage waited,

We go where we're expected.

THEY WERE EXTORTIONERS

Russia Will Require of China 30,000,000 Taels for Restoring Manchuria, and Germany Wants 5,000,000 as Compensation for Killing Baron Von Ketteler—German Soldiers Accused of Bestiality.

Pekin, Jan. 31.—A court-martial, which has caused considerable interest, has been held in Tien Tsin during the last two weeks. The men on trial are Privates Dickson and Seamons of the Fifteenth Infantry. It was published in October last that these men, while on guard duty along the river, held up several villages, demanding from 100 to 200 taels, protection money, and that in some cases their demands were complied with. They were captured by the French and turned over to the American authorities. During the trial Dickson escaped and is still at liberty. Seamons was sentenced to 20 years' imprisonment and Dickson to 21 years.

Horrible Details

Berlin, Jan. 31.—A special despatch to The Cologne Volks Zeitung from China relates horrible details about the warfare in that country, and says:

"We hope these awful conditions will soon cease. The depravity and bestiality also among our troops is enormously on the increase. Large numbers of old soldiers are sentenced to long terms in the penitentiary and jail for murder, rape or burglary. Our losses are certainly greater that way than by death, though diseases are still rampant, especially typhus.

FOUR PROPOSITIONS SUBMITTED.

Conservative Caucus Selects One Which Premier Roblin Will Soon Announce.

Winnipeg, Jan. 31.—A caucus of the Conservative members of the Legislature was held Tuesday evening when four respective railway propositions were submitted to the Government and a conclusion reached to accept one of them. The Government was authorized to proceed without delay to close the bargain, accepting the one decided upon by the caucus. It was also decided that the Legislature be called for the despatch of business on Thursday, Feb. 21. When seen by a reporter after the caucus Premier Roblin said: "The terms and conditions of the accepted proposition cannot be made public at present, but an early opportunity will be taken to disclose to the public its nature."

The Executive of the Liberal Association of Winnipeg will recommend that P. C. McIntyre, ex-M. P. P., be appointed to the vacant postmastership.

The Details "Unofficially."

The Free Press to-night says: "The railway arrangement submitted by Premier Roblin to caucus is to the following effect: The Government will lease the lines of the Northern Pacific and Manitoba Railway Company for a period of ninety-nine years, with option of purchase, at an annual rental of $250,000. The Government will lease the lines to the Canadian Northern Railway Company, that is, the Mackenzie and Mann system, for the same rental which the Government is to pay the Northern Pacific. The Canadian Northern will thus furnish the Government with the amount of the rental and the Government will turn it over to the Northern Pacific. In addition the Canadian Northern people propose to guarantee a reduction in the wheat rate from Winnipeg to Lake Superior equal to four cents per hundred pounds, providing the Government guarantees the interest on bonds of the Ontario and Rainy River Railway."

The King Will Open Parliament.

THE RAGE OF DEWET.

The Shooting of the British Peace Envoy at Klipfontein Supplemented by Another Murder.

Cape Town, Jan. 31.—The Commissioner at Kroonstad reports that Andries Wessels, one of the peace envoys, was shot at Klipfontein, Jan. 28, by order of Gen. Dewet.

Lord Kitchener reported from Pretoria, Jan. 13, that three agents of the Boer Peace Committee had been taken as prisoners to Gen. Dewet's laager near Lindley, and one, a British subject, had been flogged, and then shot. The other two, burghers, were flogged by Gen. Dewet's orders. Gen. Dewet's action excited great indignation in Great Britain. One or two of the newspapers expressed the hope that Gen. Kitchener had been misled by false Kaffir reports. The London Daily Mail headed the report with the word "Murder," and declaimed against any further attempt to coax the enemy into submission.

Morgan Dall, who was another of the two Boer envoys, and who accompanied Andries Wessels, was shot near Lindley, Jan. 10.

Dewet Has 1,500 Men and Two Guns.

London, Feb. 1.—"Gen. Dewet's force consists of 1,500 men and two guns," says the Cape Town correspondent of The Daily Mail. "It is unofficially confirmed that he has entered Cape Colony, but definite news is impatiently awaited."

Boers Attacked Mines

Johannesburg, Jan. 31.—Four or five hundred Boers recently evaded the British patrols, reached Benoni, and attempted to destroy the mines. Some fighting resulted, and the Boers were beaten off, carrying away most of their wounded and leaving two wounded behind them. The British captured three prisoners. One Briton was wounded. Commandant Marais was wounded during the attack, and was subsequently captured.

Kitchener Admits Difficulties.

Brussels, Feb. 1.—A special despatch from Rome says: In a letter to Archbishop Sogara, dated Jan. 15, Lord Kitchener admits that the situation of the British is very difficult, and that the Boers are still hoping for European intervention. He declares, however, that it is not true that the British have committed cruelties.

No other medicated soap is to be compared with it for preserving, purifying, and beautifying the skin, scalp, hair, and hands. No other foreign or domestic toilet soap, however expensive, is to be compared with it for all the purposes of the toilet, bath, and nursery. LINDSAY, FRIDAY, FEB. 8th, '01.

ENATOR M'HUGH

The appointment of Mr. Geo. McHugh to the Senate was generally approved throughout the Dominion, especially in the County of Victoria, by all shades of public opinion, that the recipient of this honor should be deeply touched. It is not often in public life that a man wins such golden opinions from political friend and foe alike, and the occurrence of an instance like this goes a long way to take the bitterness out of party warfare and to revive our faith in the good qualities of humanity.

There is only one regret of this appointment that The Post is glad to note. George McHugh goes to the Senate, not as a representative of the farmers, or working classes, but as a representative of the people. It would be unfortunate if the Senate were to be filled with lawyers, doctors, ministers and professional men generally and that one must possess wealth and higher education and social prestige to be of the honored few. Such conditions of entrance would shut out many of the best men in Canada, men who are only conspicuous by the material upbuilding of the country, but who are doing a great deal to mould public opinion in thoroughly sound principles.

It would be impossible to find a man more thoroughly representative of his country than Senator McHugh. Roger Mortimer, settled in Upper Canada in 1832, after having fought for King and Country in the Continental wars; His son, Patrick McHugh, served this country for years in many capacities and was in local public life for many years. Geo. McHugh is the third generation of the family to serve the country, and the Victoria County has been honored in the choice of one of her own sons, whose life has been spent within her borders. As Senator McHugh is comparatively a young man, we wish for him years of active public life, feeling confident that his heart and mind are true and his efforts will be devoted to the highest interests of the nation.

PROSPEROUS LOCAL INSTITUTION.

We take great pleasure in calling the attention of the people of this and adjoining counties to the magnificent showing made by the Victoria Loan & Savings Company, of Lindsay, as set forth in the financial statement for 1900 printed elsewhere. Realizing that the large sum of money sent out of the county annually in payment of the principal and interest on loans represented so much withdrawn from local circulation, a number of our enterprising business men and financiers conceived the idea of establishing a home institution, and in 1895 the Victoria Loan & Savings Co was formed with a capital of $300,000, of which $137,600 was subscribed and $106,697.75 is now paid up. With men of recognized ability and financial ability on the board of management, the new company at once commanded the confidence of the general public, and from the very outset the growth of the business transacted has been marked and the returns most satisfactory to the shareholders and investors. At the end of the first year the assets were $51,345; second year, $94,562; third year, $156,195; fourth year, $176,111, and for 1900 the handsome sum of $210,410. After paying two half-yearly dividends and other claims, a substantial sum remains to be added to the rest account. The success of the company is due to the personal attention given to its affairs by the officers. Every application for a loan is carefully considered, and the security is investigated with a thoroughness that ensures against loss. We predict for the Victoria Loan & Savings Co. still greater prosperity in the opening year of the 20th century, and congratulate Mr. John Magwood, the official Managing Director, and the other officers, on the grand showing made by this deserving local institution since its organization.

West Victoria Institute

PROFITABLE MEETING AT OAKWOOD THURSDAY WEEK.

Fair Attendance of Farmers—Interesting and Helpful Addresses and Papers.

A meeting of the Farmers' Institute was held at Oakwood on Thursday afternoon and evening of last week. The afternoon session was attended by about one hundred persons.

President Channon

opened the meeting with a description of his method of putting down cement floors in his stables. He said his home stable was 37 x 16 ft., and in putting in the cement floor he had used 14 barrels of Portland cement at $2.25 per barrel. He used six loads of sand at $1.25 per load, labor $11; total cost, $48.75. The first layer was two inches of gravel mixed, one part of cement to five parts gravel, with a top dressing of three parts sand and one part cement. He had carefully figured the cost of a suitable floor of lumber and found it would be $29.36, which showed a difference of $9.39 in favor of gravel, but cement would outwear a half-dozen plank floors. He had also put a cement floor in his hen house, which was not as heavy as the horse stable floor; its cost was 68c per yard against 75c per yard if built of plank. The cement was certainly the best, as it was vermin-proof, cheaper and easier kept clean. He was now careful feeding his stock twice a day instead of once, and was more careful to have it more satisfactorily fed, given and less trouble; of Rosehill, spoke on the selection and cross breeding of animals. He referred to the necessity of carefully selecting the sires, possessing proper form and qualities of breeding. He thought the question was not receiving the attention it should have. In many cases farmers purchase young sires that are not fully developed, and he was sorry he force his best qualities were developed, thus by the time he was at his best it was necessary to change the sire. He advocated keeping the very best stock as most profitable, and also advised all breeders to try and interest their neighbors, as there was no doubt that, where a neighborhood was known for raise good cattle, the best buyers would visit that part, therefore those farmers would realize the highest market prices. There was money in breeding horses, but poor horses were a burden and a curse to the country. Good sires would produce profitable and salable horses. Mr. Leslie Moore, of Stratford, Ont., was instantly killed at the Auditorium rink in this city last night, about 5 o'clock, by a blow from the puck, during the progress of a game of hockey between teams representing the Dominion Bank and the Canadian Union and Mry chants' Banks. The fatal puck was played in the following way: He set the stick of Ralph Borrist, of the Merchants' Bank, on the puck and never after receiving the blow, which took place in the middle of the rink. The blow which resulted in the young man's death was not an extraordinary hard one, in fact, the puck as it struck Borrist was moving very slow, and would from a light tilt.

Mr. J. G. Raynor,

Instead of taking the puck on its death-dealing errand, is a young man of Stratford, who, if he had a mind would not have lifted the puck at a rate calculated to inflict serious injuries on whoever the puck might in course happen to strike. It was stated last evening by Fritz Barron was undertaken by those immediately acquainted with the facts to be nothing more than a slight tilt of the heart, and this, although not sensational, was a "pretty play," is said to have contributed to the sad accident which followed.

He was 22 years of age, smart, clever, popular and generally esteemed in his circle of friends, and by his superiors in the Dominion Bank.

Everyone in Lindsay knew and liked Fritz Barron. When his school days were over he entered the Dominion Bank here as junior clerk, and his promotion was rapid. Like his father, he was a lover of the game of hockey, and wherever he happened to be he took pleasure in being prominent as a leading player.

Judge and Mrs. Barron have the heartfelt sympathy of our people in their sudden and overwhelming affliction. Several of our citizens left Lindsay in Toronto evening Friday evening, and they parted with him at the train his witty sallies provoked a hearty laughter. About this time the game started in Winnipeg which was to shorten poor Barron's session. Truly we know not what an hour may bring forth.

Additional Details of the Fatality

The Winnipeg Free Press of Saturday last continued a long account of the circumstances under which Mr. Fritz Barron lost his life while playing hockey. From it we glean the following additional particulars:

The first half of the game, which was a very fast one, between the Merchants' Union, had not been contested very hard, and at the end of it, it was an easy-looking tilt, and the puck and the stick were lying near each other in the solar plexus. His heart, naturally weak, was stopped, and for some minutes had passed life was extinct. The doctors were unanimous in the opinion that death was caused by a blow on the solar plexus, which affected the heart.

When the unfortunate form was carried off the ice, it was in the large audience thought anything more serious than a temporary loss of senses had occurred, so that when it was known that he was dead, the effect on the final faint announcement came with a shock of consternation.

Fritz Barron was very popular with the people of Winnipeg and many in the city. He was one of these straightforward, honest, manly fellows, everyone likes. A good hockey player, he has played in Winnipeg for two years. At the time of the accident the score was 3 to 0 in favor of the Dominion. Some time after Barron was hurt, the game was called for ten minutes, but when it was learned that the young man's life was in danger, the game was immediately stopped, and the players left the ice.

It is learned that Barron was playing hockey against his doctor's orders, as he had been forbidden to do so, owing to his weak heart.

As a result of the fatality all further games in the rink leagues for the season have been cancelled.

FRITZ BARRON'S SAD DEATH

INSTANTLY KILLED IN A HOCKEY MATCH AT WINNIPEG FRI DAY NIGHT.

The Rubber Struck him in the Solar Plexus, and he Never Spoke After Receiving the Blow.

The feeling of sadness in the hearts of our people Saturday was increased by the shocking news—made public noon after 8 a.m.—that Fritz Barron, son of Judge Barron, of Stratford, Ont., was killed Friday evening in Winnipeg while taking part in a hockey match. The first intimation of the deplorable occurrence came in the form of a brief telegram from Mr. Willmot, editor of The Post staff, to his father, who happened to be in the office of the Winnipeg Tribune, and the morning paper contained the following additional particulars.

Winnipeg, Feb. 1st.—Fritz W. Barron, collection clerk in the Dominion Bank, son of Judge Barron, of Stratford, Ont., was instantly killed at the Auditorium rink this evening about 5 o'clock, by a blow from the puck, during the progress of a game of hockey between teams representing the Dominion Bank and the Canadian Union and Mry chants' Banks. Consumption No Barrier.

Shiloh Counteracts Hereditary Tendencies.

Many a man's life has been wrecked simply because he dare not marry. Being conscientious, and knowing that his ancestors have suffered and died from the dreaded disease of Consumption, he feels himself debarred from the pleasures and responsibilities of married life. Happily, it is now proven that this taint of Consumption is no longer an insuperable barrier. The tendency toward Consumption may be overcome in youth or early manhood and womanhood. Proper care, proper diet and proper exercise — together with Shiloh's Cure — will conquer the handicaps of heredity and make every body so placed equal to the burdens and joys of married life. A prominent young merchant of Winnipeg—who asks that names be not publicly given—became engaged to marry—but his conscience pricked him for he carried hereditary taints of Consumption, and he feared to marry. One day, being in a very dispondent mood, his sweetheart trying to cheer him, mentioned having read of several cures affected by Shiloh's Cure and tried to persuade him to give it a trial. He at last consented and at once began to take Shiloh regularly. The result was so encouraging that after a while they were married. That event occurred some eight or nine years ago and no signs of the dreaded malady have yet appeared and neither he nor their two children show exceptional proneness to coughs, colds, or any pulmonary weakness.

If taken in Time Cures Consumption.

Shiloh's Consumption Cure is no common medicine. It is a medicine that cures. It is a guaranteed medicine, it won't fail, if you are not satisfied with the results after using two thirds of the contents of the bottle, return the balance to the druggist and he will at once refund you the whole of your purchase money. Sold in Canada and United States at 25c., 50c. and $1.00 a bottle. In Great Britain at 1s. 2d., 2s. 3d. and 4s. 6d. S. C. WELLS CO., Toronto.

Victoria Co Cheese Board

THE ANNUAL MEETING WAS HELD THURSDAY.

President Derbyshire, of the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association, in Attendance—Important Discussion on the Whey Question—New Inspector to be Engaged.

The annual meeting of the County Cheese Board was held in the council chamber Thursday afternoon. Mr. T. Robertson, of Dunsford, the popular president, occupied the chair. The meeting started well on time, and was largely attended, nearly all the factories selling on the Board being represented. Much interest was manifested. Mr. E. Shine, of Downeyville, the efficient secretary, read the minutes of the last meeting, which on motion of Mr. McQuade, seconded by Mr. Sinclair, were confirmed.

Among those in attendance were Mr. Dan. Derbyshire, of Brockville, the popular President of the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association; Mr. J. Whitton, of Wellman's Corners, East Hastings; Messrs. Irwin, Janetville; Davis, Downeyville; Thurston, Dunsford; O'Brien, Downeyville; Teevin, Ops; McAlpine, Reaboro; Nugent, Omemee; Jordon, Oakwood; Agnew, Ops; Sinclair, Cambray; Lewis, Oakwood; Brown, Reaboro; Kennedy, Dunsford; Jackson, Ops; Parkins, Cameron; Robertson, Dunsford; Greenan, Ops; Herlihey and O'Neill, Downeyville; Braden, Bobcaygeon; McQuade, Omemee; Lytle, Lindsay; Taylar, Bobcaygeon; Meehan and Murtha, Downeyville; Ray, Reaboro; Laidley, Omemee; Sandford, Fenelon Falls; Calvert, Reaboro; Greer, Ops; Wilson, Lindsay; and A. L. Minthorne, Oakwood.

Remarks by the President.

The President opened the meeting by making a few brief remarks regarding the progress of the Lindsay Cheese Board. This was the first meeting of the board for 1901, and as we are commencing a new century under the reign of a new monarch we should be progressive. The Board had been in existence six years, but during the last two years there had been a decrease in the number of boxes boarded on account of several factories withdrawing, while two were burnt, (Kinmount and Valentia.) Some of these factories had made private sales, thinking they were disposing of their cheese at a higher price. That was not the way to do business, and he hoped all the factories would be represented on the board next season. President Robertson next referred to the death of our beloved Queen, who had been a noble ruler, and he hoped that a bad King would not follow a good Queen. Before concluding he read a letter from Mr. T. B. Carlaw, of Warkworth, regarding the re-engagement of Mr. Ward as inspector and cheese instructor for the coming season; also one from Mr. T. Watkin, cheese exporter, of Belleville, complaining of the practice of factories during the past season in drawing whey back in the milk cans.

Election of Officers.

The President called for election of officers for the ensuing year and the same gentlemen were re-elected, viz.: President, T. Robertson, Dunsford; 1st Vice-President, T. Parkins, Cameron; 2nd Vice-President, T. Calvert; Secretary, E. Shine; Treasurer, F. Sandford.

Engagement of an Instructor.

Considerable discussion ensued when the re-engagement of a cheese Instructor was mooted. Mr. Ward, last year's Instructor, made himself unpopular with the patrons of several factories which he had visited, and strong objection was raised against him by Mr. Nugent, president of the Omemee factory, who said that a patron had been fined $50 last summer by the Instructor for putting water in milk, which he thought was very unfair. He understood Mr. Ward had threatened to fine the man $100, and as the farmer did not want to go to law he settled for $50.

Mr. Irwin, of Janetville, stated that Instructor Ward visited their factory on two occasions and had given poor satisfaction, as he had only made during that time 10 tests, which was not a square deal.

Mr. Jordan, of Oakwood, was not in favor of an instructor, as their cheesemaker had not received sufficient advice. He thought it a big expense, and his factory did not require Mr. Ward's service.

Mr. Clancy said that perhaps Mr. Ward had not taken off his coat when visiting factories, but his work was allright. He could not agree with Mr. Jordan, and he felt an instructor was necessary.

Mr. Whitton said the cheesemakers should make their complaints now. If Ward had not given satisfaction he would be removed. He thought a man no good if he had no enemies, and he admired a man with sand enough to stand by his rights and mete out punishment to those guilty of dishonesty. He claimed that if an instructor made 8 or 10 tests per factory he was doing good work. Mr. Derbyshire and he were present to hear the complaints. The micrometer will disclose the accurcy of the test. He understood that this man so badly used by Mr. Ward wanted to settle, and had followed the Inspector on the road in order to meet him. He had been told also that the man referred to kept his own family supplied, besides selling milk to the factory, all from one cow. If they could prove that the man was not guilty of committing the crime, then the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association would refund the money. We must not have dishonesty in the milk business—we must stamp it out. It is hard to put dependence in some people—if a man is dishonorable he will be that way in spite of the church or anything else.

Mr. Lytle spoke in reference to fodder cheese and of the bad effect it had upon the market. He suggested that Mr. Peglow, of the Kingston Dairy School should address a future meeting of the board. He referred to the curing of cheese in this county.

Mr. Derbyshire said that the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association were thinking of sending out instructors and also scavengers to watch the evildoers.

Finally it was moved by Mr. Clancy, seconded by Mr. McQuade, that this board secure the services of an Instructor and Inspector for the coming year at a cost of $10 per factory. The resolution carried.

On motion of Mr. Calvert, seconded by Mr. Parkin, Mr. Whitton was requested to secure the services of a good man as Instructor.

English Importers Complaining.

During the past season some factories have been drawing whey back in the milk cans, and it looks as if the filthy practise, if not stopped, will cause serious trouble in the Canadian cheese trade. The question was well handled by Messrs. Whitton and Derbyshire, who gave some good advice on how to remedy the present state of affairs. Mr. Whitton said he was pleased to be present, and glad that Mr. Robertson had been elected President for another year, as he was the right man in the right place. He had asked Mr. Derbyshire, the President of the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association, to be present at this meeting. "You men should not fool in your business. In order to have good flavored cheese you must not leave the whey in cans all day, only to be scalded out a few minutes before the milk is put in." He had bought cheese with a bad flavor, and the only way to remedy this was for farmers to stop drawing whey in the milk cans. The Lord never intended them to use the milk cans as swill barrels. He wished to impress upon the farmers that milk is a good food, and in the future will have a greater output. Never have the carter come in your yard for the can—have it standing on a rack outside in readiness. All milk should be in the hands of the cheese-maker before 8 o'clock in the morning—then there would not be foreign ingredients. It is not Belleville and Peterboro we are competing against, but the world; and as we are holding 60 per cent. of the cheese trade on the British markets we should not risk losing it. In his own locality they made cheese before the first of April, which was not wise. We should stop factories starting up early, as the time for cheese-making was six months, not eight. There had been 100,000 boxes of fodder cheese put on the market, which had crippled buyers, and prevented the paying of high prices. Mr. Whitton then read the following letter he had received from Mr. Watkins:

Belleville, December 26th, 1901.

To Whom it may Concern,—I very much regret that is has become an absolute necessity to warn and protest against what has been done by some factories during the past season, namely, drawing whey back in the milk cans, and during the season we have seen the terrible effects wrought by this penny-wise and pound-foolish business. Loud and numerous have been the complaints from English importers regarding cheese going off in flavor after they have been landed on the other side, and we have no doubt whatever that to a large extent this can be placed at the door of the whey business, and I am fully satisfied that if persisted in will kill the reputation of the cheese from this section and lower the price to factorymen, and in fact, the only protection for buyers to adopt is not to pay within 1-2c. per pound for cheese where the whey is drawn back in the milk cans.

Peterboro' Board some time ago passed a resolution that in case any factory in that section drew whey back in the way previously referred to, it should be stated on the Board. And we are decidedly of the opinion that the cheese-makers could not be held responsible for the cheese going off in flavor after being made under the conditions mentioned. I am as certain as I am that the sun shines that this way of drawing whey to the patron is injurious to all concerned in the cheese business, but more especially to patrons of cheese factories, and it should be buried out of sight.—Yours truly, THOS. WATKIN.

Mr. D. Derbyshire, of Brockville, President of the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association, said it gave him pleasure to see such a large attendance and so much interest being taken by the farmers in this locality in the dairy business. He remembered the kind treatment the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association received when they met in Lindsay, and thought the farmers had made some advance since, as the quality of cheese produced was much improved. Good stabling and cleanliness was absolutely necessary in order to make good cheese. That was the sentiment of the Eastern and Western Dairymen's Associations at their conventions, and the people must be educated to that and then we would have better dairymen. The farmers must have properly built stables, with abundance of light, so the sun could shine brightly in. The stables should be kept warm and clean and the cows ought to have lots of pure air. The whole world was studying the cheaper production of raw material. He thought corn better than hay, but advocated growing lots of grain and feeding it to the cows, as they would be in a better condition for giving good milk. A cow that produces milk for only six months in the year instead of ten won't do for the farmer. Canada can be made famous for producing first-class cheese if the farmers give more careful attention to dairying. The time for making cheese is between the first of May and the first of November, as it is warmer weather. Some $2,500,000 more cheese were sold this past year than in the year previous. Competition is keen and we must have better stables and feed the cows well to produce a good article. It is like a Lindsay storekeeper who is doing a large trade—say 65 per cent. of the trade of the town; he must have a good store and first-class goods in order to do the business.

Mr. Derbyshire spoke of keeping the curing room in the cheese factories in a good clean condition, with lots of fresh air. The temperature should be kept down to about 60 degees. All cheesemakers should take a course in the Kingston Dairy School and become thoroughly posted on all important points of the cheese-making business. If farmers wish to make money out of whey let them buy 200 pigs, attach a long trough from the factory, and let the porkers do the sucking; feed them some grain and they will pay, but never draw whey back from the factory in the cans. They should grow lots of grain, but should feed it out. A ton of butter in England will sell for $400, while a ton of hay is only worth $8. He advocated the keeping of well bred stock. At the Chicago World's Fair the Canadian cheese took 95 per cent. of the prizes, but of course the cheese was selected from the best factories. However, it made Canada famous. In the West they claim Oxfor county to be the home of modern cheese making, but he did not agree with them, and told them so. He urged the farmers to have good clean factories and first-class cheese-makers. The cheese must fit tight in the boxes and the weight should be stamped on every box. Englishmen like good cheese; with that and a glass of beer they are contented. He hoped the farmers would take his advice and have airy stables, feed good food, (no turnips), and then the dairy industry would advance. At the beginning of a new century, and under a new King, he hoped the farmers would do better in the dairy business.

In concluding Mr. Whitton suggested that the black board be used, and factories that draw whey back in milk cans be reported on the board, when he would guarantee that the objectionable practise would be discontinued, and that speedily.

Oath of Fealty to King Edward.

Local and county officials and officers appointed under the Dominion or Ontario governments have not yet taken their oath of fealty to the person and throne of King Edward VII. They are waiting for a new Commission "dededimus potestatem" to issue from the Lieutenant-Governor, the duty of which will be to take the oath of allegiance of all persons so appointed. By Royal proclamation from His Excellency the Governor-General, and with the approval of His Majesty King Edward VII., all officers continue to act and execute the duties of their respective offices. The last local Commission was issued in 1874 to Judge Smith, Barrister J. W. Dunsford and County Attorney Devlin, of whom the latter is the only survivor.

TAR MACADAM ROADWAYS

POSSESS MARKED TRAFFIC-RESISTING QUALITIES,

Hamilton's Experience with the Material has been Satisfactory—Would be Suitable for Kent-st.

As it is generally admitted that our fine leading thoroughfare will have to receive a new top dressing this year or next, the following article, descriptive of the good qualities of tar macadam roadways, may interest our council and citizens;

(The Canadian Engineer.)

The board of works and engineering staff of the city of Hamilton deserve credit for the consistent way in which they have carried out their experiments with tar macadam paving. As this method of metalling streets is now attracting considerable attention in other cities, those of our readers interested in municipal engineering will be glad of the following information on the method of laying tar macadam;

To begin with, the following are the specifications under which the streets of Hamilton have been laid with tar macadam; these specifications having been drawn up by E. G. Barrow, C.E., who has had this work in his special charge. "All earth or other material above the sub-grade shall be excavated, so as to conform to the level of the sub-grade, which will be twelve inches below the finished surface of the roadway; and should the sub-grade be above the level of the natural ground, then earth shall be deposited until the level of the sub-grade is reached. The sub-grade shall be shaped to the profile and cross section, which will be furnished by the City Engineer. After the sub-grade has been formed to the proper camber of the road, then it shall be thoroughly rolled with the steam roller; and if by this means soft spots are revealed, they shall be filled with good solid material. The first six inches shall be made in the ordinary way for a macadam or Telford roadway thoroughly rolled. If so required, it may be made of hard broked stone, furnace clinkers or brick rolled smooth and finished to the required camber of the road. Upon this shall be placed the tarred stone. The first layer—four inches thick—to be composed of stones capable of passing through a two-inch ring. On this a layer composed of fine gravel or quarry chippings, three-quarter inches thick, shall be placed, and well rolled in so as to fill all interstices. Before finishing, a dressing of screenings shall be scattered broadcast to be worked in by the traffic. All these layers except the last shall be thoroughly compacted by rolling. The stone to be tarred shall be heated on an iron floor, under which are flues from a fire, until the moisture is driven out. The material in its heated state is then to be thoroughly mixed with a sufficient quantity of tar. The tar should be boiled in iron kettles holding fifty imperial gallons, to which should be added a bucketful of pitch. Eight imperial gallons should be added to each cubic yard of the coarser material; and ten to twelve gallons of the finer kinds of stone. The work must be done in the summer months, and all work suspended during wet weather."

Owing to the presence of the lighter oils contained in coal tar, as it comes from the works, it has been found best to use refined tar for this work. The stone used is limestone from the Hamilton Mountain. The flags first laid are 10 inches to 12 inches square, and, say, 5 to 6 inches thick; and the tarred stone, of say, four inches' thickness, is rolled with a hand roller, the top dressing of 3-4 to 1 inch also being settled with a hand roller, the heavy roller to be used last. The second day after rolling, traffic may be allowed.

The cost of this street paving averaged 80 to 95 cents per square yard. This cost is based on labor at 18 cents per hour, as paid in Hamilton, and on a cost of $5 per cord for macadamizing stone broken during the winter months at $1.75 per cord. Hamilton now has 12 1-2 miles of streets paved with tar macadam, including such streets as King, York and Stuart, which bear the heaviest traffic of the city. They have required but little repair, though some of them were paved fifteen years ago, and one street, paved nine years ago, has, we understand, never been touched by the repairers since. One great advantage of such a paving in a climate whose winter brings penetrating frosts, is that the tar keeps out the water, and where there is no great moisture in a road-bed there can be none of those upheavals from frost which cause such havoc to cedar blocks, brick paving, and ordinary macadam.

COMMITTEES IN SESSION

ESTIMATES OF THE BOARD OF WORKS TOTAL OVER $6,000

But There will be a Weeding out Process—Government to be Asked to Maintain the Floating Bridge at the Foot of Ridout-st.

The Board of Works and Finance committees met in the clerk's office Friday evening to prepare reports for the council meeting to be held tonight. The members present were Mayor Ingle, Aldermen Touchburn, O'Rielly, Jackson, Robson and Hore. absent, Ald. Sinclair.

The Board of Works, with Ald. Touchburn in the chair, first considsidered a recommendation made by Engineer Ashbridge in October last, relative to flushing and care of town sewers.—Action deferred.

A number of accounts were read and referred to the finance committee.

Mayor Ingle's inaugural address was again gone over, and was fyled for future reference.

Mr. John McDonald was heard in connection with the extra assessment levied in 1899 for the Lindsay-st. bridge. He sold his residence to Mr. R. M. Beal that August, and one of the conditions was that the taxes were to be paid up to 1st January. The first levy was paid, and Mr. McDonald claimed that he should not be held responsible for the second, as it was imposed after he had parted with the property. It was pointed out that the council had power to levy a dozen rates if it was necessary, and that the case was one calling for a private settlement between Mr. McDonald and Mr. Beal.

Town Commissioner Chalmers presented a draft of the estimates for his department, the total being in excess of $6,000. The report will be discussed at a meeting to be called for that purpose.

Ald. Jackson—"I understand the Lighting committee will be in a position to present a report next week, and as we shall not be able to present the estimates of all committees at next council meeting the report will be timely and we may save money."

The request of Mr. Thos. Robson, tanner, that the partial exemption granted him be made to cover his 1899 taxes, was discussed for a few minutes and all were unanimous in stating that the thing could not be done.

Some discussion took place on the subject of town hall improvements. A start will be made about the middle of the month, when the stage wing will be cleared out and an estimate made of the cost of fitting up the flat for municipal offices.

Commissioner Chalmers said there was a strong feeling in favor of retaining the floating bridge at foot of Ridout-st. for summer use. It could be raised so as to permit of the passage of canoes and skiffs, and as very few steamers ply on the upper waters the expense of operating the swing portion would be small. Mr. S. J. Fox, M.P.P., had promised that if the council would forward a memorial to the legislature he would endeavor to secure the appointment of a bridge tender. Action will be taken this evening.

At last meeting a request was made that the council pay a nurse engaged for Miss Campbell, of the south ward. Warned by past experience, the clerk was instructed to ask the rate before assuming any responsibility. Mrs. Baldwin claimed pay for 17 days at the rate of $10 per week, and as she is not a professional and usually works for $5 or $6 per week, the council agreed to offer her $17 in full payment—if she refuses the council will disclaim all responsibility.

Dovey Bros. presented a declaration in connection with the exemption by-law, stating that they had employed an average of 13 hands for over eight months. It turned out that the names of the employes and the wages paid were not given, as the by-law calls for, and that Thos. Robson had not yet sent in his declaration. Hereafter the parties enjoying exemption will have to send in complete reports, and Auditor Eagleson will make a thorough examination of the books in doubtful cases.

On motion Clerk Knowlson was instructed to apply to the county council for the use of the stone crusher, as there are 173 cords of stone now on hand, which it will be advantageous to have crushed at once. It was decided to rent a vacant lot on the corner of Lindsay and Melbourne-sts. for stone-piling purposes.

The meeting then adjourned.

Police Court Calendar.

—The Orillia curlers are planning for a grand bonspiel, to be held immediately after the Tankard games in Toronto—probably about the third week in February. The prizes will include six or eight pairs of curling stones, a gold medal for points competition, and other trophies.

—J. C. Sibley, and partner, who were about town for a few days last week peddling wardrobe hangers, was summoned for a breach of a town by-law. The case was adjourned from Friday till to-day, when Sibley failed to appear. A warrant was issued, which will be executed if the young men come within reach.

—John Andrews, south ward, was served with a summons to appear in court Friday to answer to a charge of owning or harboring a vicious dog. The animal bit a child about ten days ago, hence the action. Chief Nevison ordered Andrews to destroy or get rid of the brute, but he failed to do so. However, when he appeared Friday he said he had carried out the Chief's command the previous evening, and he was allowed to go on the paying the costs, $2.25.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

the JAPAN TEA we are now selling for 25c per pound was retailed in box lots at 70c and 80c per pound. And the quality is even better to-day than it was then.

Increased production has brought about the reduction. Twenty years ago very little tea was grown in India, and none in Ceylon; to-day the output is expressed in millions.

We carry a very large stock of TEAS and COFFEES, and as we buy with a carefulness born of over a quarter of a century's experience, we honestly think we are in a position to give you quality at a price no other dealer can quote.

Let us Own our Franchises.

(To the Editor of The Post.)

SIR,—An odd one of many who voted for a municipal lighting plant, we hope to see in the future the installation, on property, Lindsay of a municipal owned system, of public utilities. The object lessons set by such progressive cities as the old country as Glasgow and London should not be lost on the slow-going Canadians. It has been stated in the public press that since the municipality of London has been running its own street cars (now over a year) that the employees' pay has been increased, that their hours of labor has been reduced, and that the charges to the public are just one-half what they formerly were when, run by the dear old company contractors whose invariable complaint was that the "dividends" were insufficient for a first-class service, fairness and mutual benefit are the watch words of the present century, and will prove—will general intelligence—a blessed innovation on the vested rights and privileges of the past century.

In regard to the cost to the users of electric light, many of our citizens have already intimated to our city monopoly that the extra charge made for measuring their light is an extortive one, in addition to the regular charge of 12-2-2 c per 1,000 watts. This is evidently so, when we know that several young citizens under 21 lines, that have put in municipal plants during the past year or two, are now receiving steam made current at 8c per 1,000 watts. It is stated that water power is one-fifth less expensive than steam power. Wise indeed are those city fathers be who are long-headed enough to secure the best light, low tenement the benefits and income from co-operation and consequent less taxation.—Yours truly.

NORTH WARDER.

Lindsay, Feb. 4th, 1901.

Let us Own our Franchises.

(To the Editor of The Post.)

SIR,—I have read with some interest and possibly some profit, the numerous letters on the light question that have appeared in your newsy little daily for some nights past. Some have been enlightening, some rather belligerent, but all have done good in feeding a growing desire for further information along the line of town ownership of important franchises.

The letter signed "North Ward," in your Wednesday's issue, was one of the best yet, and the extract attached, from the Toronto Star, should cause every citizen to do his thinking cap. The people of Lindsay erred some years ago when they neglected to build the Waterworks system; they made another blunder when they purchased a plant of $60,000; and they remedied their mistakes at a cost of $15,000 in addition to accumulated profits. And we are told that the Works would have cost $25,000 additional but for the purchase have interest on the original contract by our Town Solicitor, who, it is said, has been offered, and would one day become the owner of the plant. So much for the value of the purchase clause which the L. H. & L. Co. strenuously insisted on being inserted in the contract they are anxious to force with the town.

Mr. Editor, I take a deep interest in these matters, and have never been good to attend public meetings and listen to our leading citizens discoursing upon the advantages we enjoy under Lindsay's Charter. I feel, and feel that I am in citizen of no mean city; I feel where are our leading men at this important juncture? Why are they not in the front ranks vocifer of the wisdom of acquiring the Waterworks system, and urging the city to maintain that all franchises, even the ordinary ones, be operated for the benefit of the people? The success of Toronto's municipal electric lighting franchise is proving disappointing to many of the ratepayers. Surely they are aware that many cities are now hoping already over their Waterworks and lighting franchises, and that many others are taking steps to acquire them. The two plants form a natural combination.

It looks to me, Mr. Editor, as if some of our councillors might almost be classed as special pleaders for the L. H. & P. Co., and this in the face of the stern fact that they are the property owners in their vote in favor of a municipal effort lighting plant. I have heard some of these men refer to the figures given in the Toronto Star as a convincing proof of the frugalness of the L. H. & P. Co. in the case of Lindsay. Most of us have a fair idea of the salaries paid to men employed by companies to secure control of franchises, and that the price very often covers a great deal more than the cost of the work and of producing the light.

If the L. H. & P. Co. had made any decent attempt to carry out its former contract with the town, or had established a fair rate for domestic lighting and treated all users alike, they would not now be forced to face with a hostile community. If I am any judge of the temper of the people, they intend to have a municipal plant despite the efforts of those who desire company rule. Lindsay is sold to be a progressive town—let us prove it by taking another step towards the acquirement of all municipal franchises.—Yours, etc.

SOUTH WARD.

Unkind Insinuation Corrected.

(To the Editor of The Post.)

SIR,—I notice on reading the minutes of the Board of Works, as reported in your issue of the 28th inst., that Ald. Jackson is reported as saying, "When Supt. Tiffin inspected the site he was entirely satisfied with the selection and hoped that Mr. Squier would choose another site, but there was a reason why he did not for the purpose of letting the lot, hence all the trouble." This was a nasty and unkind remark and unjust and uncalled for, and besides, it is untrue. I am the party to whom Ald. Jackson refers, and there would be nothing wrong if I had received a commission, but as it happens there was no commission in the sale of the property. True, I was paid for the conveyance and looking after the title for the purchaser, but that was all of $6.25 is the sum total of my profit on the transaction. The insinuation that I was more interested in getting a commission than in looking after the interest of the town is a slander, and I ask Ald. Jackson to either prove his statement or withdraw it. As for the "trouble" there is no trouble if the council desires to act honorably. All the railway company is asking for is that the council will carry out its agreement with them; it is the desire to avoid this that makes the trouble. Just the desire to avoid the contract is off on the shoulders of Ald. Jackson, and not to Lis credit.

As a member of the council, Mr. Squier had selected the site before I saw him at all or knew that he was in town; it was Mr. W. J. A. Williamson who brought Mr. Squier to my office and then introduced him with a view of getting the information necessary to a purchase, and this introduction led up to the transaction and to the acceptance of enterprise for Lindsay. It was after this introduction I went into the details of Mr. Squier's affairs, and satisfying myself that the Lindsay business would be a profitable acquisition to the town, that I decided to render him what assistance I could and induce him to come to Lindsay, if possible, and because my efforts were successful in my opinion why I should be accused for sordid motives, which motives, especially when I accounted wholly and solely with a desire to benefit the town. Such unkind and uncharitable remarks as those of Ald. Jackson have a tendency to discourage one from attempting the like again, but I do not consider that Ald. Jackson Jackson's interest in this town is sufficient to warrant him in trying to block its progress, nor will his opposition have any weight in the respect with me. Aside from all personal motives I am using the best endeavors at all times to do all I can to assist in getting in manufacturers or other industries to build up and live in our town.

It is a satisfaction to me that the transaction is now safely established beyond and to know that it is generally appreciated by the farmers, and that before another year falls round that some five or six thousand dollars will have been paid out by this firm to our fellow citizens for labor.—Yours truly,

J. H. SOTHERAN.

Reply to "South Ward" Slanders.

(To the Editor of The Post.)

Dear Sir,—In the head of your column for communications appears the following note, "Letters making vague or specific charges, or in any way conveying personal allusions, will not be inserted unless signed by the writer," and underneath this note in your issue of Friday last is a letter over the fictitious signature of "South Ward", by some cowardly slanderer, insinuating that the expenditure of $15 rate for street are lamp contains a margin for a profit to the contractor, and a hint that this may have already been paid, a thing that charge back into the teeth of the slanderer who made it, and tell him that the directors and shareholders of our company are not men of that stamp. We could not lose the contract for street lighting but we cannot afford to supply street lamps in that kind of work, nor can we afford to be slandered by cross communication go unanswered.

We are ready to do business, but we are not ready to be slandered by any person, much less by persons sheltering themselves behind fictitious names. I am particularly sorry that your correspondent of Friday should use the name of "South Ward," for I am as the entire body of ratepayers in that ward and every ward will repudiate such tactics as that man was reserved to over the component of "South Ward."

The Lighting Problem.

(To the Editor of The Post.)

SIR,—The freedom with which the views of citizens on this subject are being expressed, should, and I have no doubt will be, a help to the council in determining the proper course to pursue. In view of the almost unanimous approval of the ratepayers expressed of the poll in favor of the municipality's owning and operating its own lighting plant, I think that a contract with any company on any terms entirely out of the question, and could and should be stopped by an injunction from the court.

Of course, in installing the plant, some should be taken to investigate the relative cost of transmission power and steam in connection with our own waterworks. Then there is Mr. Meriden Hydro-Carbon light, such as was exhibited here a few weeks ago, which does not require motive power. I think the council should have no hesitation in accepting the company's offer for 40 or more 1500 cp. lights for one-year at $20 a year; or if the L. H. & P. Co. will agree to give 100 1500 cp. lights free for one year, and at $8 each, I would prefer trying the experiment. Either of these plans will, I have no doubt, give a good and satisfactory service as we have 1500 for the town and 100 for the Lindsay and Fifty lights will place our at nearly every street intersection. On the other hand I have no doubt will light the town not the 40 or 100 business would be a profitable acquisition to the town, that I decided to render him what assistance I could and induce him to come to Lindsay, if possible, and because my efforts were successful in my opinion why I should be accused for sordid motives, which motives, especially when I accounted wholly and solely with a desire to benefit the town. Our Domestic rate is lower than that of many other companies, and as low as any of them.

We cannot work wonders—at least without time. Our offer of $45 for 1000 c. p. lamps until 1 a.m. every night is exceedingly low, which every man who has any adequate knowledge of the value of these lights will know. We thought, and still think, that price is lower than we ought to have been asked to take it, was our desire to satisfy that induced us to come down so low. If this offer is not accepted the public will be greater losers than we. W.

A COLLECTION OF CANADIAN BOOKS

Opportunity for Lovers of Good Reading.

We call attention with peculiar pleasure to Mr. Porter's advertisement in this issue of The Post. Any lover of literature will rejoice at the welcomed by the newspapers of a town and when that enterprise takes on the intellectual form of the sale of books, the welcome from a newspaper is especially cordial. We invite people to read and think in the business alike of the press, the book-seller, the merchant, the farmer, and to honor a phrase from our illustrious reviewer, Dr. Goldwin Smith, "The great journal" is good to note. The fact that Lindsay is deemed so literary as to warrant a travelling bookseller is to it and proper place to venture on a thing such as this.

We note, too, that this is to be a Canadian Book Sale. The leading Canadian publishers and authors have been drawn upon to make up a fine collection of Canadian books that will be of value and delight to the public for 10 days, beginning Monday, Feb. 11th. History, Biography, Travels, Science, Juveniles, Religion, Poetry, Fiction and Miscellaneous Literature will be represented by leading writers of Canada. Upwards of 500 volumes will be shown. The town of Lindsay accepts the hearty invitation to inspect the collection and it will certainly get an education in Canadian, literature, and in the effort could very profitably spend a few hours pleasantly acquainted with these books.

It will be a good thing for Lindsay if this Canadian Book Sale—the first we have ever heard of in the Dominion—results so favorably, that Mr. Porter will be stimulated to still greater enterprise.

The Cannon was Disabled.

Sergt.-Major Martin will be unable for any more salutes from his trusty little cannon until repaired in a fine mode. Saturday morning he prepared to fire a salute in honor of the early year of the Queen's life — and when he left to march to St. Paul's church the sons of England his son continued the labor of love. The dull report of the discharge was heard at regular intervals until about 11 o'clock, when, strange to say, the carriage of the piece gave way as the 63rd blank was being fired. Sergt. Martin's satisfaction of knowing that the cannon was fired on the reign of our Immortal Queen.

The White Plague.

ONE-SIXTH OF ALL DEATHS DUE TO CONSUMPTION.

Its Ravages Spare no Class—Rich and Poor Alike Fall its Victims—How This Trouble may be Prevented.

Consumption Zea been well named the great white plague. One-sixth of all deaths occurring in Canada annually are due to the ravages of this terrible disease. Its victims are found among all classes; rich and poor alike succumb to its insidious advances. Only a few years ago the victim of consumption was regarded as incurable, and horror stricken friends watched the loved one day by day fade away until death came as a merciful release. Now, however, it is known that taken in its earlier stages consumption is curable, and that by a proper use of the blood-enriching, rich, red and pure—these who are pre-disposed to the disease escape its ravages. Consumption is now classed among the preventible diseases, and those who are pale, easily tired, emaciated, or have any of the numerous symptoms of general debility, should at once begin to build up the system by eating and purifying the blood—thus strengthening not only the lungs, but all parts of the body.

Among those who have escaped a threatened death from consumption is Mrs. Robert McCracken, of Marmora, Ont. Mrs. McCracken gives her experience that it may be of benefit to some other sufferer. She says:—"A few years ago I began to experience a general weakness. My appetite was poor; I was very pale; was troubled with dizziness; I had at times a smothering feeling in my chest. Besides these symptoms, I became very nervous, at times dizzy and faint, and my body and feet would get as cold as ice. As the trouble progressed I began to lose flesh rapidly, and in a short time was only a shadow of my former self. I had good medical treatment, but did not get relief. A friend urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I began to take them. In a little time I began to feel that consumption, had fastened its fangs upon me, was strengthened by the knowledge I learned of my ancestors died of this terrible disease. In this infer Cadgeonly was I advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I at once procured a supply and had not taken them long when I noted a change for the better. By the time I had taken six or eight boxes I was able to move around a little more, and felt better and stronger in every way. I continued the use of the pills until I had taken a dozen boxes, when all my old time strength and vigor had returned, and I was as well as ever. Nothing else I took or used gave my weight increased twenty-six pounds. Several years have since passed, and in that time not a symptom of my former trouble has made itself apparent, so that I think I can safely say that my cure is permanent. I believe Dr. Williams' Pink Pills saved my life, and I strongly advise all women to give them a trial."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a tonic and not a purgative medicine. They enrich the blood from the first dose to the last and thus bring health and strength to every organ of the body. The genuine pills are sold only in boxes with the full name "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People," printed on the wrapper. If your dealer cannot supply you send direct to Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont., and the pills will be mailed post paid at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50.

Railway Notes.

—All freight trains on this division will be cancelled to-morrow with the exception of the Bellevile way-freight, in charge of Conductor Kelly.

—Steel ties are to be given a trial on the Lake Erie & Michigan Northern Railway, 1,500 of a pattern recently invented by one of its roadmasters having been ordered. These ties are to be made from old rails, and if the tests are successful, it is the intention of the company to use its stock of old rails in this manner. Each tie weighs about 185 pounds, which is about the weight of the steel ties used abroad. The rails are punched with twice elongated holes and the ties are readily formed in the rolling mills.

CATHOLICS AND THE QUEEN

Cardinal Vaughan, Archbishop of Westminster, Outlines their Position.

London, Jan. 26.—In a long letter, which was read in the churches on Sunday, Cardinal Vaughan, Archbishop of Westminster, says to the clergy of his diocese:

"Of public religious services for the dead the Catholic church knows none but such as she has instituted for the souls of her own children. No one would feel it right that in our grief we should so far forget ourselves as the proprieties due her deceased Majesty or to even appear to claim her as a member of our church, which we should be doing were we to perform in her behalf the religious rites that are exclusively applicable to deceased Catholics. At the same time we may remind you that it is lawful to hope and believe that any persons who have deported this life in union with the rites of the church, though not in her external communion, may be offered prayers and good works for their repose from purgatory. The church itself forms no judgment upon a matter which must remain a secret between God and the individual soul. What can we do? Everywhere a deep sentiment and loyalty and sympathy are swelling within the breast of the Catholic community in England, and sending some outward expression. Gladly and eagerly they would join in the prayer of civil and social mourning that will be generously offered by the nation in the memory of such a Queen. Where there are churches they will be tolled, and the national flag may be placed at half-mast even within or without the precincts of our churches. We fully and sadly share the nation's sorrow, and the anxiety inseparable with such a period. We trust and pray that the noble traditions established by her reign will be carried on and perfected by her son. The attachment of Catholics to the throne and dynasty is beyond suspicion."

The letter, which is dated at the English College, Rome, is full of tributes to the Queen, and states that the Pope was most assiduous in his enquiries during her illness and said prayers for her recovery.

Children Cry for CASTORIA.

WINTER NAVIGATION.

(Hamilton Times.)

Hon. Mr. Dobell, who is a sort of Minister at Large in the Laurier government, has got back from the Old Country with the announcement that he has arranged a Canadian steamship scheme, though not dead, is dormant, because the shipbuilding yards of England, Scotland and Ireland are full of orders for next two or three years, and prices of ships are too high. He proposes to subsidize a line, and under construction are large and roomy, not fast. Mr. Dobell's remarks about St. Lawrence navigation are of some interest. He says it is quite possible for steamships to come up to Quebec until February 1st, without using icebreakers, leaving the whole field of river for forty years, and he knows there is no one to plough through. In March and April the northern ice might come down in sufficient quantities to block navigation, but up to the end of January vessels could navigate without much difficulty. If Mr. Dobell is right, Quebec ought to capture some of the winter trade that now goes to Halifax and St. John, portland, Boston and New York. He says, too, that there is a great fishery in the south of Newfoundland, hence the Canadian route would be shorter than that over the New York route. With improvements such as lighthouses, stations on Belle Isle and Anticosti, and a reduction of insurance ought to be reached. The speaker said that if these discoveries were not made long ago, it was because people had not sufficient government to find out the capabilities.

A NEW DIPARTURE.

A New, Effectual and Convenient Cure for Catarrh.

Of catarrh remedies, there is no end, but of catarrh cures, there has always been a great scarcity. There are many remedies for relief, but very few that really cure.

The old practice of snuffing salt water, inhaling medicated vapors for relief, and the washes, douches, powders and inhalants in common use are very little, if any, improvement on the old fashioned salt water douche. The use of inhalants requires the action of unless washes and powders by the nose and throat. It is reasonable to do more reasonable than to rub the back to cure lumbago or pain. It is just as much a blood disease as lumbago is a kidney disease and it can not be cured by local treatment any more than they can be.

Catarrh at the time is a blood, throat or stomach, so internal antiseptic treatment is necessary to allow the natural processes of the blood and system, and the medicine must be antiseptic and healing, and the remarkable success of Catarrhozone is due to its remarkable being used internally, it drives out catarrhal infection through the lungs, upon stomach, liver and bowels.

Wm. Zimmerman, of St. Catharines, relates an experience with catarrh which is of value to millions of catarrhal sufferers everywhere. He says: "I neglected a slight nasal catarrh until it gradually extended to my throat and bronchial tubes, and finally even my stomach and liver became affected, but my friends urged to keep up and do a day's work I let it run along until my health began to fail me, and then I realized that I must get rid of catarrh at any cost. I position as I was clerk, and my hearing was a beneficial necessity.

Some of my friends recommended a catarrh remedy to me, which I tried, but they were no good in my case, nor was anything else until I heard of Catarrhozone. I bought a dollar size and bought a package at my drug store. I felt improved from the start, and in less than four months I was completely free from catarrh, though I had suffered nearly all my life from it.

They are pleasant to take and so much more convenient to use than other catarrh remedies that I feel that I cannot say enough in praise of Stuart's Catarrh Tablets."

A little book on cause and cure of catarrh will be mailed free by addressing Catarrhozone Co., Marshville, Ont., and the tablets are sold by druggists in U. S. United States and Canada.

SURPLUS OF $200,000

Ontario Government Has Now Over $1,000,000 in Bank.

ONTARIO FINANCES FOR 1900.

General Increase in Receipts Last Year—Careful Management, Coupled With That Fact, Resulted in a Substantial Balance on the Right Side of the Ledger—Lumber Activity.

Toronto, Feb. 5.—The financial statement for the year which will be submitted to the Legislature will show the results of excellent administration during Premier Ross first year at the helm. It is understood that receipts of the year amounted in round numbers to $4,200,000, while the expenditures were about $4,000,000, leaving a balance on the year's transactions of $200,000. The balance in the credit of the Ontario Government on December 31, 1899, was $800,000. It is to be added the balance at the end of 1900 the Government will be in the happy condition of having a cash surplus of a little over $1,000,000. There was a great increase in receipts last year, which coupled with careful management, resulted in the substantial balance on the right side of the ledger. Owing to the activity in the lumber market and the development in the mining industry, the revenue from the Crown lands branch was above the average, though the amount received by way of timber bonus was quite small.

READY FOR THE SESSION.

The Annual Influx of Legislators Has Began at Ottawa—Some Features of a Conservative Leader.

Ottawa, Feb. 5.—Preparations are complete for the opening of the first session of the ninth Parliament of Canada on Wednesday. The seats of the members to the right and left of the Speaker have all been allotted, save a few, and the influx of legislators has begun. The vanguard consists of Sir Charles Hibbert Tupper, Senator McKeeney, Messrs. Hugh Guthrie, T. D. Davis, Horace L. Logan, Ralph Smith, W. A. Galliher and N. Boyd.

Chosen by the Members.

On Wednesday at noon Sir John Bourinot, Clerk of the Commons, will begin the ceremony of swearing in the members.

At 3 o'clock in the afternoon the House will convene and await the formal message summons to the Senate. On proceeding there the Commons will be called upon to assemble bar to return and elect a Speaker.

Chosen for Speaker.

Mr Lovell Robinson, member for Rouville, a polished, genial and cultured gentleman, has already been designated for this honor. His selection will be moved and seconded by the ministerial whip, and the Speaker will doubtless avail himself of the opportunity to congratulate the House for the honor conferred upon him.

On Thursday the House will meet at 3 p. m. and proceed to the Senate to hear the speech from the throne.

An Address of Condolence.

On returning it is likely that the Commons will be called upon to address condoling with King Edward and the royal family over the death of Queen Victoria, and assuring His Majesty of the loyalty of the Commons to his throne and person. It is likelihood is that the House will move adjournment for a few days when the debate on the address will be taken up.

An Adjournment of Respect.

There has been some talk of an adjournment until the following Monday, as a token of respect to the late Queen's memory, and if the suggestion should be made in the House it will be carried by acclamation.

The adoption of the address will be moved by Mr. Hugh Guthrie, member for South Wellington, and seconded by Mr. Charles Marcil, member for Bonaventure.

With respect to the Senate, Hon. Mr. Scott will be re-appointed Speaker. The address in the upper House will be moved by Senator Ellis of St. John, and seconded by Senator Cox, member for the Queens of Toronto.

The Conservative Leadership.

Great public interest is taken in the caucus of Conservatives to be held tomorrow night to select a leader. The general opinion seems to be that Mr. Robert Borden of Halifax will be chosen. He is a gentleman of all sections in the party can unite, whereas if a Protestant leader were proposed it would be in vain to bring or hope for the jealousy and antagonisms which have existed in the past to be overcome.

The matrons of the Edison Orphanage at Lowell, Mass., U.S.A., wrote they had a siege of whooping-cough in their institution. They said that every case was promptly relieved by Vapo-Cresolene. Its value in coughs and colds was so great they always kept it ready for use. You know how it's used, don't you? 'Tis heated by a vaporizer and you inhale it. Write us for a book that tells all about it. 2

Vapo-Cresolene is sold by druggists everywhere. The Vaporizer and Lamp, which should last a lifetime, and a bottle of Cresolene complete, $1.50; extra supplies of Cresolene 25 cents and 50 cents. A MUNICIPAL HEATING SYSTEM.

(New York Post.)

Delaware, O., is heated, lighted, and furnished with power from one plant. The heating is by hot water, and the system is a novel one. Stores, public buildings, and dwellings are being heated by the new process. The main artery and radiator contain 140,000 gallons of water, which is heated in a large boiler at an electric light plant by means of the exhaust steam from the big engine in the plant. This by-product composes the entire system, the water being kept in rotary motion through the outgoing and return pipes by a large duplex pump. The support of this pump is practically the only cost of operating the system. It only requires fifteen pounds pressure to rotate the water, every revolution of the engine moving forty-six gallons. The plant represents an investment of about $75,000. Although the process is said to differ radically from the ordinary steam-heating methods, it gives every promise of success.

Business is Slow

Commercial travellers report that business is very slow on the road, due to the fact that last year when times were better than usual, the merchants purchased too freely. They did not sell as much as they expected, consequently are now overloaded.

Fate of the Tipper.

He tipped the porter on the train
He tipped the waiter when he ate
He tipped the able-bodied man
Who tossed his satchel through the gate.

He had to tip the chambermaid,
The buttoned bellboy, too, he tipped
For bringing water that was death
To thoughtless fools who freely sipped.

He had to tip for sleeping, and
He had to tip for things to eat
He had to tip to get a chance
To occupy a decent seat.

They made him tip to get the things
He paid enough for at the start,
And every tip was like a nip
Of some sharp-fanged thing at the heart.

And while he tipped they fawned on him
And stood in smiling groups about
But when his change was gone, at last,
They turned and coldly tipped him out.

EDWARD VII, KING AND EMPEROR.

Albert Edward! King and Emperor now!
Imperial diadem of jewelled parts,
Fit symbol of a crown of loving hearts,
A People free hath placed upon thy brow.

All hail, Proud Monarch! Title none dispute!
Thy grandest destiny, — perpetuate
Wise and just laws, dominion vast and great,
A thousand years of blood and toil the fruit.

Hail to thy Royal Mate, high-souled and sweet,
A woman nobly planned for thee and thine,
Long since enthroned with Charity divine,
A queenly woman born, good and discreet!

Hail to thy Glorious Empire, first and best
Among the mighty nations of the world!
In every clime its banners are unfurled
The strong to guard, to succor the opprest.

Hail to Britannia, Empress of the Waves!
Hail to Prince Commerce, her consort on the sea!
Hail to their Offspring, their love and loyalty!
Hail to all Britons, who never shall be slaves!

'Twas yesterday a Century had its birth,
To mark with fitting pomp and circumstance
So fateful an event as thy advance
To acme reach of fame and honored worth.

The starry virtues of thy Mother-Queen
Long in her Children may resplendent shine!
Exalted Son! Let be the glory thine
To emulate her deeds and and noble mein.

Thy loyal subjects faithful homage bring,
Low bend the knee and place their hands between,
Swear true allegiance to thy Throne Serene,
And sing and pray,— "God Save Our Gracious King."

FOR GOOD QUEEN VICTORIA

Saturday was Loyally Observed as a Day of Mourning.

GREAT CROWDS ATTEND THE SERVICES

At St. Pauls Episcopal and Cambridge-St. Methodist Churches—Impressive and Touching Addresses Delivered by Rural Dean Marsh and Rev. Thos. Mannin-, B. A.—Town Council, Board of Education, Sons of England and Oddfellows Marched in Line to the Church of their Choice.

The loyalty of the people of Lindsay to the British throne, and the personal sorrow and sense of loss felt by all in the death of good Queen Victoria, found expression Saturday in the faithfulness with which the day of mourning was observed by all. Business was entirely suspended, and a reverent feeling exceeding that of the Sabbath seemed to pervade all hearts and prompt everyone to attend the memorial services held in St. Paul's adn Cambridge-st. Methodist churches.

AT CAMBRIDGE-ST. METHODIST CHURCH.

At the hour for the commencement of the union memorial services at the Cambridge-st. Methodist church that spacious edifice was filled to overflowing. The members of the Town Council, the Board of Education, the I.O.O.F., and the Collegiate Cadets, also assembled at this service. The choir enclosure was beautifully draped in purple and the organ in black, while pure white lilies, hyacinths and narcissus showed to excellent effect each side of the pulpit and picture of the Queen, both picture and pulpit being tastefully draped. Revs. Manning, Hughson, Macmillan and Roberts conducted the services.

After the opening hymn Rev. L. S. Hughson, B.D., led in prayer. The united choirs in strong and melodious tones rendered the appropriate anthem, "Yea, though I Walk." Rev. J. W. Macmillan, B.A., read the lessons from 1st Cor. 15, and Rev. 22. "Rock of Ages" was then sung, after which the Rev. T. Manning, pastor of the Cambridge-st. Methodist church, delivered the address. It was a most magnificent and eloquent tribute to the high and noble life of the great and pure Queen and Empress. Subjoined is a synopsis of the discourse;

"To-day the body of our Queen is borne to its last resting place. To-day more people mourn her death than ever mourned the death of any human being. Sixty-three years ago she was crowned Queen of a populous and powerful Dominion, and every year of her reign her kingdom grew more populous and powerful. When she died 385,000,000 of people called her Queen and Empress. These people inhabited continents and islands in every part of the globe. They were of various colors, languages and religions, but they were all alike in this—that they sincerely loved their Queen and deeply lamented her death. What a marvellous combination of the highest qualities of human excellence is attested by this common sorrow? But no personal excellence on her part can account for the place she held in the ardent devotion of her subjects. Noble and excellent as was her person, her crown added lustre to her own virtues. Her crown is symbolic of the essence of our national being. Her virtues were her own, but the crown was the crown of England.

For two generations she has reigned over us. She is the only sovereign that most of us have ever known. Those who were alive when she came to the throne were very young, and their youthful memories are memories of great national rejoicing at the time she was crowned. Through all these intervening years her name has been breathed with affection by all her subjects. This would not be anything remarkable were she sovereign over a small principality inhabited by a homogeneous people, a people of her own language and religion. But it is not only remarkable but wonderful that it should be so, when her subjects are in every stage of civilization, from the cannibal of Fiji to the first nobleman of England. But that the pagan Indians of America, the Hottentots of Cape Colony, the Basutos of Africa, the native princes and peasants of India, should equal in simple affection, and rival in simple loyalty, the people of her own language and religion, must remain an object of wonder and admiration to all future ages. Queen Victoria not only won the affection of all her subjects, she commanded also the respect of all the world. This she could have done only by the union of the greatest versatility of mind with the rarest combination of moral virtues. Those who were acquainted personally with Her Majesty have told us of her wisdom, and of her minute knowledge of the interests of every portion of her Empire. But we have stronger witness than the opinions of such persons. Her influence, whether the influence of her character acting on her remotest subjects, or the influence of her counsel and her will acting upon the legislators and administrators of the Empire, was the paramount individual influence throughout the whole realm. During her reign new social forces sprung up and grew into power. Great men in letters, in scientific and philosophic discovery, appeared, added their treasures to the world's knowledge, and passed away. Great men of state ascended to power, and descended, and passed away. But through all new discoveries in the realm of mind or matter, and through all changes of ministries, the personal influence and power of Victoria waxed steadily stronger.

The Empire which she possessed at her death will ever stand as a memorial of her own wisdom and character. I do not say that she created this Empire; it was created by the genius of our race. But the genius of our race could not have created it without the wisdom and character of Victoria. Her name consolidated the Empire. It was not commerce and trade that did it; it was not our gigantic enterprise; it was not our genius for government. All these had a part. But all these without our Queen would never have brought forth the pageant of the jubilee.

For one cause or another the Queen was in the popular sentiment the corner stone of our Imperial structure. The British Islands are but a small part of the British Empire. The local and provincial interests of the inhabitants of those islands must always bind them together in federal loyalty to their government. But different conditions prevailed in parts of the Empire outside of those islands, in the colonies of Asia and America. Loyalty of foreign dependencies such as we see in the British Empire is so unexampled in the earth that we behold it with wonder and mystery. But there is one cause of this loyalty which is no mystery. It is not the whole cause, but it is part. This is the Queen's personality. In England Victoria lived in a castle, and she was every inch a Queen. But in Asia and America we knew her only as a good woman, who used her powerful influence to make the world good and peaceful. The subject of India dying of famine said, "The Queen will send me bread," the North American Indian looking upon her picture in his wigwam said, "The Queen-Mother will give the Indian his rights;" the Hottentot in Africa says, "The Queen will not let them beat me or enslave me." Somehow she means to these what is meant by kindness and justice. When our soldiers and volunteers from all parts of the empire are fighting and dying upon the veldt they all feel that they are fighting and dying for the Queen. Her name, and the principles and sentiments which have become associated with her name, have set on fire the patriotic enthusiasm of her subjects in all parts of her realm, and has astonished the world and no less surprised than delighted the Crown itself.

We might be likely to attribute her unparalleled influence to her national goodness and her natural wisdom, but in a sentence of rare beauty the Archbishops and Bishops of the Province of Quebec have attributed it to the supernatural grace of God. "The God who governs the universe, and who imparts to the kings of earth a portion of His power, sometimes places upon thrones sovereigns to whom He deigns to communicate a ray of His wisdom, and a reflection of His goodness. He lights up in their hearts a love of justice; He therein casts the seeds of the most beautiful domestic virtues as well as of the lofty qualities necessary to all those who are to command; He fills their souls with an unsullied devotedness to the interests and needs of their subjects, and He thus utilizes them as the noble instruments of His paternal plans for the happiness of the nations. Such was the design of the Supreme Master on that day sixty years ago when He was pleased to call our gracious and illustrious Majesty to the throne of the Empire."

It is possible that the influence of a sovereign for the weal or woe of our nation lies in the relation of the Crown to the personal character of those who administer the affairs of the realm. It is still true, even in a limited and constitutional monarchy, that "in the word of a King there is power." The choice of a sovereign has great weight in determining who shall be premier, or admiral or judge, or archbishop. How many thousands of men are holding official positions in the British Empire, positions from the highest places to the lowest? How much the welfare of the Empire depends upon the honor and the virtue of these persons? Other nations in comparison with ours show how disastrous to prosperity and government are unreliable men in the various departments of national administration. What our Empire owes to the personal influence of Queen Victoria for the justice of our courts, for the integrity of our statesmen, for the loyalty of our admirals and generals, for the honesty of our customs, one can only conjecture. But one thing is certain beyond all conjecture—if she had been an unprincipled or immoral woman her life and her court would have tainted the national administration in all its ramifications. With an administration morally tainted, the present proud position of our Empire could never have been attained. It is not the century we have passed through which has made the nations great—a century of invention and discovery. It has not advanced Spain, nor Italy, nor France. It is moral power alone that advances nations, and to this moral power it is universally admitted Victoria contributed more than any other person throughout the world in her lifetime. From the beginning of her reign she purged her courts of all immoral persons. From time to time in our own memory she has banished men of high distinction and great promise from the councils of the State, from the ranks of the army, and from every position social and political where they did violence to the sentiments dear to the christian heart. When she was twelve years of age she said, when she was told she was about to be made Queen, "And I will be good." The day she became Queen she retired alone to wait upon God. When she was crowned she declared the blessed book would be her guide.

Our Queen is dead! We could not have asked for a longer reign. Nature was worn out and must lie down to rest. We cannot follow her bier to the royal chapel without emotion. We feel a great loss in her death; we think we shall feel our loss more after a little. Another is on the throne—another for whom we feel genuine loyalty, for whom we shall pray as we used to pray. But it is no disrespect to the King to say that while the throne is not vacant our hearts cannot feel at once that it is filled.

The Queen is dead! She is no longer a Queen. The sceptre has fallen from her hand, the crown from her brow. How pathetic the expression of an attendant at Osborne, "She is nothing but a good old woman dying." She has gone to appear before Him in whose presence pomp and power vanish away. Death levels the King and subject, the lord and servant the master and slave has often been heard by us. How often we have heard of the vanity of crowns for they are temporal, and of thrones, for they crumble. But this day let us hear that our Queen is a Queen forevermore. The crown she wears to-day is a crown of righteousness, and her Kingdom is incorruptible and undefiled and fadeth not away. Tennyson's Ode to the Duke of Wellington will suffer to be changed in a word or two and used on this occasion in closing;

She is gone who seemed so great,
Gone but nothing can bereave her
Of the force she made her own
Being here, and we believe her
Something far advanced in state,
And that she wears a truer crown
Than any wreath that man can weave her.
Speak no more of her renown,
Lay your earthly fancies down,
And in the vast cathedral leave her
God accept her—Christ receive her."

The choir sang most expressively the anthem, "Gone to her Rest," after which Rev. J. W. Macmillan engaged in prayer. "Forever with the Lord" was next sung, Rev. E. Roberts closing the meeting with the benediction.

The draping was kindly supplied for the occasion by Mr. W. F. Sutcliffe, and the work was done under his supervision. The flowers were generously supplied by Mr. E. Maxsom, florist.

AT ST. PAUL'S CHURCH

The Memorial service at St. Paul's was remarkable for its impressiveness and the earnestness with which the large congregation entered into the prayers and other solemn offices chosen to mark the passing of a great and beloved Queen who had united in her person all womanly and christian virtues and had glorified her spiritual title, "Defender of the Faith."

At 10.30 every seat in the pretty edifice was taken, and some late-comers had to be accommodated with chairs placed in the main aisle. The members of Westminster Lodge Sons of England, to the number of about 100, occupied the front pews reserved for them. The church had been tastefully draped with black and purple, and in front of the lectern the Union Jack, edged with crepe, imparted a touch of color that caught and held the eye and suggested thoughts of the wide-spread grief felt in every land where the flag of Britain waves.

The service opened with the singing of Hymn 264, "We Know Thee now by Faith," and from beginning to end was of the most impressive nature—so much so that many eyes were wet with tears. The anthem, "What are these that are arrayed in white robes?" was rendered by the choir with touching expressiveness. After the recitation of the Creed and accompanying prayers, and the singing of Hymn 482, taken from the Burial Service, the Rector, Rev. C. H. Marsh, R.D., delivered an eloquent and affecting sermon, taking his text from the 1st Book of Samuel, part of 30th verse, "Them that honor me I will honor, and they that despise me shall be lightly esteemed." Following we give a snyopsis of the rev. gentleman's remarks;

"We know how applicable these words were of the house of Eli to whom they were first applied, and we know how true they still are, notwithstanding all the years that have rolled by since uttered. Perhaps the first part was never more applicable than today, and to the one in whose memory we are gathered, and to whom we do honor as her body is being borne to its last resting place. "Them that honor me, I will honor."

As we meet with bowed heads, with chastened and subdued thoughts, with reverent hearts, in God's house, I suppose that we may say that no one person since the world began has ever received such widespread expression of sorrow, or had manifested such manifold expressions of regret at time of departure as our beloved Queen whose memorial service we keep to-day. Never since God said, "Let us make man in Our Own image and likeness," up through the ages till the dawn of the 20th century, have so many flags fluttered at half-mast, so many bells tolled, so many eyes been dimmed with tears, or hearts touched on account of any death, as that of our beloved Queen Victoria.

Why? Is it because she rulled over a great Empire embracing one-fifth of all the people of the earth—the greatest Empire the world has ever seen? Only partly so. Many others have ruled over great dominions whose passing was cause for joy. Was it not because she had early learned to love God and worked for the good of her people and the glory of God? We have heard of her early decision to serve her divine Master—to become His child. We have heard (and trust we shall never forget) how in the early dawn of that June morning in 1837, when told by the Archbishop of Canterbury and Lord Chamberlain of the death of her uncle and her accession to the throne, her first words as monarch were (remember, ye people, remember) "I ask your prayers on my behalf," and kneeling down together they sought the blessing of the King of Kings,' that the young Queen might receive grace to rule justly and wisely the great kingdom committed to her charge. We remember also that after the coronation ceremony she went apart for two hours into the presence of the King of Kings to tell her needs and seek help and guidance. We know how all her life through she asked counsel and guidance of Him who promised, "Ask and ye shall receive, seek and ye shall find, knock and it shall be opened unto you."

So we are not surprised that on the day of her death, Emperors, Kings and Princes gathered around our good Queen's bedside; and that as her family wept quietly the good old Bishop of Winchester, with white hair,—who had been her Chaplain at Windsor and had had often prayed with her—commended her spirit to God — the God of the Psalmists, who could trust and say, "Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, Thy rod and Thy staff shall comfort me.'

We know that she read and studied the word of God religiously, and that she took it as the lamp to her path. We know that when the Southern Princes asked the source of England's strength, she laid her hand on her bible and said, "There is the source of England's greatness." We remember how she honored God before men by going regularly to His house to worship and learn of Him. We know that with her husband and family she delighted to be in a house of prayer, whether it was a Cathedral or a humble country church, and we know that in all the years the Queen and Prince Consort spent in Scotland only on two occasions was he absent from service on Sunday. We know that she fulfilled the law by partaking regularly of the emblems of our Saviour—she did this for 64 years. What happy times when she and her husband used to go together to the table of the Lord and fulfil the Saviour's command, "This do in remembrance of me," "As often as ye do eat this bread and drink this cup, ye do show forth the Lord's death till He come." We know she kept the Lord's day as a day for rest and worship; whether in England, Scotland or on the Continent, God's day was honored by England's Queen.

We know how she visited the cottage of the poor, and read God's word to the inmates. Only a few days previous he (Mr. Marsh) had heard a man on the train tell how the Queen had visited his cousin in a parish near Balmoral some thirteen years ago; she read and prayed, and went in and out unattended. She honored God in humble cot or lordly castle.

In her life and character sympathy was a predominant feature. She wept with those that sorrowed, and rejoiced with them that were glad. How many words of cheer, encouragement and comfort she had spoken to weary and discouraged ones at home! She sympathized with her soldiers and sailors, and visited them when dying and sick or wounded in the hospitals. And abroad, how her heart went out to others! Listen to what she found time to write to Mrs. Lincoln after the murder of her husband, the President:

"I am overwhelmed, dear Mrs. Lincoln. What can any earthly being say lessen the terrible blow that has come upon you in the loss and the loss in such a way of your great and noble husband? Accept with this my heartfelt sympathy in your affliction, through which the good God alone can guide you to peace and resignation. My people are shocked by this terrible calamity, which is to me a personal grief. My tears and prayers are yours. May He comfort and protect you always."

When later on President Garfield died the Queen sent a personal letter to Mrs. Garfield, saying:

"I have watched during the last few sad months with admiration the patience and christian fortitude of your gallant husband, and learn with great grief that he has passed away. I, too, know the sorrow of such unhappy desolation, and I ask you to accept my deepest sympathy. President Garfield was a good and noble man. May God sustain you in your hour of trouble."

So we can understand the tributes of the press of the United States to her worth. Even that pro-Boer journal, the Springfield Republican, bears testimony to her qualities. When referring to the Queen's early words, "I will be good," the editor remarks;

"This is not presumption, but a consecration, and the woman fulfilled the promise of the child. The utterance bespoke character — characterthat never failed her in the longest reign of all English sovereigns. It introduced virtue in heart and life, and betokened a poise of nature, a fundament of wisdom, such as was exalted in the 2nd chapter of Proverbs, in the old scripture of the Hebrews which the Queen knew by heart. These qualities never departed from Victoria, and she merited what she has always received —the profound respect of all thoughtful men and women and the gratitude of the world for an example of life as honest as that of any good woman among the people, and of rule as judicious and influential as that of any monarch known to history."

We know, therefore, something of what makes multitudes, nations and tribes do honor to her that has passed away. As we conclude let us thank God for her long reign, her tact, her wisdom, her christian sympathy, and womanly virtues. Let us pray that her example may induce others to lead good lives. Let us pray for her son, King Edward VII.

To-day our country weeps,
The Mighty Monarch sleeps,
Our Empress Queen;
Her life was pure, serene,
Her peer was seldom seen,
Long she reigned over us,
Beloved Queen.

In cottage and in hall,
Mantled as by a pall,
The Empire mourns;
Hers was a royal grace,
Queenliest of her race,
No more we see her face,
Beloved Queen.

Her memory we revere;
This truth now brings us cheer,
She was Thy child!
And, whilst she ruled us well,
Loud let this anthem swell,
Not Only Great But Good,
Beloved Queen.

And now, O Lord, our God,
Thy blessing we implore
On Edward's head,
Victoria's honoured son;
Through him Thy will be done,
We hail his reign begun,
God Save the King!

For 60 years we prayed and sang "God save the Queen." God heard our prayers, saved her from the assassin and the manifold dangers that surround the throne—saved her for a long and glorious reign, to enter finally into heavenly rest, for the good Book says "Blessed are the dead that die in the Lord. We believe that God will continue to bless the British Empire, because we are told that "Them that honor God He will honor." Let us pray sincerely for grace, that by the power of God we may be faithful, loyal and true. — true to our King, and true to the King of Kings."

A Doubtful Reputation

(Canadian Magazine.)

The Canadians in South Africa were good looters apparently. The first contingent was jocularly termed by the wags "the thousand thieves." It is said that on one occasion General Smith-Dorrien's division was attacking a town held by the Boers. The Highlanders were doing the heavy work. An officer remarked to the General, "The Highlanders don't seem to be able to take it, sir." The reply was laconic. "Oh, well, if they can't take it, we'll send the Canadians forward. They will soon steal it."

FELT THE HEALING POWER

Mrs Crawford, of Oromocto, N. B., has a Happy Story to Describe her Experience.

Oromocto, N.B. Feb. 4—This community has seldom seen such a remarkable case of pain and distress so promptly cured as that of Mrs. Wm. Crawford, of Oromocto. The poor lady thus relates the history of her case: "For a long time I have been ill with kidney and liver complaint which caused a frightful pain in my back, extending up between the shoulders.

"My physical and nervous system was so affected that I became very weak. My blood became so bad I was ill. Two boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills cured me. I felt their healing power from the very first and I know that no other medicine was instrumental in making the cure, for I used no other. Dodd's Kidney Pills are wonderful."

WEDDING BELLS.

Brandt-McAvoy.

A very pretty wedding was celebrated at St. Mary's church on Monday morning, when Mgr. Laurent united in marriage Miss S. Brandt, of this town, and Mr. P. McAvoy, of Pontiatia, Idaho. The ceremony was performed at 7.30 a.m. in the presence of a number of friends and well-wishers.

The bride was very becomingly attired in a grey travelling suit, with toque to match. The bridesmaid, Miss Guillemane, of Toronto, wore a navy blue suit, with velvet hat to match. After the ceremony was performed the party drove to the home of the bride's parents and sat down to a sumptuous repast.

The bride received many handsome and valuable presents in testimony of the esteem in which she is held by her many friends. The groom presented to the bride was a handsome gold watch and gold necklace. Mr. and Mrs. McAvoy left on the G.T.R. express on an extended honeymoon trip to Toronto and other western points, after which they will spend a few days in this town before leaving for their future home in the West.

What Late Risers Missed.

To those who were fortunate enough to view the rising of the sun Wednesday morning, a sight seldom witnessed itself. From the upper edge of Old Sol, extending nearly to the zenith, was a vast pillar of light burnished gold. On both sides of the sun were two immense "sun dogs" forming almost a complete frame-work for the sun. The spectacle was grand in the extreme and lasted for nearly half an hour. The sun presented nearly the same phenomena during the early morning on Wednesday, and we know no doubt predict a spell of weather of unusual severity.

Let us Have Clean Pavements

Some weeks ago Street Commissioner Chalmers called the attention of one of the council committees to the disgraceful state of the sidewalks, and spoke where ladders were in the habit of congregating, and requested council to call the attention of the Police Commissioners to the nuisance. It could not be denied that the habit it is a direct menace to the public health, and this description is regarded elsewhere. In New York recently an employer of a lady typewriter, who was fined $25 for spitting in a South Avenue elevated car. In imposing the sentence, Justice Jerome said: "The custom of expectorating in public conveyances, both on the surface and elevated railroads, is a custom which has become altogether too prevalent, and unless it is checked by penalties, it is the cause of spreading disease, and may be the means of spreading disease contracted in this manner. The ordinance in this city is a very good one, and should be rigidly enforced."

BELOVED QUEEN LEAVES COWES.

Borne to the Mainland With Grand Impressive Ceremony.

KING-QUEEN HUMBLE IN GRIEF,

Warships of All Nations Form the Queen's "Naval Corridor" and Accompany the Remains to the Point of Debarkation—The Greatest Naval Pageant Seen for Many Years.

Cowes, Feb. 1.—Cowes was astir at dawn and quickly became alive with visitors. Every cottage, house and roof whence the procession could be viewed was rapidly filled up. Along the portion of the route open to spectators was soon impassable. Long before the time for the funeral the hilly York avenue leading from Cowes was a picturesque sight. From the castle gate to the pier stood troops with alberts touching. Behind them were thousands of men, women and children. The ways were lined with poles with shields of black and silver upon them bearing the initials "V.I." surrounded by flags. Stands for spectators dotted the route. Innumerable cameras were posted at advantageous spots. Hawkers were busy disposing of black-bordered in memoria cards and other souvenirs. Thousands of people, mostly mounted grooms, and messengers dashed hither and thither coming and going, apparently in readiness. The guard around Osborne House was drawn right inside the house, place, a long, thin line of red merged into a thick, black mass, whose clustering around the royal residence.

As in the Death Chamber.

The Queen's guard was drawn up in two rank facing the house, there a entrance with heads bowed over their reversed arms, as in the death chamber.

At 1.20 p. m. the turn of the main door of Osborne House creaked and the pretty officers of the Royal yacht Victoria and Albert Alma doffed their hats and uncovered. King Edward came from a side entrance, accompanied by Emperor William of Germany. Each wore an admiral's uniform.

The Grenadiers momentarily raised their heads, and came to the salute, which the King returned, and the man at the helm gave the signal. Then through the glass doors could be seen the coffin, borne carried by the sailors, who but a few moments previous had entered. It was preceded by the Queen's pipers and the Royal robes, and regalia, and followed by the other side by equerries.

Walked With Bowed Heads.

Behind the khaki-colored gun carriage walked, with bowed heads, the King, the German Emperor in naval uniform, and eight English, German and Danish Princes, and Queen Alexandra and the Princes and German Princesses in deepest black.

The procession then left the Queen and King followed on foot the Royal mourners at a simple village funeral, and behind them the military Headquarters staff of the Isle of Wight, Royal servants and tenants of the Osborne estate.

The pipers played until the Queen's gate was passed, and then the massed bands which had been stationed in advance with mounted grooms in attendance, formed up the Household Cavalry officers and files of staff officers, began the slow movement of lost-in-waiting. On the right of the carriage, the lord chamberlain, aide-de-camp, and lord-in-waiting.

Behind the gun carriage walked the Queen of Spain on the left, the Duke of Connaught on the right, Emperor William took walking following these come the Royal Family, royal representatives, and the Queen's household.

Four footmen carrying, conveying the crown and Plimsoll.

The Kings of Portugal, Portugal and Holland, probably riding, closing the escort.

A Large Army.

London, Feb. 1.—For the funeral Saturday will be a great day for London. Three thousand men will march in the procession and the Queen's guards will be the chief feature. The detachments of troops in the procession will represent a force much of the army, the navy, the colonials, the yeomanry and the volunteers, the military display, however, will not be spectacular. The troops will wear overcoats, except the Irish Foot, Guards and Dragoons, and carry arms. Twenty-four thousand soldiers are pouring into London from the provinces and will be housed and fed and quilted as barracks.

Demand for Seats Also for Seats.

The demand for seats along the route of the funeral is unprecedented. Ordinary windows seats are selling at £10 ($50) each. Prices have gone very high within the last three days. One tenant in St. James Street demanded £20 ($200) for a window on the top floor. Store windows are selling at £15 ($75) each, and £200 ($1,000), but the store keepers mostly prefer to sell seats at £10 ($50) to £15 ($75) each. Stores and hotels in Piccadilly commanding a view of the procession from there to St. James' Palace are selling for £100 ($500) and upwards, fetching £25 ($125) and £30 ($150).

Royalties Arriving.

London, Feb. 1.—A special train yesterday morning brought to the Charing Cross station a number of members of the royal families from the Continent for the purpose of attending the funeral of Queen Victoria.

Sound of a Great Battle.

Shortly before 4 o'clock white smoke broke from the Majestic's side, and a second later a report crackled over the harbor and echoed to the hill announcing the starting of the Alberta from Trinity pier. From ship to ship the salute was passed down the line. Each vessel of the fleet was firing minute guns. They employed their whole side batteries, so that on the channel side were silhouettes of hulls, spars and rigging, before backgrounds of dense gray smoke. The sound was that of a great battle.

Silent Naval Pall-Bearers.

Eight torpedo-boat destroyers crept silently, moving in pairs, like silent pall-bearers marching before a hearse. They were the Portsmouth squadron of exactly the same size, every inch of hull and smokestack painted a dull gray, with an officer standing like a statue in the bow, each of the officers with his attention fixed like sentries on their decks. Hardly a ripple came from their bows, their speed being barely five knots. The pairs of torpedo-boat destroyers were about 100 yards apart, with four boat lengths between stern and bows.

Royal Yacht With the Catafalque.

Then a quarter of a mile behind, but seeming across the water, but a stone's throw, followed the royal yacht Alberta, the vessel on which the eyes of the world may be said to have been focused. It was a funeral boat-like-looking little vessel, lying low in the water, with a gilt-ringed hull and sidewheels protected by yellow paddle boxes. At the stern a national call officer, uniformed in dark blue, alone, as motionless as part of the ship. The Union Jack was at the foremast, the Royal Standard fell from half way up the mainmast and the naval ensign trailed from the stern.

Only Touch of Color.

The after-deck of the yacht was roofed with a white awning, and beneath the awning through glasses could be seen the catafalque. It was a pavilion artistically framed with red hangings, and surmounted by a canopy of rubber material, lined white silk. Underneath the canopy was the coffin, on a bier draped in purple and gold, and on a red velvet cushion was the royal crown, with its orb. Twenty-four footmen of rank with the resplendent gold crown on their breast, the only touch of color in this sombre pageant. Four officers of the guards, standing at the four corners of the catafalque, with their faces turned toward the ship. A few other personages were seen clustered of the Alberta's deck.

As the Alberta moved slowly past the decks of the warships were uncovered and the officers and men all manned to their full complement. The sailors in line, with arms back, formed a solid mass along the decks of each ship, standing with their caps off at "attention."

A line of scarlet coats, topped by a canopy, adorned bridges and turret-decks, showed where the marines were stationed. The fighting tops and guns were also manned. The officers stood out in showy, full-dress array.

The band of each ship took up the funeral march as the Alberta moved abreast, and the spectators on all the other craft took off their hats.

Boat With Royal Mourners.

Following the Alberta trailed along five other yachts at regular intervals. Behind the last was a barge, with a royal yacht twice as large as the Alberta, carrying the royal mourners, who, as relatives or officials, followed the coffin.

King Edward and Emperor William were chief among them, the former in admiral's uniform. They were the only group not recognizable. A few other yachts followed, with ladies in the deepest mourning, and then came the upper deck of the Indian attendants were distinguishable by their white turbans.

In the wake of the Victoria and Albert Emperor William's yacht, Hohenzollern, followed, the German flag at her bow and the naval ensign at half-mast at her stern.

Alberta's yacht came in single file. The Osborne, larger than the Victoria and Albert, followed, then came the admiralty yacht Enchantress, a fast, small, steel-hulled, twin-screw Trinity House yacht. Finally came another vessel, a black torpedo-boat destroyer.

Marines "Reversed Arms."

The guns of each warship ceased firing when the Alberta passed good by and the marines "reversed arms." But they and all the sailors remained at their stations while the fleet moved from three abreast into two solid masses of black, raised their anchors and followed outside the line of the Alberta.

Arrival at Portsmouth.

Gradually the dark and minute guns issued as the batteries of ship after ship ceased firing, while the funeral parade slowly moved out of the line and into the entrance of Portsmouth harbor.

When the Alberta entered the harbor, the guns of Portsmouth and the forts sounding, the bells of all the churches in the harbor tolling, the current frigate Victory moored there first salute of minute-leaders. The funeral arrived at one.

The admiral's band played a dirge, the marines presented arms, officers drew about and standing to their feet, and the Alberta moored moved in Clarence yard. A guard of a hundred marines marched on board.

GRIEF-SILENT MILLIONS MUTE

While Queen's Funeral Cortege Made Solemn Way in London.

LONDON'S MILLIONS IN BLACK.

The Majesty of Death and the Submission of Emperors and Kings to the Last Great Conqueror Typified by the Mourning People—Their Grief, Love and Sympathy Measureless.

London, Feb. 2.—England's final act of reverent homage to the memory of Victoria naturally lends itself to hyperbole, but language does not need to be restrained in describing the sincerity and sobriety of the concourse of spectators who paid their tribute of respect and affection to the beloved Sovereign. Thousands had remained in the footways and parks from midnight in order to have their places along the route of the funeral procession, and they stood in silence hour after hour, unmoved by the exasperating fussiness of the police and the excitability of military officers, and with bowed heads and grim, sorrowful faces watched the passage of their dead Sovereign in solemn state, with her jeweled crown and orb of empire.

Glorious, indeed, has been the reign which has left the humblest and lowliest Victoria's subjects with a sense of personal bereavement, and also of individual obligation to do homage soberly and in silence to her virtues and exalted character. Unique as was the military pageant, with its khaki-colored gun carriage drawn by the Royal creams and followed by mourning Sovereigns and heirs to European thrones, and stately as was the ritual in St. George's Chapel, the characteristic feature of Victoria's funeral was the reverent hush and profound emotion of the masses in their humility and unaffected grief. The silence of multitudes who could only uncover their heads on a grey, murky morning and commune with their own hearts and be still was the most eloquent tribute which any Sovereign had ever received from democratic England.

The day on which, for the last time, all Englishmen assembled in their hundreds of thousands to pay tribute to the person of their great departed Queen dawned, chill and gray.

Took Places Before Daylight.

Long before it was fully light thousands of people had taken places along the route to be followed by the sad but magnificent pageant. Some of them had been waiting from the small hours of the morning, long ere the troops and police appeared in force. But the great majority came in an increasing flow from 7 o'clock up to the hour the train, with its sad burden, was due at Victoria Station.

On every lamp-post hung a large laurel wreath tied with great purple ribbons. This scheme was followed along the whole route of the procession, many extra pillars having been erected for the purpose, and its simple effectiveness was, perhaps, the most striking feature of the plan for mourning display.

Every house was draped with lines of purple hangings, and the purple-covered stands were already half filled.

Garbed in Deepest Mourning.

The spectators were garbed in the deepest mourning, and so it was with the whole multitude that lined the streets. Practically every one was dressed in black.

In the display of mourning the universal hangings of purple had to be looked for, but the sad, continuous blackness of three and a half miles of men, women and children was a sight which impressed one strangely.

There they stood, hour after hour, with none of the music or cheering such as they had been used to in the numerous great concourses seen in London lately. The scene was one of black, mournful silence.

The Throng Countless.

An estimate of the number in the crowd was well nigh impossible. The side streets leading to and parallel with the route of the funeral were filled with thousands of people unable to reach the thoroughfares through which the cortege passed. Every minute added to their numbers, and it seemed as though all London was making for the west without the slightest chance of reaching the line of the procession.

While hundreds of thousands waited in London, preparations were being made for the start from Portsmouth. The coffin, covered with a white silken pall, on the top of which were three crowns and the crystal orb and jeweled sceptre, was transferred from the Royal yacht Alberta to the funeral train at 8.53 o'clock.

A crowd of privileged persons stood bareheaded on the bleak platform and many were scarcely able to restrain their emotions as the coffin was lifted. The Queen's special saloon carriage was decorated with purple emblems of mourning, and the coffin was reverently placed on a raised platform in the centre of the car.

King Edward and Emperor William then took their places in the carriage reserved for them and the crape-bedecked engine steamed out of the station with its load of illustrious mourners.

The train drew up at the Victoria platform at 11.10 o'clock opposite a large purple pavilion, in which were waiting the Kings of Greece, Portugal and Belgium and the representatives of other foreign Sovereigns.

King Edward was the first to alight. He stepped forward immediately to greet his Royal guests. He was clad in the uniform of a Field Marshal, over which was thrown a black cloak.

Emperor William, who quickly joined the King, was simarily clothed. His military figure and almost pallid face gave him, perhaps, a more impressive bearing than that of the King.

The two monarchs remained for a few moments within the pavilion, forming, with the other guests, perhaps the most remarkable group of crowned heads ever assembled in one spot. Besides the King of England there were the Emperor of Germany, the King of Greece, the King of Portugal, and the King of Belgium.

The other members of the Royal party left the train meanwhile, and the humble vehicle which was to carry Victoria's body through the capital drew up beside the Queen's saloon carriage, where the bier was still under the guardianship of four of her soldiers.

A detail consisting of one officer and twelve men of the Guards and the Household Cavalry presently performed their last duty to her by lifting the coffin from the car and placing it gently upon the gun carriage, the Royal party and guests standing silent and uncovered during its brief transit.

Within ten minutes after entering the station all was ready. The funeral procession started at 12.20.

It would be a mistake to describe this wonderful funeral cortege as a great pageant. It was what it typified, as in the jubilee procession of three years ago, not its actual display of power, that made it marvelous above all other tributes to dead monarchs which the world has seen. It is in that sense that the spectacle which London has just witnessed should be viewed.

The funeral cortege was exclusively royal and military, with court functionaries mounted or in carriages. Neither the Government nor Parliament was represented in it, nor any public services. The Ministers, members of Parliament and judges were allowed to look on from special stands erected near St. James' Palace.

The three miles from Victoria Station to Paddington took two hours for the procession to traverse. It reached Paddington at 12.30.

Then the staff officer leading the procession entered. Then the only sound was the slow tramp of troops forming the front lines of the cortege, still marching in funeral step with arms reversed, but who now marched in closer order.

Presently the sweet, sad strains of Beethoven's most familiar funeral march and the low, thrilling roll of thirty muffled side drums penetrated the station.

A little later the foreign attaches entered and drew up alongside the guard of honor, then the headquarters staff did likewise, and Earl Roberts, attended by one aide, entered alone.

Every hat was instinctively doffed and replaced, but there was not a sound save the footsteps of the troops leaving the far end of the station and that of the band still playing as they massed at the top platform. Then the Earl Marshal's party drew up by the headquarters staff. Earl Roberts, having dismounted, stood, carrying his baton, near the King's saloon car.

As the gun carriage entered, a strange hush fell upon the crowd, every hat was again removed, and the soldiers saluted until it was drawn up opposite to the funeral car.

Then, when the King, with his regal and princely company had entered, there was for the first time and only for a few moments a scene of bright, kaleidoscope movement.

An army of silk-hatted, black-coated grooms rushed forward to take away the horses, Kings, Princes, attaches and aides dismounted, and in a moment the crimson-carpeted platform was covered with a brilliant moving throng.

Next came the moving of the coffin. Its coverings were removed, and the plain oak, brass-mounted coffin stood in its bare simplicity upon the khaki-colored gun carriage.

At the moment the gun carriage entered the station the Queen's colors were dropped to the ground and the black-draped royal standard upheld. Then the bareheaded Guards and Household Cavalrymen bore the coffin into the car.

Within a minute every door of the train was closed on a party such as no train had ever before carried. Slowly, silently, almost imperceptibly, the train moved out.

Every eye followed it, every raised hat seemed to be instinctively held out toward it in mute farewell; bands ceased playing and for a few moments all was silence.

No one moved or spoke.

All seemed to realize that the capital of Victoria's world-wide Empire had looked its last upon its best-loved monarch.

It was just after 1.30 o'clock when the train departed, and Victoria, Queen and Empress, had made her last progress through the heart of her realm.

A dense crowd of people, who hoped to avoid the throngs in London by going to Windsor, had already made the streets impassable by 11 o'clock this morning, although it was to be at least three hours before the Queen's body would arrive.

Purple and black draperies hung from thronged windows, and all along the narrow, stone-paved, winding streets there were decorations.

The distance from the railway station to St. George's Chapel is fully half a mile. The gate at Windsor Park divided the route, however, leaving only a bare quarter of a mile open to the public. Here at 1 o'clock a black, silent, expectant mass was wedged behind a line of troops.

The train, with its precious burden, entered the station at 2.30 p. m. Scenes similar to those enacted in London were presented, and the cortege reached St. George's Chapel at 3.15 p.m.

The Bishop of Winchester read the lesson from the 15th Corinthians, "Man that is born of Woman," was chanted by the choir to Wesley's music, followed by "Thou knowest, Lord, the secrets of our hearts."

The Dean of Windsor read, "I heard a voice," and the choir sang the Lord's Prayer to the music composed especially for the dead Queen by Gounod. Once more the strains of the choir welled up through the ancient chapel with the singing of "How Blessed Are They That Died," by Tchaikowsky.

The Archbishop of Canterbury read the Collect and with quavering voice pronounced the benediction. There was a solemn pause while all heads bowed. A few sobs were heard and the choir then broke the oppressive stillness with the sweet harmony of the "Dresden Amen."

Then the loud tones of the Norroy King of Arms, William Henry Weldon, proclaimed the dead Monarch's title. The Spohr Anthem, "Blessed Are The Departed," followed and the service was concluded by the playing of Beethoven's funeral march by Sir Walter Parrott, organist of St. George's Chapel, and private organist of the late Queen.

SUNDAY SERVICES.

Memorial Service Held at St. George's Chapel, Windsor, at Which King Edward Was Present.

London, Feb. 3.—The body of the late Queen Victoria has been protected by Guardsmen in the Albert Memorial Chapel at Windsor since it was deposited there yesterday. The officials of the Royal Household at Windsor Castle visited the chapel today, as well as a number of friends, and admired the great display of wreaths.

The interment at Frogmore tomorrow will be at 3 p. m. The coffin will be conveyed on a gun carriage drawn by artillery horses, which will rehearse in the morning.

The guard of honor will be the late Queen's company of the Grenadier Guards, the regimental band accompanying the escort to the mausoleum. The ceremony there will be private, the immediate members of the Royal family attending. The Archbishop of York, the Bishop of Winchester, and the Dean of Windsor will officiate. The choir of St. George's Chapel Royal, Sir Walter Parratt directing, will render the music. The choir will meet the procession at the steps of the chapel, and with the clergy will precede the coffin, the Royal personages with the servants and the late Queen's pipers following.

WINDSOR CASTLE.

Service in St George's.

A memorial service was held this morning in St. George's Chapel, attended by King Edward, Queen Alexandra, the Duchess of Cornwall and York, Emperor William, Crown Prince Frederick William, the Duke of Connaught, other relatives of the Queen, and thirty ladies and gentlemen of the Royal Household. The Royal personages wore civilian clothing, the ladies wearing mourning veils.

Sir Walter Parrott played a prelude by Chaminade, and Canon the Marquis of Normandy and the Dean of Windsor read the special lessons. The prayers were the special prayers prescribed relating to the death of Victoria and the accession of Edward. The choir sang Dvorak's anthem, "Blessed Jesus, Fount of Mercy," rendering it with beautiful effect. The Right Rev. William Stubbs, Bishop of Oxford, delivered the funeral discourse, taking for his text Proverbs, chapter xvi., 12th verse: "For the throne is established by righteousness."

The aged prelate read from a desk inside the communion rail, and could not be heard except by those sitting very near him. He said, in part: "All our thoughts to-day are about the great and gracious personality whom we have lost. The end of her long reign marked an epoch which gave rise to gratitude, sorrow and hope, to gracious memories and great anticipations. The years brought some pressure at the helm and some violence of waves, but never once was there any loss of governance, never any alienation of the hearts of her people.

"All are pleased that the new King has determined to call himself after the greatest of her ancestors, the pure and clean. we has greatly grown, and along the lines of his policy we now seek a seven-fold blessing from the Seventh Edward."

The benediction was pronounced by the Bishop of Winchester.

After the service King Edward and Emperor William walked in the grounds, and in the evening they attended a strictly private service, at which Mme. Albani sang.

Emperor William will leave Windsor Tuesday, accompanied by King Edward. He will take luncheon at Marlborough House, after which he will drive to Charing Cross station, where he will take the train for Port Victoria. He will follow the same route by which Lord Roberts entered London on returning from South Africa, and a great ovation is expected.

THE UNITY OF EIGHT PROVINCES

Proclamation of the King in Canada, Through the Governor-General and State Officers, Making Saturday, Feb. 2, a Public Holiday to Afford Loving Subjects Opportunity to Express Sorrow.

Montreal, Feb. 1.—The Star publishes the following special cables from London:

Lord Strathcona is the official representative of Canada at the late Queen's funeral at Windsor on Saturday. Canada sends a magnificent wreath four feet in diameter, and consisting of a centre panel of white lilac, encircled with camelias, lilies of the valley and violets. Around this outer circle are eight semi-circular wreaths, of white azaleas, representing the eight Canadian provinces. The inscription reads: "A tribute of affectionate regard and esteem from her Canadian peoule."

British Columbia sends a cushion, star of violets, with the letters V. R. I. and a crown picked out on lilies of the valley. At the foot is a white silk ribbon, with a spray of silk orchids. The inscription reads: "Tribute of affection from the Government and people of British Columbia."

The Daily Mail gives a pathetic touch in its report of yesterday's proceedings at the Scottish corporation, assembled to pass votes of condolence. It says that Lord Strathcona was so visibly affected that, though he stood up for several minutes, only a word or two here and there could be caught, and his speech was nothing more than a mere whisper.

"In testimony whereof we have caused these our letters to be made patent, and the great seal of Canada to be hereunto affixed.

KING'S PILOT ENGINE

Proceeded Edward VII. For the First Time Since Accession.

THE DUKE OF YORK UNWELL.

Suffering From the Strain—King Edward Returns to London—Text of King's Speech on Investing the German Crown Prince with Garter—Detectives and Anarchists.

London, Jan. 30.—For the first time since his accession, the King's train yesterday was preceded by a pilot engine. His Majesty was vociferously cheered on his way to Marlborough House.

The Privy Council has ordered the Archbishop of Canterbury to prepare a special form of service in commemoration of the Queen, to be used Saturday in all churches in the kingdom. The Duke and Duchess of Aosta (the former is a cousin of the King of Italy and the latter a daughter of the late Count of Paris) will arrive here Jan. 31.

Mr. Joseph Chamberlain was among the King's visitors yesterday afternoon.

Duke of York Unwell.

Cowes, Isle of Wight, Jan. 30.—King Edward left Cowes for London yesterday morning.

The Duke of York is suffering from the strain of recent events, and has been confined to his room since Thursday. It is feared he will be unable to take part in the ceremonies of Friday.

The only American wreath which has arrived at Osborne so far is one from Mrs. Sidney Everett of Boston, who is staying on the Isle of Wight. It is inscribed: "In token of lifelong veneration and reverence."

The main wing of Osborne House is expected to become the residence of Princess Beatrice (Princess Henry of Battenburg), in her capacity as Governor of the Isle of Wight. The other part of the house will be reserved for the King.

Gen. Sir Dighton Probyn, comptroller and treasurer of the household of the Prince of Wales since 1877, is mentioned as likely to succeed Lord Edward Pelham-Clinton as master of the household. The office is in the personal gift of the King.

Crown Prince Frederick of Denmark is expected to arrive in London today.

Prince Henry of Prussia sailed from Kiel yesterday, on board the German battleship Baden, accompanied by the coast defence ship Hagen.

Prince George of Saxony is prevented by influenza from coming to the funeral. Prince John George will take his place.

Text of the King's Speech.

London, Jan. 30.—The following is the text of the address of King Edward VII. to the Crown Prince of Germany, Frederick William, on the occasion of His Majesty presenting the insignia of the Order of the Garter to the Crown Prince, in the Council Chamber of Osborne House, Monday morning:

"Sir—In conferring on Your Imperial and Royal Highness the ancient and most noble Order of the Garter, which was founded by my ancestor (Edward III., 1349), many centuries ago, I invest you with the order of knighthood, not only as the heir to the throne of a mighty empire, but also as my near relative. It was the wish of my beloved mother, the late Queen, to bestow it on you, as a mark of her favor, and I am only carrying out her wishes, and am glad to do so to one of my illustrious relatives.

"To the German Emperor, to whom I wish to express my sincere thanks for having at a moment's notice left his own land to come to this country, and for having assisted in tending and watching over the late Queen, and remaining with her until her last moment, I desire to express the hope that my action in conferring on you this ancient order may yet further cement and strengthen the feeling which exists between the two great countries, and that we may go forward hand in hand with the high object of insuring peace, and promoting the advance of civilization of the world."

SCOTLAND YARD ALERT.

Precautions Taken to Frustrate Anarchist Attempts at the Funeral.

Buffalo, Jan. 30.—A special cable despatch from London says:

The possibility of a wholesale attack by Anarchists on royalty at the late Queen's funeral has not escaped the attention of Scotland Yard. It is a fact that more prominent royal persons will be gathered at Windsor next Saturday than at any time in many years.

The knowledge of this has stimulated the activity of British detectives, and they are now busy running suspicious characters out of the country. Suspected Anarchists who cannot rightly be driven out will be arrested on imaginary charges the night before the funeral.

Four detectives are watching Malatesta, the king killer, who is said to have been implicated in the assassination of King Humbert. Malatesta, disavows any intention of making an onslaught on royalty this week.

He says organized Anarchy is not responsible for the assassination of crowned heads in recent years, and that murder is not in their creed. Despite Malatesta's protestations, however, Scotland Yard is taking no chances. Its men are shadowing every port in the United Kingdom.

The Irish Party Recalcitrant.

Dublin, Jan. 30.—John Redmond, leader of the Irish Nationalist party, speaking at Wexford Monday night, said that an alliance between the party and the English Liberals was not to be thought of.

Referring to the late Queen, Mr. Redmond said that 40 coercion acts had been passed during her reign, and that during the same period no less than 4,000,000 Irish had emigrated from the country.

MT. HOREB.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

The home of Mr. John Sluggitt, our newly-elected council man, was the scene of a very pleasant gathering on Monday evening, Jan. 28th. Reaboro brass band came out to offer their congratulations to Mr. Sluggett, for his success at the late election. When they arrived they found a large crowd already assembled, anticipating a good time. Their anticipations were realized to the full. The band soon after its arrival rendered a number of selections, which were much appreciated and enjoyed by all present. Then games followed, also music and songs. Later on in the evening the band again favored the assembly with a number of selections excellently rendered, after which a sumptuous repast, prepared by the kind hostess of the evening, was partaken of by about one hundred After the band had again rendered some of their choice pieces the assembly broke up with expressions of pleasure from all present, and a vote of thanks to the band for their evening's entertainment.

Mr. Silverwood gave an excellent and profitable address at the school house last Thursday night on "Poultry and how best to rear them." He gave good advice to a large number of farmers and their wives who had assembled to hear him. He had also an excellent phonograph, with which all were delighted as the clear notes of many of our popular songs issued from its tubular throat. One was seen gazing intently into the tube to see the man "who was singing." Some considered the song, "There's nothing too good for Mr. Silverwood," or rather "for the Irish," was the best.

A new blacksmith has arrived in the person of Mr. John Lowery in our growing town. He comes highly recommended and we wish him every success.

75 pairs Boys' Boots, No. 4, only, worth from $1 to $1.50 for 85c a pair, during February. Hogg Bros.' stock-taking month.—1.

Go to Rich, the Tailor, for an up-to-date suit of clothes. His clothes, which consist of English, Canadian and Scotch Tweeds, are the best; his serges are extra fine. Give him your next order. His prices are reasonable and he guarantees a good fit.—wtf.

PLEASANT POINT.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

The people in this locality are taking advantage of the good sleighing to get their teaming all done.

Saturday, the 2nd of February, was observed as a day of mourning for her gracious majesty Queen Victoria.

The Pleasant Point C.E. has gone the road of all flesh, having died a natural death.

Social gatherings are all the rage at present. Of course they play "Lost Heir," and wind up with an innocent dance.

As Mr. Henry Jackson, of North Ops, was out enjoying a drive one day recently, accompanied by his uncle, Mr. Richard Jackson, of Neepawa, Manitoba, they were surprised in meeting an animal which they at first took to be a grey fox, but on closer observation proved to be a raccoon of the largest size. Henry being a keen sportsman, immediately gave chase, and after an exciting run of a few minutes, he captured the prize. The most remarkable feature was that the animal must have at one time had five legs, as when taken it had four, the fifth having been taken off at the knee by a trap at some past time. It measured close to four feet from tip to tip. Mr. Jackson is naturally proud of his prize.

NORLAND.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Death again visited our midst on Wednesday last, this time claiming for its victim another of our oldest citizens, in the person of Mrs. Roderick O'Brien, aged 84 years. The latter years of her life were lived in continual expectancy of the appearance of her Redeemer. It is needless to say a life lived in such hopefulness has received the "Well done, faithful servant, enter into the joy of thy Lord."

The remains of Mrs. Spencer, sr., of Lutterworth, were interred in Pine Grove cemetery on Saturday last.

Grippe is a very unwelcome visitor but he comes just the same, and stays until he gets forced out. He is no respector of persons or places. Among those who are at present laid up with grippe are Mrs. W. Helson, Mrs. Barnes, Mr. and Mrs. Boadway, Mrs. McKenzie, Mr. Roderick O'Brien and Mrs. Robt. Woodcock.

The Orangemen of this place expect to have a basket social in their hall on Thursday evening, Feb. 7th. A programme is being prepared to consist of music and addresses by Mr. J. H. Carnegie, M.L.A., Rev. W. P. Rogers, Coboconk, and Rev. H. E. Curts, pastor.

Col. Sam Hughes will give one of his interesting lectures, accompanied by lime-light views, on the South African war at Head Lake on Saturday evening, 9th inst.

Rev. A. J. Terrill, of Victoria Road, will occupy the pulpit in the Methodist church on Sunday next. Rev. H. E. Curts will take Rev. Terrill's work at Victoria Road.

A memorial service to our departed sovereign was held in the Methodist church on Sunday last. The church was very beautifully draped for the occasion.

WOODVILLE.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Bargains, Bargains! During stock-taking we intend running a bargain counter, on which we will place remnants and odds and ends, with certain regular goods, at greatly reduced prices. First come, first served. Murchison & Gilchrist, Woodville.

Our bargain counter last week was a decided success. This week we wish to dispose of a few odd sizes of Men's Reefers, Overcoats and Pants; we are offering them at prices that will sell them in a hurry. We have still on hand a few remenants in Dress goods. Remember, our bargains are all genuine. Murchison & Gilchrist, Woodville.—wtf.

C. H. McKee, the butcher, has a beautiful display of meats. His meats are always the best. For a nice quarter of beef see him.—wtf.

The Sunderland hockey club played here with our boys on Friday night and came off best. Considering the short time the Woodville club have been in practice, they did very well.

Saturday was very generally observed as a holiday in memory of Queen Victoria. All the places of business were closed.

Eli Armstrong, recently of Orillia, visited with friends here for the past few days.

A. J. Sproule, baker, left here for Cannington last week, he having purchased a bakery at Port Perry.

Rev. J. McD. Duncan, B.D., preached at Orillia on Sunday last.

Mr. J. C. Gilchrist has been quite ill for some days, but is now somewhat improved and expects soon to be about as usual

Mr. J. McGowan and A. E. Staback drove to Brechin on Saturday.

John Campbell, of "Fairview" Farm, shipped a lot of fine sheep to the States this week.

J. N. Lawson and Mrs. Lawson are both very ill this week.

Mrs. LaFraugh, of Scarboro, is at present with her parents here, Mr. and Mrs. Lawson.

Miss M. McKinnon has been confined to her room for the past ten days with a serious illness, but is some improved in health this week.

Manager Kirkland has announced a skating carnival in the rink here on Friday night of this week, weather permitting.

A new grocery store is to be opened soon for business in Campbell's block.

Street Commissioner S. Ducmond has been working the new snow plow purchased at Lindsay by our village council, and it is quite an improvement.

BRECHIN.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Mr. Herb. Schisler, of Orillia, spent Saturday in town.

Miss Minnie Roach is at present visiting in Toronto.

Miss Annie MacDonald spent last week with friends in Barrie.

Mr. M. McGowan, of the Queen's hotel, Woodville, passed through town Saturday to see his brother John, who has been seriously ill for some time.

Mr. John Barker, of the Hudson Bay Co., White River, is spending a few days under the parental roof. He was accompanied home by his sister, Rose, who has been on an extended visit in that vicinity.

We extend our congratulations to Miss Mary Moran, of Barrie, formerly teacher in the Separate School here, on having passed the examination for Second Class Professional certificate with honors.

The pupils of the Separate School gave an entertainment in McGrath's hall on the 25th ult., which reflected much credit on their teachers, Mr. R. L. Gaughan, principal, and Miss Fox, assistant.

La grippe has taken from our midst one of our well known and respected residents, in the person of Mrs. Thos. Derrick, whose funeral took place on Monday to St. Andrew's R.C. church.

Mr. Mark McConnell sold his hotel property to Mr. Stone, of Elmvale, who, we understand, will take possession on March 1st. Mr. McConnell intends moving on his farm north of Orillia. "Mark" has always been an up-to-date hotel-man and a good citizen. We are sorry to lose him, but wish him success in handling the plow.

Our enterprising merchant, Mr. Wm. J. Barker, finding his present business quarters too small, has purchased from Mrs. O'Neill the corner lot on Simcoe and Main-sts., and intends building a large two story solid brick store, 110x40 feet, equipped with all the latest improvements.

MOUNT PLEASANT.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Messrs. O'Hara Bros. are preparing to leave here very soon for Alameda, in the Prairie Province. They will take two carloads of freight with them. We wish them success in their venture.

The butter factory is booming now. Farmers find that they get a good class of butter, which sells at high prices. There are good prices for a high grade of cows, and farmers get good returns for cattle and pork—better than from mines.

J. Fallis is improving under the treatment of our new Dr. Keith, who says he was driving like Jehu last week. We wish him success.

We regret very much that we have no prospect of a visit to our village of any of the lake craft next season. If the proposed seven mile drain, which was duly surveyed a few years ago by order of our municipal council, had been completed through our long swamp, we might have been in the position of one of our sister towns, and anxiously looking for a tug boat.

Can any of your correspondents give any information about our peat industry.

Our churches united in holding memorial services in memory of our late beloved sovereign, the Queen. Would the present time not be favorable to bring about the union of the different Protestant churches. Divisions commenced in the time of the Apostle Paul—would it not be well for the world if they would end now. "United we stand, divided we fall." Let us cultivate the spirit of union so as to bring about the Millenium.

At the opening service in the Methodist church last Sunday the national anthem was the opening hymn sung by the choir and the congregation.

One of the oldest settlers in the township of Cavan, the late Matthew McIndoo, was interred in St. John's cemetery on Sunday, Feb. 3rd. He lived 81 years on the farm from which he was removed by death.

FENELON FALLS.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Mr. John Allan, an old gentleman, of 97 years and six months of age, who has lived with Mr. John A. Ellis for the past 14 years, died on Sunday. Mr. Allan has been confined to his bed for eleven years, and during this time bore his infirmities with christian endurance and was never known to complain. The funeral to the Fenelon Falls cemetery on Tuesday was numerously attended.

At the Presbyterian church, on Sabbath last, Dr. Malcolm, a missionary who has been in China during the last eight years, spoke morning and evening. The church was comfortably filled at both services, and the speaker held the attention of his audience with marked success. The lecture was well delivered and it was of the greatest interest to hear from the lips of one who has been there, the privations endured by the missionaries, and their experiences in general while endeavoring to bring the gospel of peace to those who live in darkness.

At the Methodist church on Wednesday evening of this week, the pastor, Rev. Mr. Leitch, gave a lecture entitled "From Canada to Rome," via way of England. This lecture was well attended and the speaker did justice to his subject. Mr. Leitch has the faculty for keen observation, and has a way of rehearsing what he has seen in a manner which is at once magnetic and holds the audience in wrapt attention.

On Tuesday evening of this week the lecture-room of the Presbyterian church was well filled to listen to the programme rendered by the young people of the congregation. The programme consisted of readings, recitations and music. These entertainments are becoming quite popular and have been the means of mutual improvement among the young and old as well. It is to be hoped that such meetings will be encouraged, and that they will have a continuance throughout the winter months.

The Fenelon Falls hockey team defeated Bobcaygeon team on the ice here on Thursday night of last week. Our boys are in it now for the finals, and will play Keene and Norwood or Campbellford within a short space of time.

Mr. J. T. Thompson, jr., went to Peterboro last Saturday to visit his sister, who has been in hospital for some weeks. We are glad to learn that Miss Thompson is progressing favorably.

B.J.GOUGH

LINDSAY AND MIDLAND. THE ONE PRICE HOUSE

LORNEVILLE.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Mr. Alex. Carmichael is home from Toronto again. Sandy is likely to work in this neighborhood this season. Welcome to all good workers.

Building operations are under discuss. A number of farmers will erect new barns, and others will put stone foundations under theirs.

When in the Macabee's concert coming off, or is it to be a basket social and concert combined. We hope the latter, but by all means let us have something. There are a large number of fair ladies in our community who could be got to prepare a basket, and the young fellows and the middle-aged and old young fellows also, would buy. The interest created in a concert by a large number of nicely gotten up baskets, would quite recompense the trouble or expense of providing the baskets. Come, Macabees—a bumper house, sure.

On Wednesday of last week, at the residence of the bride's parents, by the Rev. J. McD. Duncan, Mr. Robt. Morrison, Thorah, to Miss Sadie Muir, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Muir. We wish the happy couple success.

Miss Bailey, of Grass Hill, visited friends here recently.

Mr. B. Stacey was in Toronto Friday and Saturday last, and was telegraphed for again on Monday morning on business for the Canada Motor Co. Success, Ben.

SONYA.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Mr. and Mrs. Bushby and daughter, of Michigan, are at present visiting Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Smith.

An accident of a serious nature happened to Mr. John Watson while working in the woods recently. While trimming a tree a small piece of limb flew up and cut the left eye so severely that the restoration of sight is despaired of.

Death has again visited this locality, carrying away Margaret, the youngest daughter of Mr. John McDougall. Deceased was stricken with erysipelas and succumbed to the disease in less than a week. The remains were followed to the McNeil cemetery on Saturday by a large concourse of sorrowing relatives, and friends.

Mr. John Smith, who was lately presented with a gold watch and chain by his many friends in Port Perry on his return from South Africa, where he was promoted to be sergeant-major farrier in the imperial service, but who is now following the avocation of blacksmith here, has in his possession a collection of curios picked up in that distant part of His Majesty's dominions, which is well worthy of notice. Through the kindness of the owner we were permitted recently to make an inspection of the collection, a list of which will perhaps be of interest, viz.; A sword bayonet picked up on the field of Graspan after the battle; a staple of unique design that was used to hold up the wire entanglements which the Highland brigade encountered on that fatal morning when General Wauchope with so many of his brave men fell at Magersfontein; a piece of Boer shrapnel from the same field; a bandolier with its full complement of sixty rounds of Mauser cartridges, five cartridges in a clip, each clip in a pocket, taken off a dead Boer in Cronje's laager; two pom-pom cartridges from the same place, with shells and detonators complete; four different styles of Boer cartridges; a piece of Boer shell picked up near Johannesburg; three Kaffir pipes; one Kaffir bracelet; the quill of an African porcupine eleven inches long; an elephant's tusk; an ostrich egg; a native drinking cup elaborately carved,; and several other articles.

OAKWOOD.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Women's Storm Rubbers, the very best quality, worth 55c pair, in sizes 2 1-2, 3, 3 1-2, 4, about 50 pairs all told at 35c a pair. Hogg Bros.' stock-taking price.—w1.

We are mourning over the death of our late beloved sovereign, Queen Victoria. A memorial service was held in the Methodist church last Sabbath; the edifice was suitably draped, and the minister's discourse was an able one and held the close attention of the large congregation.

We can furnish some striking instances of longevity in this section. We have some aged active people averaging about 85 years—Mr. and Mrs. David King, who have passed their Diamond Wedding anniversary; Mrs. James Thorndike, widow, and Mrs. William James Simon, widow also, all in the village.

Housekeepers' helpers—Grand Rapids Carpet Sweepers and Royal American Clothes Wringers. Hogg Bros. sell them, $3 each.—w1.

BETHANY.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Mr. George Price, of Madoc, was in the village recently visiting under the parental roof, and looking as if that village agreed with him.

Mrs. Sisson, wife of George Sisson, and formerly Sarah Cartmill, youngest daughter of Mr. Henry Cartmill (deceased), who had been ailing for some time, died on Friday morning, Jan. 25th. She was buried at Graham's cemetery on Sunday, 27th.

Mr. William Morrison, who has been appointed assessor, will soon be on the road, and we hope he will give better satisfaction than the former ones have given.

A memorial service was held in St. Paul's church on Saturday at 3 o'clock, when the Rev. H. F. Burgess preached a very fine sermon. Quite a gathering assembled and none were disappointed with what they heard.

Dr. Murphy is having quite a time doctoring sick horses. He is keeping them from dying, although improvement is very slow.

The members of the I.O.F. held a basket social in the Orange hall on Wednesday night, when Mr. J. N. Moffatt delighted the audience with a lecture, entitled "The Relief of Mafeking."

Miss Jennie Linderbick, is visiting relatives in Clarke township at present.

Miss Mina Griffin was visiting with her cousin, Miss E. White, of Cavan, last week.

The pulpit of the Methodist church was occupied by Rev. Mr. Coone, of Cavendish, on Sunday night, who took for his text the I. Corinthians, xi chap., 23rd, 24th and 25th verses. The large congregation seemed well pleased.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Sisson and child, of Beachville, are visiting at Mr. and Mrs. William Morrison's, parents of Mrs. Sisson.

Messrs. Chambers and Byers, of South-west Manvers, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Foster on Sunday.

Mr. T. E. Griffin, of Port Hope, and his better half, attended divine service here at the Methodist church on Sunday night.

A very interesting game of hockey is expected to be played on our new rink on Tuesday afternoon, between the Shamrocks, of Franklin, and the Invisibles, of this village.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. George McCartney was made very happy of late, owing to the arrival of a little baby girl. As both are very fond of the little creature, we have no hesitation in saying the little one is in the very best of hands, and will be carefully watched, tenderly handled, and well provided for.

HIS KIDNEYS

Tortured Mr. Pethick of Toronto unil Timely Help Came

In the Form of Dr. Arnold's Toxin Pills —His Affliction was Diabetes-Dr Arnold's Toxin Pills cured him, after all other Medicines Failed.

Arnold Chemical Co., Limited, Toronto.

Gentlemen: "For several years I have been a victim of that terrible affliction, Diabetes. All the special symptoms of this disease were present—Urination caused severe cutting pain; the urine was unnaturally dark colored; I suffered from intense headaches and with twitching of the nerves. The quantity of urine discharged was greatly increased; my lips were always dry; I was tortured by a perpetual and intense thirst; carbuncles broke out on my body, and I wasted to a mere skeleton, in spite of what the doctors could do. In despair I resorted to patent medicines, and tried one after another—to be disappointed by each.

My wife persuaded me, much against my will to try Dr. Arnold's Toxin Pills. I thank God, now, that she did so, for this wonderful, heaven-sent medicine has cured me completely. I am to-day enjoying perfect health, and every organ does its duty thoroughly, as the result of my use of Dr. Arnold's Toxin Pills."

James Pethick, Barber.

Dr. Arnold's Toxin Pills are sold by all druggists, large box 75 cents, small 25 cents, or sent postpaid on receipt of price by the Arnold Chemical Co., Limited, Canada Life Building, 44 King-st. west, Toronto. Booklet sent free.

TRENT VALLEY CANAL.

[illegible]stimates in Connection with the Work for the Ensuing Year.

In the estimates submitted to parliament for 1901-02, the following are the amounts affecting Lindsay as being made in connection with the completion of the work on the Trent Valley Canal — chargeable to capital expenditure, $475,000; chargeable to income, $23,700. The votes for the Trent Canal are; To build four sluices in Healey Falls dam, $5,000, to rebuild new lock gates at Hastings, $1,500; to rebuild dam at Peterboro, $12,000; to dredge shoals in the Trent and Otonabee Rivers, $4,000; to provide buoys for channel between Peterboro and Lakefield, $1,200.

The main estimates amount in all to $50,398,823.56, a decrease as compared with those of the present year of $6,213,261.94. The government is economical as well as progressive. And the surplus is nearly eight millions.

FOR PUBLIC CONTROL.

Mr W.F. Maclean Suggests That the Railways Be Nationalized.

THE RAILWAYS AND THE TRUSTS

National Danger Feared From the Big American Trusts Which Are Said to Be Looking This Way—The Premier's Reply—Mr. Wallace and Mr. Charlton Discuss the Questions Raised.

Ottawa, Feb. 13.—The session of the House was brief yesterday, the leader of the Opposition preferring not to go into supply until the Auditor-General had presented his report. Mr. Maclean (East York), when the orders of the day were called, submitted a motion to adjourn the House in order to call attention to the reported formation of a railway trust in the United States, and suggested that the Government nationalize the railways in Canada in order to prevent their acquisition by the syndicate.

For Government Control.

Before the orders of the day yesterday, Mr. W. F. Maclean said he wished to direct the attention of the House to a matter of supreme importance to the country, and on Speaker Brodeur's suggestion he put himself in order by moving the adjournment. He said that a great fact which is transpiring in the United States to-day is that all the railway mileage of that country, all the railways of that country are passing into the hands of a powerful syndicate. Six men will to-day control all the railways of the United States, and not one line of railway but will be controlled by Messrs. Rockefeller, Vanderbilt, Morgan and Hill. This syndicate controls over $2,000,000,000 of railway capital. They control the banking institutions of New York. They control the coalfields of the United States. They control the Standard Oil Company, and only last week they got control of the entire iron production of the United States. Last night The Montreal Star made the statement that "It would not be very difficult for the financial interests which Mr. Hill represents to secure a majority of the common stock of the C. P. R." He said he believed that racers are out to-day after the stock of these two great railways in order that Messrs. Morgan, Rockefeller and the men associated with them may, if they think it necessary, get control of these two roads. Less than $50,000,000 put on the stock market to-day would secure the control of the C. P. R. Did this country put all the money that has been put into the C. P. R. and the G. T. R., in order to build railways which might pass any day from the control of this country to the control of the United States? He thought this was a menace to Canada.

Mr. Davies (Saskatchewan)—How are you going to stop it?

Mr. Maclean—I will tell you how to stop it. I am going to appeal to history. The most significant thing that happened in my time was what Benjamin Disraeli accomplished not so many years ago in connection with the Suez Canal. He made arrangements with the bankers of the British Government, by which he had the necessary money placed at his disposal, and before anybody knew anything about it, the world woke up and learned that England owned controlling shares in the Suez Canal. That was a first-class investment and one of the things resulting therefrom is that Egypt is to-day one of the most important and growing sections of the British Empire. I say that if we are alive to the danger which seems to overhang our country, this Parliament will, irrespective of party, take the bull by the horns and place Canada in the position, if necessary, to go to the stock market and buy the control of these two Canadian railways.

Here is the point, the C. P. R. and the G. T. R., as owned and controlled to-day actually antagonize our own country, our own ports, our own canals, our own river routes, our own fast Atlantic service, antagonize Canadian interests in every way. But if the State had control of these railways they would be the compliment of our canals, of the I. C. R., of our rivers and harbors. They would be what they are not now, national railways, helping to build up this country.

There is the present and immediate way of setting the transportation problem of this country. There is the way to get a fast Atlantic service, to use the railways of Canada, to build up our Atlantic ports, and it can be done for less than $50,000,000. The country would not have to bear any more expense in connection with the bonds and the various investments of the railway, than it bears to-day. It is the traffic that bears all these expenses. He believed the capital could be converted to a 2½ or 3 per cent. basis, instead of having to bear the exorbitant rates that it bears to-day. The country would benefit in that way, and in a thousand other ways, from such an action on our part.

We should have some statement from the Government as to what they would do if they should wake up in the morning and find that our two great Canadian railways had passed into the hands of that enormous syndicate in the United States, and he asked, under these circumstances, some information from the Government of what they are likely to do under the circumstances?

Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier: I would not like to be offensive to my honorable friend, but I would suggest to him that, if he were serious at all in the course which he has adopted, he has not chosen the best method of bringing the policy he advocates to the attention of Parliament. The suggestion made by him that the Government buy the C. P. R. should be worthy of some notice beforehand, so that we should have time to consider such a large question. But he has chosen, instead, to bring up this question, without a moment's notice, to the attention of the House. I would suggest, at the opening of the session, that we ought, as much as possible, to adhere to the old rule that no question be brought to the attention of the House on a motion to adjourn, except of great urgency.

Mr. Maclean: Hear, hear!

Sir Wilfrid: I do not see the urgency in this case. This matter can stand until to-morrow. I do not think it is of such a character that twenty-four hours' notice would be too much to give before proceeding to its discussion. If he is anxious to have the question brought up without a moment's loss of time, he could do so, within the rules, by calling attention to it. In a few moments the House would resolve itself into the Committee of Supply. And even if the House be not ready to go into supply—

Mr. Maclean: If—

Sir Wilfrid Laurier: The motion could be moved, in order to give my hon. friend the opportunity he desires, which, for my part, would be glad to give him. I, therefore, have no other course than ask the House to vote his motion down.

Mr. Clarke Wallace urged the Government to give more information than it had done, in view of the momentous character of the matter brought to the attention of the House by the member for East York.

After tracing the aid granted by the Government to the two great Canadian roads, Mr. Wallace said he protested that the Government should have something to say about these matters rather than make the poor play that we should adhere to the old rules.

Mr. Charlton Speaks.

Mr. John Charlton (North Norfolk) said he must confess that the position taken by the hon. member of East York, with regard to the imminent crisis in this country, in relation to transportation and monopolies is a position, perhaps, well taken. The absorption by a few individuals in the United States of the entire railway system of that country is a portentious fact. The development and present condition of affairs in that country challenge our attention. Results are being wrought out there which should be to us a warning as to the course we should pursue. Everything in the United States seems to pass into the hands of trusts and rings and monopolies.

He sometimes had had a fear that the Government ownership of railways would lead to political corruption and to a condition of things not at all desirable. He did not know that that is necessarily the case. He believed the Government might own the telegraphs of the country, and would be in favor of the assumption by the Government of that system at once. He was not sure but that the Government might go further in the interests of the people and take charge of the transportation of the country as well. He did not give these as his views, but he did say, that, with all the developments we see going on around us, the time has come for the House to take these matters into serious consideration and decide whether Canada cannot place herself in a position that shall avert the evils that have shown themselves among our neighbors to the south of us.

The motion of Mr. Maclean was negatived.

THE LATE MICHAEL COLLINS.

Died on Feb. 1st in Ottawa—Was Born in Ennismore.

The death occurred at Ottawa on February 1st, of Mr. Michael Collins, of the Post Office department, Savings Bank Branch.

Deceased was born in Ennismore, Peterboro county, and received his education in the local public schools and the Peterboro Collegiate Institute. He taught for seven years in the county schools during which time his ability as a teacher met with marked success. He afterwards became engaged as bookkeeper for railway contractors during the construction of the Nipissing Division, the Ontario & Quebec Division of the C.P.R., and for William Davis & Sons, in and around Montreal. He entered the Civil Service in 1885.

Mr. Collins, who had been in ill-health for some time past, though not confined to his bed until a short time before his death, was a respected resident of Ottawa, and being of a kind and generous disposition, he made friends without number, all of whom will regret to hear of his death.

He was a model husband and a loving father, and leaves a widow and four sons and two daughters, also an aged father and mother, four brothers and one sister, to mourn his loss, all of whom have the sincere sympathy of those who know them. The deceased was attended in his last hours by his cousin, Rev. Dr. O'Boyle, of the Ottawa University.

TORONTO UNIVERSITY ALUMNI ASSOCIATION.

Victoria County Branch Formed.

The graduates of the University of Toronto, resident in the county of Victoria, were organized last Friday afternoon into a County of Victoria University of Toronto Alumni Association. Invitations had been sent to all the graduates in the county and the response by letter or by personal attendance was gratifying. There were present Judge Dean, Dr Clarke and Dr. White, Revs. Hughson, Macmillan and Manning, Misses Flavelle and Addison, and Messrs. Harstone, Colling, Hardy and S. J. Fox, M.P.P.

Dr. J. C. McLennan, of the University staff, gave a very interesting account of the present position of university affairs. After a compliment to the prominence Lindsay was gaining in the province, owing to her lecture Course, Dr. McLennan discussed the financial stringency of the university. A generation ago there was in Toronto University a college rather than a University. The college taught science and culture generally, but did not make science. With the Federation Act a new era came, that of a university proper. This meant new buildings, new equipment, which the government should have provided. In place of that the university had to pay for these buildings out of her capital account. The annual deficit of the past four years has also been paid out of capital account. This means a shrinkage of a revenue already too small. On the other hand, the needs of the university are constantly increasing. The present mineralogy and geology department is conducted in the basement of the Biological building at an annual expense, salaries, etc., of $ 7,200 a year; and yet Canada is one of the grandest storehouses of mineral wealth on the globe. The Electricity department has three small rooms for its work, altogether about the size of two rooms in the Lindsay Collegiate Institute; and this for the highest branch of electrical teaching in the Provincial University. Prof. MacCallum in his Biological classes, has accommodation for about a dozen, he has 100 students to provide for. There is a fairly good library for undergraduate work; it is totally inadequate for original research. So the university needs very badly a Geological and Mineralogical Laboratory, an Electricity Laboratory, a Library for research, and a Memorial Hall for Convocation purposes. This Memorial Hall Dr. Reeve is working to provide by private benefaction; the other needs should be provided by the Province.

Why should the government grant this aid? For two reasons: This is a time of struggle of nations. The best equipped nations forge ahead. The States and Germany are spending vast sums in higher education and are turning out highly trained men. At the present time we are importing our experts. In the iron, soap, milk, pulp and other industries, which are assuming vast proportions in Canada, there are being brought in scores of foreign workmen and experts. Their places should be filled by Canadians. And the second reason is just this—that our own youth is quite fitted by brain and body to fill these positions. In spite of our meagre equipment, the University of Toronto is sending out men and women that are sought after by American, English and German Universities. At these great halls of learning, Toronto graduates have won the highest honors. Make Toronto University what it should be, the equal of any university in the world in equipment and Canada makes a great stride towards being in the front rank of nations.

Alumni associations have been formed in the counties of Elgin, Perth, in the cities of Ottawa, Hamilton, and in other places, and are being rapidly organized throughout the province. Their assistance in helping to form public opinion is very valuable, and is welcomed by the university.

At the conclusion of Dr. McLennan's address, a constitution was adopted, providing that all graduates and undergradutes in all the faculties of the University of Toronto, and in all her affiliated schools should be eligible for membership. The following officers were elected: Hon. Pres., W. W. Dean, M.A., L.L.D., Lindsay; Pres., J. C. Harstone, B.A., Lindsay; 1st Vice-Pres., J. A. White, M.D., Lindsay; 2nd Vice-Pres., Rev. J. McD. Duncan, B.A., B.D., Woodville; 3rd Vice-Pres., L. V. O'Connor, B.A., Lindsay; Sec.-Treas., Miss E. G. Flavelle, B.A., Lindsay. Councellors—Dr. Cornwall, Omemee; Rev. L. S. Hughson, B.A., B.D., Lindsay; Dr. Grant, Victoria Road; J. Neelands, D.D.S., Lindsay; J. A. DeCew, Fenelon Falls; A. E. Gregory, Lindsay; Miss M. E. T. Addison, B.A., Lindsay.

Annual fee of $1.25 includes the subscription to the University of Toronto Monthly, and should be sent to Miss Flavelle.

Dr. Reeve has shown much interest in the Lindsay Association and intended to be present. Being detained by some operations, he sent his regrets. The annual meeting will be held in June.

SUGAR BEET CULTURE.

In the lieutenant-governor's speech at the opening of the Ontario legislature allusion is made to the beet sugar industry and the advisability of encouraging farmers to grow beets with a view to the establishment of sugar factories. No doubt, as the speech says, the province is admirably adapted to this kiind of agriculture, and there is no reason why it should not be as successfully presecuted there as in France, Germany and Russia. During the past season experiments in the growing of sugar beets were carefully conducted in several widely separated sections of the province, and the results were very satisfactory in every case bu one, where the drought reducduced the yield considerably, but the percentage of sugar was above the normal in this case, and in all the samples the percentage of sugar was higher than the average percentage of sugar in the beets grown in France or Germany.

In the different experiments conducted last season the average yield of beets was over twelve tons per acre, containing an average of over fourteen percent of sugar. The average cost of production was less than thirty dollars per acre. Consequently, if the grower got five dollars per ton for his beets it would be one of the most profitable crops that could be grown. Of course, the soil in many parts of the province may not be suitable for beet culture, but there are scores of districts where sufficient beets could be profitably raised to keep a large factory running to its full capacity for six months in the year.

Great advances have been made during the last twenty-five years both in the percentage of sugar in the beets and in the lowering of the cost of cultivation, and progress in both these lines may reasonably be expected to con tinue. If the experiment did not succeed in Quebec province the fact was owing to a variety of causes not sufficiently understood at the time. But if the industry can be established on a scale sufficient to ensure its success in Ontario, it will do a great deal to make the country independent in one of the most important articles of domestic consumption. Ontario farmers have shown their capacity for dealing with new conditions by the manner they have succeeded in cheese and butter making when the accustomed markets for their grain were closed against them, and beet growing agrees admirably with dairying. The Ontario government is well informed regarding agricultural matters, and may be presumed to have thoroughly considered the matter before proposing it to the legislature.

In connection with the satement of Premier Ross that a sum of $100,000 would probably be set aside for the payment of bounties to sugar factories, and that it would be stipulated that farmers should be paid at least $4 per ton for their beets, the Toronto Weekly Sun remarks:

The deputation stated that the estimated return to the farmer per acre of sugar beets grown would be $45. According to the report of the Ontario Bureau of Industries the average yield of mangels last year in this province was 453 bushels per acre, and the value of these mangels at the farm is placed at ten cents per bus., making the value of the crop rather over $45 per acre. In the dairy test at the Winter Fair at Guelph the value of mangels for feeding purposes was placed at 12 cents per bushel or $1 per ton. At this rate the mangel crop last year was worth over $54 per acre. These figures show that those who turn mangels into cheese, butter or beef place a higher price on them than would be paid for the beets which could be raised on the same quantity of ground for the sugar factories. The cost of labor in growing an acre of mangels is less than the cost of growing an acre of sugar beets, and the cost of transportation from the farm is nil. It would appear, therefore, that the farmer who grows mangels for his stock will receive better returns than the farmer who grows beets for a sugar factory.

The Sun finds in the statements made by the members of the deputation no reason for changing its attitude upon this question. It believes that the granting of public money to private individuals is indefensible, whether the grants be in the form of railway subsides, iron bounties, or beet sugar bounties. All these subsidies and bounties come largely from the farmers' pockets. The farmer would gain far more from the abolition of all bounties and subsidies than he could possibly gain from the payment of bounties to the beet sugar men.

But perhaps the greatest objection to the bounty system is that it has the effect of setting on foot industries that are not natural growth, but which when the period for which the bounty is granted will be clamorous for a continuance of government aid. The great advantage of our cheese, butter, and bacon industries is that they are the result of a healthy and natural growth, and that their prosperity is not purchased at the public expense. If the beet sugar industry rests on an equally sound basis it will be established as these industries have been. If it does not rest on a sound basis it is unlikely to learn to stand without legislation aid.

THE FACE BEHIND THE MASK

"What have you done to me? Why should I hate you?"

"Ah! you will find that all out soon enough. Be content me, Leoline—let me have your name as Le Masque, whatever you've done to me, however you have wronged me, I will forgive you. Can you say that?"

Leoline repeated it simply, like a little child. La Masque took her hands, held them between his and fervently and looked earnestly in her face.

"My little Leoline! my beautiful rosebud! I have loved you and grant you a long and happy life with—shall I say it, Leoline?"

"Please—no!" whispered Leoline, shyly.

La Masque softly patted the little tremulous hand.

"We are talking saying the name now in our hearts, my dear, so it is little matter whether our lips repeat it or not. Well, my darling of you, Leoline, and your life will be a happy one by his side; but there is another." She paused and lowered her voice. "Were you seen Count L'Estrange?"

"Not since, yesterday, madame."

"Beware of him! Do you know who he is, Leoline?"

"I have heard mention of him but his name."

"Then do not seek to know," said La Masque, emphatically, "for it is a secret you would tremble to hear. And now I must leave you. Come with me to the door, and foster it as soon as I go, lest you should forget it altogether."

Leoline, with a dazed expression, thrust the precious little casket into the bosom of her dress, and, taking up the lamp, preceded her visitor down some steps, the door then passed ed, and La Masque, with her hand in her arm, repeated, in a low, earnest voice:

"Leoline, beware of Count L'Estrange, and of your friend Lady Kingsley as soon as you can."

"I will! I will! but name to-morrow!" thought Leoline, with a glad little thrill at her heart, as I hid, she quickly opened it into the moonlight.

Leoline closed and locked the door, drifting back into her little study and making all secure. "I dey anyone to get in without ringing the bell, sailing, at her own discretion, and, hand in hand, she ran lightly up stairs to read the long unsolved riddle.

So eager was she that she had crossed the room, laid the lamp on the table and sat down before it, ere she became aware that she was not alone. Some one was leaning against the mantel, his arm on it and his eyes on her, gazing with an air of incomparable coolness and ease. It was her chamber! something more than a man—a count, and Count L'Estrange, to boot!

Leoline sprang to her feet with a wild scream, as much of fear as amaze and superstitious dread; and the count raised his hand with a self-possessed smile.

"Pardon, fair Leoline, if I intrude. But have I not a right to come at all hours and visit my bride?"

"Leoline's bride of visions!" repeated that young lady, passionately, indignation mingling with fear and surprise. "And what is more, never will be, sir!"

"So my little bird of paradise can fire up, I see! As to your being my bride, that remains to be seen. You promised to be to-night, you know!"

"Then I recall that promise. I've changed my mind!"

"Well, that is not very astonishing; it is but the privilege of your sex! Nevertheless, I claim it, I insist on it, on your becoming Countess L'Estrange, and that immediately."

"Never, sir! I will die first!"

"Oh, no! We could not spare such a bright little beauty out of this sphere world! You will live, and live for me!"

"Sir!" cried Leoline, white with passion, and her black eyes blazing with a fire that would have killed him, loud fery glances slay, "I do not know who you are, I suppose, but I do know, if you are a gentleman, you will have me instantly! Go, Sir! I never wish to see you again!"

"But I wish to see you so much, my darling!" said the count, with provoking indifference, "what does a little tantrum on your part signify? get well soon—

"My love—my nerve awaits us without—and let us fly where neither plague nor mortal man will interrupt our nuptials!"

"Will no one take this man away?" she cried, looking helplessly round and wringing her hands.

"Certainly not, my dear—not even Sir Norman Kingsley, George. I am afraid this pretty little citizen will not go peacefully to his last letter room lie!"

With a smile on his face he took a step toward her. Shrieking wildly, she darted across the room and sprang for the door, just as somebody else was entering it. The next instant a shawl was thrown over her head, her cries smothered in it, and she was lifted in a pair of strong arms, carried down the stairs and out into the night.

CHAPTER XVI.

Presentiments are strange things. From the first moment Sir Norman entered the city, and his thoughts had been all on Leoline, he seemed to find themselves wholly on Leoline, a heavy foreboding of evil to her had oppressed him. Some danger, he was sure, had befallen her during his absence—how could it be otherwise with the Earl of Rochester and Count L'Estrange both on her track? Perhaps by this time one or the other had found her, and alone and unaided she had been an easy victim, and was now borne beyond his reach forever. The thought goaded him and his horse almost to distraction, for the moment, it was a mad race to kick his spurs into his horse, making that unfeeling and dumb quadruped sufficiently like one of those prancing steeds from Beelzebub's own herd of cattle. Through the streets he flew at a frantic rate, growing more excited the nearer he came to old London bridge, and calling himself a score times a fool and hard names inwardly for having left the clear little Hollow at all.

"If I find her safe and well," thought Sir Norman, pulling up, "nothing short of an earthquake or dying of the plague will ever induce me to have her again until she is Lady Kingsley, and in the old manor in Devonshire. What a fool, idiot, and ninny I must have been, to have left her as I did, knowing those two sleath-hounds were in full chase! What are all the Miranda's and Miranda's in the world to me, if Leoline is lost?"

The last question was addressed to the elements in general; and as they remained coolly as centuries of ice, he quickly, till the old house by the river was reached. It was the third time that night he had paused to contemplate it, and each time with very different feelings; first, from simple curiosity, second, in a spasm of anxiety, and third, and last, in an agony of apprehension. All around was peaceful and still; some few clouds sailed screndy through a sky of silver and mother, and a fitful breeze floated up from the river and fanned his hot and feverish forehead, the whole city lay wrapped in stillness as profound and undisturbed as the faded one of the marble prince in the eastern tale—nothing but the moon-beams, and the steady nightguards keeping their dreary vigils before the plague-stricken houses, and the ever-present, ever-busy pest-cart, with its mournful bell and ghastly load.

As far as Sir Norman could see, no sign or human being but himself and the solitary watchman, so often mentioned, were visible, and he was hardly scarcely be said to be present; for, though leaning against the house with his bridle on the ground, he was sound asleep at his post, and far away in the land of dreams. It was the second night of his watch, and he was quite exhausted with the second digestion, there is no earthly anguish, short of the terrible one of not being able to keep a man awake two nights in succession. So sound were his baby slumbers in his airy chamber, that not even the loud clatter of Sir Norman's heels on the pavement, strong enough to arouse him, and that young gentleman, after alighting at him, made up his mind to try and find out for himself, without arousing him to seek information.

Accordingly he quietly looked up at the house with wistful eyes, and saw that the solitary light still burned in her chamber. It was the only one by very imprudent it was to keep that lamp burning, if Lady Kingsley knew as well as he, it was all up with Leoline—and there was no more to be done, and from him than from the cent. How was he to find out whether that illuminated chamber had a tenant, or not? Certainly standing there staring would do it, and there seemed to be but two ways—that of entering the house in the dark or forcing the door. But the man was sleeping so soundly that it seemed a pity to awake him for a trifle; and, after all, there could be no great harm and indiscretion in his entering to see if Leoline was safe. Probably Leoline was asleep and knew no more of anything about it, or, even were she wide awake, would not think the wise altogether too sensible a girl to be displeased at his anxiety about her. If she was still awake, and waiting for Sir Norman, she would be sorely angry, and keep guard at her door fierce and fearless.

Full of these praiseworthy resolutions, he tried the handle of the door, half expecting to find it locked, and himself obliged to effect an entrance through the window, but no, it yielded to his touch, and he went up Hall and staircase were intensely dark, and he knew his way without a pilot this time, and steered clear of all shoals and quicksands, through dig hill and up the stairs.

The door of the lighted room—Leoline's room—he took one, and—the reason on the threshold to reconnoitre. He had gone softly for fear of startling her, and now, with the same tender caution, he glanced round the room. The lamp burned on the dainty dressing-table, and the disturbed lay jewels, perfume bottles and other knick-knacks. The others lay unmolested on the couch, the rich curtains were drawn, everything was just as he had left it last—everything but the pretty pink figure, with drooping eyes and pearls in the waves of her rich, black hair. He stood and rested for the things and had worn, hoping she had taken them off and retired to rest, and had not yet to see, and with a cold sinking at the heart he went noiselessly across the room and to the bed. It was empty, and showed no trace of having been occupied, and the little pet-cert driver had born off from the Hollow—poor little Leoline!

Yes, she was gone; and Sir Norman turned for a moment so sick with utter dread that he leaned against one of the tall carved pillars and pressed himself for having left her with a heartlessness that his conscience could not have surpassed. Then strong with the strong resolution to avenge the calamity of the case, he seized the lamp and going into the hall, made the round of the house, and came back to with her name. No reply, but that hollow, melancholy echo that sounds so lugubriously through empty houses, was returned, and he jumped downstairs with an impetuous run, flinging back every door in the hall below with a crash, and flying wildly from room to room. In

"And where have you been ever since?" he began severely, and with the air of a lawyer about to go into a rigid cross-examination.

"Searching for her," was the prompt reply.

"Where?"

"Through the streets, in the pest-houses, and at the plague-pit."

"How did you find out she lived here?"

"I did not find it out. When I became aware of her absence I went to the places I have mentioned, I gave up the search in despair for one night and was returning to his lordship to report my ill-success,

"Why, then, were you standing in front of her house, gaping at it with all the eyes you had, as if it were the eighth wonder of the world?"

"Monsieur has not the most courteous way of asking questions that I have ever met with. I shall not make a fair objection to answer him. It struck the light in my mind that brought the lady up the street, and I was standing there to see if I was much to-night. I thought her residence was somewhere here, and I paused to look at it, as people will want along. In fact, I intended to add adieu-kind words, and ask for further particulars before I left the neighborhood, and not pay, Sir Norman, run bolt into me, and knocked every idea clean out of my head."

"Are you sure she lives in Leoline?" said Sir Norman, suspiciously.

"To the best of my knowledge, Sir man, I am not," replied Herbert, respectfully.

"Well, it is all very strange and very aggravating," said Sir Norman, sighing and with a sigh of relief, "She is gone, at all events; no doubt she's safe in the country with her friend her off somebody else has."

"Monsieur's conjecture is very ingenuinted Herbert.

"Ingenuinted—ass! I mean herself," said Sir Norman, scornfully. "The idea is beneath contempt. I tell you, Master Herbert, that I know that all, if we were to be married bright and early to-morrow morning, I should leave the disgusting city for Devonshire. Do you understand, sir? Do you hear? Turn out in the small hours of the morning, and go cranking about the streets of London, indeed! Ass!"

"Why, of course, Sir Norman, I can't help hearing and understanding positively. I, but to use the mildest phrase, I must be deaf and idiotic, and decidedly eccentric, and capable of doing very queer things, I hope, however, I believe I can be as easily assure you I never laid eyes on her in my life."

"I believe you," said Sir Norman, with another sigh of relief, and kind-hearted sigh, "and I'm only too sure she has been abducted by that cousin-scoundrel and that other scoundrel villain, Count L'Estrange."

"Count L'Estrange!" said Herbert, with a quick start, and a look of intense curiosity, "Sir Norman Kingsley!"

"L'Estrange—a scoundrel of the deepest dye! Perhaps you know him?"

"No," replied Herbert, with a queer, hallowed smile, "No! but I have a notion I have heard the name. Was he at the ball?"

"I should think so! He was to be married to the lady this very night."

"He was, eh? And what prevented the ceremony?"

"She took the plague," said Sir Norman, with a groan, "and the boy's familiarity, 'and would have been thrown into the plague-pit for me, and when she recovered, I was accepted me and cast him off."

"A quick exchange! the lady's heart must be most flexible, or unusually fine to be able to hold so many at once."

"I don't mind him," said Sir Norman, frowning. "She was drawn into the marriage by her mercenary uncle—the Earl of Rochester. I would make him wish the high-way was in hell when I broke his head and done for him, before I would have married her."

"What is he like—this Count L'Estrange?" said Herbert, carelessly.

"Like the Devil—black and dark and villain he is," replied Sir Norman, with more energy and bitterness. "He had caught but passing glimpses of the count's face, but they were enough to set him thy were decidedly prepossessing! and he also thought the coward and an abductor as he is, in a moment, and that was clinch-nail. Oh, if I had him here!" repeated Sir Norman, with vivacity, "would I—

"Yes, of course you would!" interposed Herbert, "and serve him right, too! Have you made any inquiries about the matter—the lawyers or our friend sleeping the sleep of the just—or anyone else?"

"No; why?"

"Why, it seems to me, if she'd been carried off before he fell asleep, he hasn't been much of a sensible thing of it, and I think it would not be a bad plan to step over and inquire."

"Well, we can try," said Sir Norman, with a sweeping sigh, "I know it will end in disappointment and excitation, but we can try the rest."

With which dismal view of things, he crossed the street side by side with his lame young friend, and the watchman was still enjoying balmy sleep, and aiming in short, sharp jerks, which Herbert thought nothing lessly caught him by the shoulder, and gave him a few sharp shakes and digs, while Sir Norman stood and with consummate coolness, the scene with a passive eye. At last, he had undergoing a severe course of this treatment, the watchman was induced to open his eyes on this morning, and to stare wildly at the gentlemen with an intensely vacant and blank stare.

"Hey?" he inquired, helplessly, "What you are you doing, sir, eh? Hey? What is it?"

"We are carried off, and seeing of anything as yet," returned Hubert, "but we mean to shortly. Are you quite sure you are awake?"

"What do you want?" was the cross-question, given by way of answer. "What do you come bothering me for at such a rate, all night, I want to know?"

"Deep civil, friend, we wear swords," said Hubert, touching with dignity the hilt of the little dagger he carried; "we only want to ask you a few questions. First, do you see that house over the way?"

"Oh, I see it," said the man, gruffly; "I am not blind."

"Well, who was the last person you saw come out of that house?"

"I don't know who they was!" still more gruffly. "I aint got the pleasure of their acquaintance."

"Did you see a young lady come out of it lately?"

"Did I see a young lady?" burst out the watchman, in a high key of aggrieved expostulation. "How many more times this blessed night have I to be asked about that young lady? First and foremost, there comes two young men, which this here is one of them, and they bring out the young lady and have her and away to the dead-cart, then comes along another and wants to know all the particulars, and by the time he gets properly away, somebody else comes and fetches her body clear comes and fetches her body clear out of a ground rat; then all sorts of people goes in and out, and I get tired looking at them, and then I fall asleep, and before I've been in that condition about a minute, I'm shaken out of my sweet sleep and waken me up to ask questions about the young lady that's young lady was in Jericho—I don't! said the watchman, with a fierce oath.

"Come, come, my man!" said Hubert, slipping him smoothly on the shoulder, "don't be savage, if you can help it! There's something here a gold coin in one of his pockets, I believe, and it will fall to you if you keep quiet and answer decently. Tell me how many have been in that house since the young lady was brought back like a drowned rat?"

"How many? repeated the sleepy, meditating, with his eyes fixed on Sir Norman's garments, the gold coin shining that immediately gave him the promised coin to refresh his memory. Well, there's two, to speak in strong quickness. "How many—oh—let me see! there was the young man that brought her in, and left her there, and came out and went and went away. Then another young man came back with another, which I think this as we have the memory of, there's a little they came out, first the other one, then this one, then the other off, and the next that went in was a tall woman in black, which I made out, and right behind her came two men: the woman in the mask, came out after awhile, and about ten minutes after, the two men followed. I don't know, I don't remember anything in his arms, that didn't look like a lady with her head in a shawl. Anything wrong, sir?" as Sir Norman gave a violent start and exclaimed, in a tone of despair.

"Nothing! Where did they carry her to? What did the man with her? Go!cont! go on!"

"Well!" said the watchman, eyeing the speaker curiously, "I'm going too. They went along down to Lambeth, and I'm sure I don't know, I'm very sorry, but I'm sure I don't know, and right behind her came two men: the woman in the mask, came out after awhile,

LINDSAY, FRIDAY, FEB. 15th, '01.

The Late Fritz Barron

MANY EVIDENCES OF REGARD FROM SORROWING FRIENDS.

Widespread Sympathy for Judge and Mrs. Barron in their Great Bereavement—A Lindsay Boy who will Live Long in the Memory of his Associates.

Frederick William Gore Barron was a Lindsay boy. He was born 22 years and four months ago. That was his age when he was killed by the blow of a hockey puck when playing a Bank League game at the Auditorium, Winnipeg, at 5.30 p.m. on the first inst. It is said that his heart was weak, else the blow could not have been fatal, but that is not believed in Lindsay. The force of a lift is doubled when the victim rushes against it, which Fritz, in his reckless enthusiasm, seems to have done, and then the puck spent its force in the one vital spot just over his heart. He, however, had been training hard, and had reached an enormous degree of physical development, and that may have been the mistake, for the risk in physical training is, as one approaches the perfect condition, and then a very little is ofttimes too much.

When the sad news came the whole community seemed stunned, and in Winnipeg the occurrence seemed to rest like a pall upon all alike — it seemed as if it could not be. It was incredible that one so young, so bright, always cheerful, with never a frown; one who was so strong and so well, whose happy smile greeted every one, whose boast always was of others' virtues, believing himself without any, but full of faults,—that he should be stricken down and in an instant rushed into the great Beyond,—Poor Fritz! it is hard indeed, and this is how every one feels and speaks.

He was under Mr. Harstone, our Principal, and for long, after leaving school corresponded with his more immediate teacher, Mr. R. H. Walks, now of Whitby. Both of them have the warmest words for "Fritz:"

February 3rd, Lindsay.

My Dear Judge,—I cannot tell you how shocked I was when, in yesterday morning's Globe, I read the account of the death of your son Fritz. I remember your son as a bright, manly young fellow, popular alike with his school fellows and his teachers. Anything that one can say at this time can lighten but little the great load of sorrow which you are called upon to bear in this trial; but I would like you and yours to feel that you have the sincerest sympathy of Mrs. Harstone, myself, and the members of my staff, all of whom have the most pleasant recollections of your son.—Yours sincerely,

J. C. HARSTONE.

To Judge J. A. Barron, Stratford.

Collegiate Institute, Whitby, Feb. 4th., '01.

Dear Judge Barron,—I write to you and your family my sincere sympathy in your great sorrow. I was surprised and shocked to read of Fritz's sad death, in the Saturday papers. It is a terrible blow. I feel it very much, for I, too, feel that I have lost a friend. I always seemed to take an interest in the poor boy, and for some time used to have frequent letters from him. It seems hard to realize that he is gone, for he had prospects of long life before him. I cannot find words to express my deep sorrow for you all. I am sorry circumstances prevent me paying my last respects to my old friend.—Believe me, yours sincerely,

R. H. WALKS.

Judge Barron, Stratford, Ont.

He was a brave, quick and plucky lad. It is related how, one stormy night at Sturgeon Point, he jumped from a wharf, with all clothes on, and swam to help supposed distress, which turned out to be some women unnecessarily screaming from a boat, and his disgust afterwards that people should so lose their heads and create alarm is remembered almost even now with a sense of grim humor. Again, when upset with a brother clerk, off Ball Point, how pluckily he held up as the awful slowness of the drifting canoe took them clean across to Pleasant Point. His jolly laugh can be recalled now, as he afterwards described his sudden entrance to a resident's house in his nether garments, startling the ladies until they forgot their feelings in anxiety for the brother clerk, who lay exhausted on the shore, and whose condition was Fritz's sole concern. His fearless pluck lasted him until death, and doubtless was its cause. The more fierce the game, the greater was the fun, and it was all fun to him, for he took his knocks as all boys should — with a smile, the was known to everyone, and the awful suddenness of it all has, it seems, impelled expressions of condolence from all over Canada. We quote from the Stratford Beacon:

Since the sad news of his son's death was received, Judge Barron has been the recipient of nearly three hundred letters or telegrams of condolence from Montreal, Ottawa, Lindsay, New York, and in fact from all quarters of the country. Among those who sent expressions of their regret and sympathy were; Mr. J. Ross Robertson, on behalf of the Executive of the O.H.A., Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Hon. Sydney Fisher, Sir Richard Cartwright, Hon. Wm. Mulock, and several other parlimentarians to whom Fritz Barron was well-known as a child of 10 or 12 years of age, at which period he spent much of his time with the members at Ottawa; Mr. Jas. Fisher, Winnipeg, formerly of Stratford, the managers of several of the banks in Winnipeg; Mr. Adam Brown, Hamilton; Mr. S. A. McMurtry, of the Ogilvie Milling Co., Montreal; Mrs. Harris, formerly Mrs. Shoenberger, Cobourg, Ont., Mr. Shaughnessy, President of the C.P.R.; Judges Dean and Harding, Lindsay; Chisholm, Berlin, and Ermatinger, St. Thomas; Chief Justice Falconbridge, Toronto; Mr. C. E. L. Porteous, Montreal; Mr. John D. Smith and Mr. Geo. Wilson, Port Hope.

The Dominion Bank sent an officer from Winnipeg with the remains, to be with them until deposited in their last resting place. Floral tributes were heaped upon the dead, and the Lindsay associates in Winnipeg who sent a beautiful wreath were Messrs. A. F. D. MacGachen, William Walters, John Henderson, Thomas Lyons, F. Buller, Colin Begg, Arthur Britton, George McNeill, Joseph Lyons, Mr. McNeilly, Charles Hopwood, Charles McNeill, Charles Keene, F. Hopkins and W. R. Ingle.

Mr. Ross, Manager of the Dominion Bank here, speaks of Fritz as a very quick and promising lad, and Mr. Patten, the Manager in Winnipeg, reports that he was on his way to promotion, and that his cheery presence will be greatly missed by all of his confreres.

Dominion Bank, Winnipeg, Feb. 2nd, 1901.

Judge Barron, Stratford.

My Dear Sir,—I beg to tender my heartfelt sympathy to yourself and family on the sudden demise of your very estimable son.

You will no doubt have been fully informed of all particulars of the sad occurrence; all I can add is that it was purely accidental and no one to blame. Everything possible was done at the time by medical men who were within reach, but apparently his death was instantaneous and apparently painless.

I may add that he was doing well in this office of the bank and on the way for promotion, and his cheery presence will be greatly missed by one and all of his confreres.

Mr. Dunsford, of Morden, has kindly consented to go East in charge, but if prevented in any way, I have arranged for one of our staff to accompany the remains.

Sympathizing with you in your great loss, believe me to be, yours Faithfully,

J. PATTEN.

Everyone in Lindsay had affection for Fritz, and now that he has gone in the full vigor of young manhood, his parents are in the thoughts of everyone.

The Stratford papers, in the issues of Feb. 4th, contained the following editorial references to the sad occurrence:

Daily Beacon: The sympathy of the entire community goes out to Judge and Mrs. Barron and family in their very sad bereavement. The son and brother so suddenly taken from them was a young man of high promise and on whom they centred their affections. The announcement of his death came at a time when they had every reason to believe that he was in sound health, and was a shock such as few are called upon to bear. The hope of all is that they may have strength to withstand it, and in this the Beacon most heartily joins.

Daily Herald: In the presence of an affliction so awful in its unexpectedness as that which has befallen His Honor Judge Barron and his family, mere words are utterly inadequate. Death is especially terrible when its victim is one in all the promise of vigorous young life—doubly so when the blow comes in such a dreadfully sudden manner. Judge Barron has won the deep affection of many and the respect of all here in Stratford, and to-day the heart of the city bleeds for him and his. But grief for such a terrible visitation is too poignant to be in the least assuaged even by the deepest and most sincere of mere human sympathy.

"The dawn is not distant
Nor is the night starless;
Love is eternal!
God is still God, and
His faith shall not fail, as Christ is eternal."

We take the following account of the funeral at Stratford last Tuesday from the Beacon of Feb. 6th.

THE FUNERAL.

The funeral of the late F. W. G. Barron, of the Dominion Bank staff, killed at Winnipeg on Friday, Feb. 1st, while playing hockey, took place from the residence of his father, His Honor Judge Barron, yesterday afternoon, at 3 o'clock. The cortege was a very large one, evidencing the very general sympathy felt for the bereaved family. The impressive service for the dead was held in St. James' church, by the rector, Rev. D. Williams, M.A., after which interment took place in Avondale cemetery.

The news of the event, so sudden, so sad, so full of pathos, flashed as it was simultaneously throughout the land, brought to the sorrowing household from places far and near the delicate attention of troops of friends. Beautiful flowers, mostly white roses, in appropriate devices, transformed the drawing room in which the casket rested into a veritable garden full of bloom and fragrance. The flowers accompanied the remains to the church and then to the final resting place, and when the service for the dead had ended, they were deposited upon the coffin. The scarlet cloth which lined and bordered the grave was then laid over them as a covering and upon this were placed numerous branches of fir with which the ground had been bestrewed in order to lighten the gloom, so that the grave was more than half filled by these memorials of tenderness, and the earth fell, not with a shock, but softly on this cushion woven of all that is most lovely in nature.

These beautiful floral tributes were contributed by the following:

Wreath, Dominion Bank, Winnipeg; cross of violets and lilies of the valley, Dominion Bank staff, Toronto; wreath, Canadian Bank of Commerce, Winnipeg; wreath, Merchants Union hockey club; anchor, late Lindsay associates in Winnipeg; wreath, Lindsay hockey club; wreath, Winnipeg bankers; wreath, Bank of Commerce staff, Stratford; wreath, fellow boarders at Winnipeg; white carnations, "Bank Boys,"; wreath, Messrs. L. H. Hamilton, Charles Mulvery, H. W. Robertson, Bank of Montreal, Winnipeg; cross, Mr. and Mrs. McGachen, Bank of Montreal, Winnipeg; cross, Hon. Sidney Fisher, Ottawa; sickle, Sheriff and Mrs. Inkster, Winnipeg; flowers, Mrs. Dugald McMurray, Winnipeg; flowers, Mr. and Mrs. McFarlane; white roses, Mr. and Mrs. Maynard, Stratford; stars and crown, Miss McPherson and neices, Stratford; flowers, Mrs. McDonell and Mrs. Codville, Winnipeg; flowers, the Misses Spencer, Winnipeg; Maltese cross, Mr. E. S. Anderson, Dominion Bank, Huntsville; cross, Mr. and Mrs. Cooke, Stratford; white roses, Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Harding, Stratford; anchor, Mr. and Mrs. James Edwards, Lindsay; wreath, Mrs. Lawrence and Mrs. E. G. Lawrence, Stratford; wreath, Messrs. E. A. Moore and Tait, Bank of Montreal, Winnipeg; cross, Mr. and Mrs. Dick, Stratford; white roses, Mr. Travers, Bank of Montreal, Stratford; white roses, Mr. and Mrs. Cooper, Toronto; white roses, Mr. and Mrs. MacLaren, Stratford; anchor, Mr. and Mrs. O'Beirne, Stratford.

Judge Barron was heard to say that everybody everywhere seemed so touched with the sad ending of a young life that they seemed as though they could not do enough to make the burden as light as possible. The president of the C.P.R. had telegraphed offering free transportation for the body, and the different superintendents along the road were instructed to afford him every facility in the way of meeting the remains and having them sent forward with the greatest expedition possible.

The pall-bearers were Messrs. Bowker, Dominion Bank, Winnipeg; Mayne Hamilton, Bank of Commerce, Stratford; Courthope Poussette, Bank of Toronto, Peterboro; Waldo Poussette, Imperial Bank, Ingersoll; Turner, Dominion Bank, Seaforth; R. G. Travers, Bank of Montreal, Stratford. The chief mourners were Mr. J. T. M. McEwan, of Glasgow; Scotland, uncle of the deceased and two cousins Courthope and Waldo Poussette.

B. B. OSLER IS DEAD.

Great Canadian Lawyer Passed at Atlantic City, N. J.

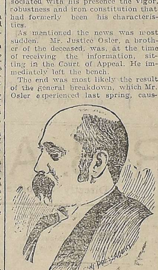
A DISTINGUISHED CAREER.

Death Was Totally Unexpected and the News Caused a Great Shock—Had Gone to the Seaside Resort in Search of Health and Was Thought to Be Convalescent.

Toronto, Feb. 6.—The news of the sudden death of Mr. B. B. Osler, K. C., at Atlantic City, N.J., came as a shock yesterday morning to his relatives and friends. His associates knew that his health had been poor for almost a year, but it was announced that he was fast regaining his former vigor. But to the public in general it was still more of a surprise, as they were unaware of Mr. Osler's past illness and still associated with his presence the vigor, robustness and iron constitution that had formerly been his characteristics.

As mentioned the news was most sudden. Mr. Justice Osler, a brother of the deceased, was, at the time of receiving the information, sitting in the Court of Appeal. He immediately left the bench.

The end was most likely the result of the general breakdown, which Mr. Osler experienced last spring, causing him to retire from active practice and seek rest and retirement. He had lately gone, with Mrs. Osler, to Clifton Springs, N. Y., and thence to Atlantic City, N. J.



B. B. OSLER, K. C.

Mr. B. B. Osler was 62 years old. He was one of four brothers, the example of whose success in life is unique. The eldest is Mr. Justice Featherston Osler of the Court of Appeal, the deceased was next in order of age, then come Mr. E. B. Osler, M. P., one of Canada's great financiers, lastly there is Dr. William Osler of Johns Hopkins' University, Baltimore, one of the leading surgeons in America.

The deceased had had a great career in both the civil and criminal courts. His wonderful eloquence, and his skill as a cross-examiner are matters of common knowledge. He was, on account of his legal abilities, in great demand. His services were eagerly sought, in fact, he has appeared in most leading civil cases and in all the great criminal trials in Ontario during the last 20 years. The Dominion Government employed him frequently. Amongst other occasions might be mentioned his connection with the prosecution and conviction of Louis Riel at Regina in 1885, and also the part he took in the McGreevy-Connolly prosecution in 1891.

Coming nearer home, his connection with the Birchall, Hyams, Hendershott, Sternaman and Napanee Bank cases are not forgotten.

Deceased also acted for the Dominion Government, in the claims brought by the C. P. R. for insufficient construction of the road through British Columbia, a case which took about 250 days sitting of the board to try. The Government substantially succeeded.

THE ONTARIO HOUSE.

Society in Mourning Crowds the Legislature Chamber.

QUIETEST OPENING IN HISTORY.

Purple and Black Decorations Throughout—Sir Oliver Mowat Delivers the Speech From the Throne—Some Important Legislation Foreshadowed—New Oath of Allegiance Taken.

Toronto, Feb. 7.—Society, robed in mourning, and surrounded by sombre black and Royal purple, crowded the Legislative Chamber yesterday afternoon at the opening of the Ontario Legislature. The proceedings were expected to be quiet and uneventful, but the popularity of State functions was great enough to overcome public mourning for England's Queen. Sir Oliver Mowat, for so long leader of the Provincial Government, again, though enfeebled by the weight of four score years, attended as Lieutenant-Governor, and delivered the first speech from a King's representative ever heard in the Province of Ontario. The galleries were crowded, and on the floor of the House the members were lost in the throng of prominent people from all parts of the Province. The Premier and Mr. Whitney were early in their places, and both looked in the best of health and spirits, and ready for an oratorical battle which the events of the session may bring upon them.

The military escort for the day was furnished from the Royal Grenadiers, and was under Major Brock and Lieuts. Shanley and Osborne. Upon the arrival of the Lieutenant-Governor the House rose, and, after ascending the throne, his Honor delivered the following speech:

Speech From the Throne.

Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the Legislative Assembly:

I take great pleasure in again meeting you as representatives of the Province in Parliament assembled.

Since we last met the British Empire has been called to mourn the death of our late Sovereign, Her Gracious Majesty Queen Victoria. Never in the history of the Empire has there been a monarch more beloved or more fully endowed with sagacity and wisdom combined with devotion to duty and sincere regard for the welfare of the nation. Under her beneficent sway we have long enjoyed the priceless privileges of self-government and the fullest measure of civil and religious liberty. And deeply as we feel in common with the whole Empire the loss of one so great and good, we rejoice to believe that under her illustrious successor, King Edward VII., these privileges will not be impaired nor our constitutional rights curtailed. You will be asked to express in fitting terms your feelings with respect to the Queen, whose reign was so long and glorious, as well as the King, whose reign has just begun, and whose authority as loving subjects we heartily acknowledge.

The valor displayed by the Canadian soldiers engaged in the South African war has reflected the highest honor upon Canada, and entitles them to some token of your appreciation. To this end a bill will be submitted for your consideration authorizing the Crown Lands Department to set aside certain townships in the unorganized districts permitting every volunteer enrolled in the Province who served in South Africa to choose 160 acres, to be held upon the most favorable conditions compatible with the settlement of the public domain and the development of the district. Provision will also be made for the recognition of the survivors of the volunteer militia who were actually engaged in defensive service on the frontier during 1866.

It is gratifying to be able to state that the agricultural classes during the past year have enjoyed unusual prosperity. Improved methods of farming and a more thoughtful application of the principles of sound husbandry, with the general adoption of cold storage by dairymen and fruit-growers, have greatly contributed to this happy condition of affairs.

It has been found by various tests conducted by the Department of Agriculture that the soil and climate of Ontario are admirably adapted for the growth of sugar beets. You will be asked to consider whether farmers should not be encouraged to give such special attention to beet raising as will justify the establishment of factories for the production of beet root sugar, by granting such aid for this purpose as may be deemed expedient.

The lumber trade is in a prosperous condition, and the revenue from woods and forests continues buoyant, employment being abundant and wages high. The continued investment of capital in the erection of sawmills affords satisfactory evidence of the wisdom of requiring that logs cut on the Crown domain shall be sawn in our own country.

The preservation of our forest wealth continues to engage the attention of my Government, and the recent setting apart of a large forest reserve in the pine region surrounding Lake Temagaming marks another step in this direction. The increasing flow of population to New Ontario is a matter of congratulation.

I congratulate you on the great expansion of the mineral industry. The manufacture of pig iron in the Province is now firmly established, and is materially aided by the discovery of large bodies of conveniently situated hematite ore in the Michipicoten region. The making of the first open-hearth steel in the Province, and the establishment on the upper lakes of the first line of steamers to carry the ore from our own mines to the smelters of our own Province, are events significant of substantial progress. Nickel and copper mining is more active than at any previous time, and it is gratifying to know that additional works for treatment of these ores are being erected in different parts of the Province.

Acting on the authority given to the Government by the appropriation made for exploring that part of the Province lying towards Hudson's Bay, exploration parties spent the greater part of the summer in investigating the agricultural forest, and mineral resources of the several districts assigned to them. The results of their enquiries will be laid before you.

During the past year extensive alterations have been undertaken in connection with the buildings at Cobourg to meet the urgent demand for additional accommodation for the insane. I am pleased to inform you that these alterations are well advanced, and will, I trust, be completed before the close of the current year, thus providing ample facilities so far as the demands for the accommodation and treatment of this unfortunate class of our population at present require.

Your attention is again invited to the present relative jurisdiction of the courts of the Province and of their respective judges, and to the suggestions of experience for further promoting the efficient, prompt, and inexpensive administration of justice throughout the Province.

The evidence taken before the Royal Commission appointed to examine and report upon the assessment laws of the Province will be laid before you, and legislation dealing with some phases of municipal taxation will be submitted for your approval.

Measures will be submitted for aiding in the improvement of public highways, for the encouragement of the trade in dressed meat for the European market, for abolishing tolls on public highways and bridges, for further encouraging technical education, and for consolidating the laws with respect to public and high schools, and to liquor licenses.

The public accounts and reports of the several departments will be submitted to you in due course.

The estimates for the current year are prepared with as great economy as is consistent with efficient service, and will at an early date be placed before you.

The Proceedings.

His Honor, having retired, the new members were introduced, John W. Munro, North Renfrew, by Hon. F. R. Latchford and John Loughrin; J. F. Grose, Welland, by Hon. R. Harcourt and Liberal Whip McKee, and L. J. Breithaupt, by Hon. E. J. Davis and C. M. Bowman.

Premier Ross made the usual motion for the appointment of the standing committees. This was followed by notice that on Tuesday next he would introduce a humble address of sympathy with His Majesty Edward VII., and of congratulation upon his accession to the throne of his ancestors.

The House agreed to take the consideration of the Speech from the Throne this afternoon. It will be moved by S. Bridgland of Nipissing, and seconded by L. J. Breithaupt of South Waterloo.

Speaker Evanturel requested those members who had not renewed their allegiance to the Throne, by taking the oath to His Majesty King Edward VII., and signing the roll to repair to the office of the clerk of the Legislature and do so.

The Speaker, having vacated the chair, the quietest opening in the history of Ontario was over, and the assemblage dispersed with the solemnity and decorum of attendants at divine worship.

Toronto, Feb. 8.—The address in reply to the speech from the throne was carried to the Legislature yesterday without division. Dr. Bridgland, the mover, and Mr. Breithaupt, one of the new members, who was heard in the House for the first time, acquitted themselves admirably. In keeping with the great loss sustained by the country and the empire by the death of the Queen, the speeches of the Premier and of Mr. Whitney were entirely non-political. The leader of the Opposition delivered himself in most appropriate terms, while the speech of Hon. Mr. Ross, who closed the debate, was a dignified and impressive utterance. The particular features of all the addresses were the eulogistic references to the Lieutenant-Governor, the fitting manner in which the empire's bereavement—the death of the Queen—was referred to, the tributes to the value of the Canadian soldiers who served in South Africa, and the acknowledgment of the services of Speaker Evanturel at the Paris Exposition. At the close of the debate the House adjourned until next Tuesday, when resolutions on the death of the Queen and of sympathy with the Royal family and allegiance to His Majesty the King will be passed.

$100,000 For Three Years.

Toronto, Feb. 8.—Premier Ross, in reply to a deputation which waited on him yesterday in the interests of the beet sugar industry, said that the importance of the subject could not easily be exaggerated. This was demonstrated by the official statistics quoted that Canada annually imported some 300,000,000 pounds of sugar. The only difficulty was the limited nature of the income of the province. He felt confidence in Ontario's successfully establishing the industry, as the scientific tests made under Government supervision had been most encouraging.

LINDSAY, FRIDAY, FEB. 15th, 01.

A RECORD-BREAKER.

The session started in earnest at Ottawa Monday afternoon with the debate on the address in reply to the speech from the Throne, and all the surprise of the general public this debate was over shortly after five o'clock, having lasted little more than two hours. In that short space — less time than half the time usually occupied by Nicholas Flood Davin or Geo. Eulas Foster—Mr. Guthrie and Mr. Ouimet, as mover and seconder, made admirable and eloquent addresses, Mr. Borden declared that the opposition would be "a business opposition," and Sir Wilfrid made a dignified and effective reply closing the debate.

To adopt the address in a unanimous, with only two hours' talking is a record-breaker. Such a thing has never happened before in the memory of the oldest parliamentarian.

It is a fine beginning for the new century, and it is to be hoped the new plan will be generally followed on both sides of the house. It would be a great boon to the reading public, and a great benefit to practical business men in the house. It would be welcomed by the practical business Ministers who now control—and control most successfully—the destinies of the country.

In the odd times of Sir John Macdonald it was customary to spend a week or two in debating the Address. It was expected, and the then Ministers invited it and arranged for it. They were not ready with anything. They required time to consult supporters, and irrigate the estimates for debate. The departmental reports were never ready; and a month, or often twoweeks spent in discussion, often necessary and beneficial in those days.

It was a very military way of doing things, and we are not sure that even Sir Wilfrid Laurier can hope to avoid criticism on the part of very journals for exhibiting or allowing his Ministers to exhibit a certain amount of dilettorism at the beginning of this first parliament in a new century.

The debate on the Address had no sooner closed than Mr. Borden, the new leader of the opposition, and Mr. Clarke Wallace, the would-be leader, were pressing questions like pom-poms, as to when the estimates would be brought down and when certain public works would be begun. It really was at say 5 pm. "With its usual dilettorism," the tory organ would say, "the Government and his satellites endeavored to evade a direct reply, and fully five minutes of valuable public time was shamefully wasted." But lorey! Wasting five minutes, instead of five weeks.

Then the Minister of Finance laid on the table the estimates for the year, and the public accounts and Minister after Minister rose in his place in turn and presented his departmental reports. The reports and estimates have of late years been presented with reasonable promptitude; but this session nos been opened with another record-breaker for Ottawa. The performance was something unique and must have completely surprised the opposition. It was a crushing answer to the crookings of Clarke Wallace.

There could be no more striking proof that this is a business administration, economical and energetic—the full measure of public confidence again accorded to it at the general election. To be assured of the best expression of popular opinion Sir Wilfrid Laurier, after sitting in the silence of the new house of the opposition to this naturally tender subject, made an admirable reply, and made no reference by quoting from a speech of Disraeli's on a somewhat similar occasion. Disraeli's speech was the convulsion of nature rather than any ordinary transaction of human life. It can only be compared to the earthquakes which take place in Calabria or Peru. There was a rumbling murmur, a groan, a shriek, and a sound of distant thunder. No one knew whether it came from the top or the bottom of the house. There was a rent, a fissure in the ground, and then a village disappeared. Then a tower opened down, and the whole of the opposition became lost in the great dissolving view of anarchy."

EDITORIAL NOTES

For the year closing January 31, Canada has a surplus of $5,075,712, and if this keeps on this country will soon be able to lend money to its neighbors in Europe.

The present Congress of the United States is making a record in spending the people's money. The appropriations of this session have reached $856,000,000; those of last session $716,000,000.

It is said that one result of the prosperity of our country will be to bring the sea herring up to Lake Ontario. A few have already been caught, and it is thought enough will follow in the wake of vessels from the sea to stock Lake Ontario.

Fire Brigade Matters.

(To the Editor of The Post.)

Sir,—Permit me to reply briefly to misstatements regarding my action made by Alderman Touchburn at Monday night's meeting of the council.

In the fall of 1899, according to the disorganized condition of the Lindsay Fire Department, after repeated demands by the Underwriters' Association, the people and the press, the council decided to reorganize then their Mr. Donald Sinclair, whose incapacity was well known to all citizens, and to inaugurate a thorough reform in the whole department. I was asked to take charge of the Brigade, accepted the offer, and was appointed, and the present condition of the brigade and fire apparatus, together with the general satisfaction of the citizens, is tangible proof that I administered the situation and did the very best that could be done under the circumstances. After little more than a year of organization, and training of guns, it can be safely said that the Lindsay Brigade is equal to any force for towns of like size in Canada. This condition has not come of itself, but only after continued and patient work on the part of myself and men.

Alderman Touchburn's statement that I did not attend fires, or was coming the last to be there, is quite untrue, and the Alderman ought to know it. There has not been a fire in Lindsay since I was appointed, with but one exception, I have not attended and on nearly every occasion have been accompanied by one or more men. I am not paid to remain at the fire hall or to simply live at it, I live with the team and driver, but I am never much ahead of them, and on several occasions have been there first. Alderman Touchburn's motive is well understood by the citizens. His action in this matter is simply spite and arises from no sense of public duty. In other words he is a fire-bug fiend and desk-mate, Alderman Sinclair, whose individual abilities and personal characteristics are the pride and appreciation of every citizen of Lindsay.

All of this talk about the fire alarm system is nothing but a red herring in nature. Anyone knowing anything about fire apparatus knows that only such system attention and care can anything like economical results of operation be said. Daily inspection is a necessity—nothing less can meet requirements. If the council can get that done for $50 per year it should do it, they cannot get the first competent man that can be got to do so, I am not out for that sum, and I know no one else can. Why did not Alderman Touchburn take the whole truth, and say that he was plainly told by more than one competent man to whom he spoke that this $100 per year was the least that the work could be done for?

If the council desire a change in the Chief of the Fire Brigade, I will not object, but I do object to being dismissed to suit the personal spite of any individual alderman. Get a better man if possible, advisedly, but don't take a step backwards and re-inaugurate the old system of carelessness and neglect which has characterized the working of the Fire Department for the past ten years.—Yours, etc.,

A. McLENNAN, Chief C.F.D.

Lindsay, Feb. 7th, 1901.

'Whither are we Drifting?"

(To the Editor of The Post.)

Sir—I see there are more ways of increasing the revenue than adding more to the ratepayers for consent, as I note that some $87,000 of bonds are advertised for sale, and disappointment of which, I presume, the town will have over $10,000 for its share.

It seems as if the burden of taxation was growing more rapidly than our country. A few years ago 20 mills was the maximum, and that I presume, but just for a special year, for unavoidable expenditure, a couple of mills more, and we felt that that would not to occur again, but this was repeated for about 22 mills to become the rate, with extra mills for extraordinary expenditure (which, we expect, not to occur again), until 28 mills became the rate, and now with extra mills again for extraordinary expenditure (which we expect, not to occur again) until I think we may safely say that 30 mills is the new travel rate, with extra mills for extraordinary expenditure (which, we expect, not to occur again).

I think it is time to call a halt, unless we are prepared to make satisfactory to the ratepayers; as affairs are drifting in a direction that if we have we paid 26 mills, and if we had had to pay for the interest on the new debentures will have to be paid, we will have to pay 30 mills, and we will being required to pay for the bonds now in the market, and at the end if we add the electric light to the debentures, we will be paying which will make about 29 mills for the one item, and it is time to consider "whither we are drifting." It is time to be spending money when we can screw it by the asking, but it is time to be different things when we come to pay it back, and it is time to be making the tax debts to pay every well known.

If there are any, I know of some every line of expense it is now—right and proper, and I know of a very, very thrifty five dollars a week, and we have not yet reached the end of it. This is one thing that we have good, as we would be in a worse plight do without it until we can afford to pay for it. We have not yet reached the end of the economy in everything until we get everything good, as we would be in a worse plight rate, but as we are going on a three cent rate we are in a good plight, and as more harm than the light will do good, as we would be the highest taxed town in the country and no one would think of coming here with any new industries.—Yours truly,

A. E. FIGELOW.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

Toronto, Feb. 13.—The run of live stock was large yesterday, the car loads, composed of 1,148 cattle, 184 hogs, 411 sheep, and 10 calves, besides the above number of hogs, 184 came in, but were not sold on the market. Trade was active, considering the large run, and as usual, all first-class animals in both the shipping and butchers' classes were readily bought up at about the same prices as were quoted last week. But in the common to medium classes, especially the butchers', prices were lower.

LINDSAY, FRIDAY, FEB. 15th, 01.

LINDSAY PUBLIC LIBRARY

The Annual Meeting Held Last Monday.

LIBRARIANS VOTED A SMALL INCREASE OF SALARY.

Estimates for the Year Passed—The Statutory Half-Mill will be Levied—Increase in Solid Reading Noted—Board Anxious to Secure Better Quarters—Election of Officers.

The annual meeting of the Public Library board was held Monday evening in the council chamber, business being taken up about 7.40. The members present were Judge Harding, chairman, Secretary E. A. Hardy, and Messrs. Devlin, Moore, Blanchard, Broderick and Mayor Ingle.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed, after which copies of the annual report was handed around for inspection.

Election of Officers.

Moved by Mr. E. A. Hardy, seconded by Mr. Devlin, that his honor Judge Judge Harding be re-elected Chairman.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Moore, seconded by Mr. Devlin, that Dr. Blanchard be re-elected Treasurer.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Devlin, seconded by Mr. Moore, that Mr. E. A. Hardy be re-elected Secretary.—Carried.

The Chairman explained for the information of Mayor Ingle that as the Board could not legally pay the Secretary a salary it had been agreed to give him a free telephone, and that arrangement would of course continue.

Report of Library Committee.

Secretary Hardy read the report, which recommended the purchase of a dozen books on various subjects. The issue of books for January shewed an increase of 181 volumes. Another donation of four volumes had been received from the Library of Congress at Washington. The report was adopted.

Statistics of Circulation.

The report of the Misses Reazin, Librarians, for the month of January read as follows: Circulation — History, 92 volumes; Biography, 39; Voyages and Travels, 33; General Literature, 15; Juveniles, Boys 199, Girls, 37, Little Ones, 25; Bound Periodicals, 52; Poetry, 27; Science, 50; Religion, 6; Miscellaneous, 23; Works of Reference, 1; Fiction, 985; total for the month, 1585. New tickets issued during month, 29; total number of borrowers to end of month, 1018. Cash receipts for month—new tickets, $1.45; Catalogues 10c., fines $1.21; total $2.76. The report was adopted.

The Chairman said it was satisfactory to notice a gain along other lines than fiction—the showing was much better than when he began to take an interest in the Library.

Mr. Devlin made a brief reference to the faults of the present Library, and asked Mayor Ingle if any steps had yet been taken to provide a room in the town hall building.

Mayor Ingle said the re-arrangement and fitting up of the town hall was now being discussed by the council. They hoped to be able to establish the council and municipal offices upstairs, and in this way make it possible to establish the Library in the present council chamber. Every councillor was in favor of the change.

Librarians' Salaries and Hours.

Moved by Mr. Devlin, seconded by Mr. Moore, that the present Librarians be reappointed at their present salaries.

Secretary Hardy thought the time had come when they should provide better conveniences for the public. There was a feeling that the Library ought to be open every afternoon; personally he would like to see it open all day.

The matter was discussed for some time, and Secretary Hardy took advantage of an opportunity to file a protest against the closing of the Library during the holiday season, when school children and others had leisure to do a great deal of reading.

Finally it was decided to make the Library hours from 2 to 5 p.m., and from 7 to 9 p.m. daily, and to increase the Librarians' salaries to $150 each, with three weeks' holidays, board to pay substitutes.

Minor Matters.

Secretary Hardy read a communication from the Separate School Board, giving notice of the appointment of Mr. Wm. Steers as their representative on the Public Library Board. In a similar communication Town Clerk Knowlson referred to the appointment of Rev. J. W. Macmillan and Judge Harding as council representatives.

Several accounts were referred to the finance committee for consideration.

The Year's Estimates.

The Board next settled down to the discussion of the year's estimates, as follows: Salaries, $300; Secretary's allowance to pay assistants, $25; rent, heating, etc., $125; light, $70; new books, $200; periodicals, $120; binding, $50; printing, $25; insurance, $20; postage, $5; post office box, $150; cleaning, $10; book case, $10; interest on debenture, $40; premium on principal $83.29. Total $1122.09; less estimated revenue, $300; leaving to be raised $822.09.

Judge Harding pointed out that no allowance had been made for contingencies, and it was decided that $50 would not be too much to set aside. The levy of 4-10th of a mill last year produced $841, and as a similar levy would barely suffice it was decided to ask council to levy the statutory half-mill.

A Welcome Donation.

Secretary Hardy stated that Mr. John Kelley had offered to donate his almost complete set of the Canadian Almanac, in its 54th year of publication. The gift was on motion accepted with thanks.

After a brief reference to a few unimportant matters the board adjourned.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Preston gives signs of being a progressive town. Recently the citizens asked the council by resolution to employ an engineer to valuate the two private electrical plants at present lighting the town with a view to the corporation purchasing the same. They are also considering the question of installing a public waterworks system.

The keel has been laid at Collingwood of the new steel steamer for the Northwest Transportation company's line between Sarnia and Duluth. The new boat will be one of the finest passenger and freight steamers on the lakes. She will be a larger, handsomer and better appointed boat than the C.P.R. steamer Manitoba, which is considered to be the finest steamer in the inland marine. The length of the new steamer will be 325 feet, the beam 43 feet, the moulded depth 27 feet.

Prof. A. Slaby of the Berlin Technische Hochschule, in the course of a remarkable interview on "the coming electrical revolution," which is to appear in the forthcoming number of a new technical periodical, asserts that his recent invention, multiplex wireless telegraphy, will produce a great transformation in existing methods. It will be possible, he declares, to apply the principle to submarine cables in such a way as to send hundreds and even thousands of messages simultaneously on the same wires, thus enormously cheapening rates.

That Pan-American Exposition may turn out all right, but the men who have the running of the advertising end of it do not inspire hopefulness. So far it looks like a great fake. Every bit of the Canadian end of the advertising seems to be done on the "dead-beat" plan. The managers appear to think that the Canadian papers are "easy," and that they can be "worked" by sending them a lot of circulars. There is a liberal appropriation for publicity, but the fellows in control of it hang on to it. The Canadian press is alive to the situation; those whose space is cheap may stand that sort of thing, but there are others.

It has become quite the fashion with most of us to critize Hon. Mr. Tarte, and to handle him in anything but a gentle manner. I have been no better in this respect than the others, but the conviction has been forced upon me that Mr. Tarte is not only the cleverest man in the present cabinet, but he is the one man of the lot who has the right ideas.—Events, Ottawa.

The confession comes a little late, but better late than never. We knew that time would right Mr. Tarte. But how will the other tory papers relish this frank admission of Mr. Tarte's cleverness?

Hamilton Times: W. R. Brock, on behalf of the tories has answered Sir Charles Tupper's farewell letter. He humors all the old man's fads, and emulates his idiocy by talking of the tory principle of British connection being adopted by the liberals. It was a tory leader and a tory newspaper that said, if the National Policy endangered British connection, "so much the worse for British connection." Has Mr. Brock forgotten that nearly all the singers of the Annexation manifesto were tories, and that Lord Elgin, when representing Her Majesty in Canada, was stoned and rotten-egged by tories.

A bill has been introduced into the State legislature of Oregon making it a misdemeanor for any person to treat another to drink in any saloon or other public place where liquor is sold. The penalty on conviction is fixed at a fine of not less than ten dollars or more than fifty, or imprisonment for not less than five days or more than twenty-five. The perils attending the treating custom have often been exposed, but men cling to it because it is an easy way of dispensing hospitality and establishing or perpetuating social relationships. The custom is inveterate among all classes, and is so bound up with public bar-room habits in the United States and Canada that the one can hardly be abolished while the other remains.

Many futile attempts have been made to utilize the enormous peat beds which exist in this and other provinces of the Dominion, for fuel purposes. The report of the United States consul Brene, just published in Washington, says that a workman, named Montag of Mannheim, Germany, is reported to have invented a process by which peat can be made into fuel at a cost of about twenty-five cents per two hundred and twenty pounds. The new product burns with a bright flame, gives great heat, leaves no slag and only a small quantity of white ash. Tempting offers have been made to the inventor for the secret of his process, and it is said that a company has been formed with means to turn out sixty tons per day. The peat is thoroughly dried, ground by a machine, mixed with certain chemicals, pressed into brick shape and is then ready for use. If such a process is applicable to our peat it might help to emancipate us from the coal monopolists of Pennsylvania.

DR. PIERCE'S FAVORITE PRESCRIPTION

MAKES WEAK WOMEN STRONG, SICK WOMEN WELL.

Mrs. M. F. Long, of Le Loup, Franklin Co., Kans., writes: "Words cannot express how grateful I am for your kind advice and good medicines. I have been in poor health more or less all my life. In the past nine years grew worse, and two years ago I was so poorly could hardly drag around. I consulted a specialist, and he said I had ulceration and that an operation would have to be performed. This did not seem necessary to me, so time went by, and at last I wrote to Dr. Pierce asking advice. I soon got a helpful answer advising me to try his medicines, the 'Favorite Prescription,' 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and also his 'Pleasant Pellets.' I began taking 'Favorite Prescription' and the other medicines as advised. When commencing I weighed 119½ pounds, and after taking one bottle of each I felt like a new woman. In one month I gained 8 pounds. After taking two bottles of each of the medicines, I began to look like a woman and not like a skeleton, and that weary tired feeling all left me."

DR. KENNEDY'S FUNERAL.

Impressive Ceremony at Church of Our Lady.

(Guelph Herald, Feb. 7.)

To Mr. M. J. Doran came a telegram Thursday from Judge O'Connor, of Sault Ste. Marie, bearing the sad and unexpected news of the death of Dr. Kennedy, son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Doran. The telegram gave no particulars of the cause of death, and as no word has been previously sent concerning his illness, the news was very distressing. The late Dr. Kennedy was a son of Mr. John Kennedy, of Lindsay, and was about thirty-five years of age. He was an honor graduate of McGill College, and practiced here up to 1889, in the premises on Quebec-st. previously occupied by Dr. Clark. In 1890 he was married to Miss Doran, and besides his bereaved widow, three small children survive him. The deceased went to the Michipicoten last summer and had gained a very successful practice there.

The remains of Dr. Kennedy arrived in the city by the G.T.R. on Tuesday evening. Accompanying the body from Toronto were Mr. John Kennedy, of Lindsay, the father of the deceased, his sisters, the two Misses Kennedy, and a brother, Rev. Father Kennedy, of the Basilican community, Sandwich. The remains were conveyed to the residence of Mr. M. J. Doran, market square.

The funeral took place to the Church of Our Lady at nine o'clock this morning. On the casket were three beautiful wreaths. The pall bearers were six professional friends of the deceased; Drs. Robinson, Nunan, Lindsay, Orton, Kennedy and Walsh. The chief mourners were Mr. John Kennedy, father of the deceased, Mr. M. J. Doran, father-in-law, William Austin, and Stanislaus Doran, brothers-in-law, and Mr. A. J. B. Harris. A deputation was present from Court Aberfoyle, I.O.F., of which deceased had been Court physician. It consisted of Messrs. T. D. Day, Jas. Campbell, Chas. and Joseph Lehman, Jas. R. Earon, and W. Herbert. At the church door, Rev. Father Kennedy, assisted by the Rev. Father Donovan, S.J., began the funeral service. The choir was assisted by Rev. Father Brady, of Hamilton. "Rest, Spirit Rest," was sung by Mrs. Cleary, Miss Cox and Mr. Gallaher, and "Nearer My God to Thee," by Mrs. Cleary and Miss Cox.

The cause of the late Dr. Kennedy's death was heart failure. He went from Wa-wa to Michipicoten on Jan. 29th to do some business. He was then apparently in the best of health. The next morning he was found dead in bed. Dr. Young, who was called, at once pronounced heart failure the cause of death. The delay in forwarding the body was due to the fact that it was not accompanied by a death certificate when it reached the main line of the C.P.R. The station agent, however, was able to reach Michipicoten by wire and have the necessary authority for the shipment of the remains forwarded.

Then and Now.

Montreal Witness: When Queen Victoria ascended the throne the French-Canadians rose in armed rebellion to demand constitutional government, but when that wonderful reign ended, after the passage of sixty-four years, none mourned her loss more sincerely than the French-Canadians. Never were the lessons of history better enforced by tangible results than are here displayed. The French people in Canada have during this long period enjoyed freedom, peace, the undisturbed enjoyment of their language, laws and religion, while their mother land has passed through many revolutionary changes, has had its institutions overthrown and remoulded time and again, and has never really enjoyed the tranquility, freedom from foreign aggression and internal foes which have been the happy fortune of the French people in Canada under Queen Victoria. Reflections such as these are revealed in the countless warm and genuine expressions of loyal regard to the late Queen which have sprung spontaneously from that people during the days of imperial mourning. The Ville Marie Guards, that most distinctly French-Canadian and Roman Catholic organization, have given expression to their sorrow in a resolution in which they suggest that the Queen be called "Victoria the Great." Every one will admit the justice of the title. It has indeed been borne by others for qualities very different from hers, but the only Englishman on whom it has ever been conferred was a monarch eminently like herself in christian nobleness of spirit and in self-effacing devotion to the well-being of his kingdom and people.

On a Runaway Locomotive

THRILLING EXPERIENCE OF DRIVER PILLING AND FIREMAN BOTT

The Connecting Rod of Engine No. 459 Broke, and Worked Ruin, but the Engineer and his Fireman Thought Only of the Express Behind Them.

(Peterboro Review, Monday.)

Not all the brave deeds are done on the veldt under the African sun. There are others, right at home, who face risks that are greater, and very little fuss is made over it. To do what Driver Wm. Pilling and Fireman Walter Bott did on Saturday night, in the midst of a driving snow storm deserves to be recognized as an eminently brave act, and from the performance of which most of us would respectfully beg to be excused.

Driver Pilling went to Lindsay.

It would seem that locomotives are at times afflicted with a derangement of the vitals that necessitate a thorough course of hygiene to put the machine into condition. Driver Pilling, who steers the locomotive on the Lakefield Branch, was ordered, on Saturday, to take the engine to Lindsay to have the boiler washed out and generally toned up. He had to exchange therefor another engine and bring it on down for service until his regular one was overhauled. He was given No. 459, and set out on the run to Peterboro a few minutes ahead of the G.T.R. Toronto express, due to leave Lindsay at 8 o'clock p.m. This train was on time, despite the snow storm, thanks to the dexterity of the staff handling the train. There seemed no reason why Driver Pilling should not get his engine to Peterboro in nice time, running ahead of the express, and he went off at a canter. The night, it may be remarked, was as black as a printer's towel and the air was full of driving snow.

Danger Signal out at Best's.

The express made Omemee, and rolled on over the big viaducts, but when nearing Best's station, found a red light hanging out against her. The red light said "stop" in language so plain that no railway man will disregard. From the station man at Best's the brief facts were ascertained that an engine had gone past kicking up a terrible racket, and with a man hanging on somewhere by his his teeth and shouting to get out the red light on the express. It was surmised that something was wrong with No. 459, and it was decided to go ahead cautiously and locate the trouble. Befor starting a man turned up staggering through the drifts alongside the coaches, covered with snow, wet, tired and breathless. It was Fireman Bott, of the missing engine. He was so exhausted he could hardly speak. His tale of woe made a fellow shiver.

A Thrilling Experience.

Driver Pilling and Fireman Bott were taking No. 459 along at a fair gait, when about two miles west of Best's withouit any preliminary warning, something reached up from below, gave a terrific welt, shaved off the left side of the cab and sent chunks of wood and a miscellaneous assortment of tools in the boxes flying over the tender and out on the snow. The blow was repeated, demolishing everything in sight, and a specially vicious whack shattered a steam pipe and a volley of scalding steam and water poured over the cab and tender. The men knew what it was, the driving rod on the left side had broken and hitched to the crank pins of the driving wheels, the two sections of the broken rod was getting in its work. Driver Pilling threw on the air brake, but as the air pumps and connection are on the left side of the engine refused to answer, and, any way, the cab, full of live steam and scalding water and darkness, was no place for experiments.

Thought of Those Following.

The first thought of the men was for the express, ploughing along after them three or four miles in the rear. Bott ran to the end of the tender and leaped. He struck a snow drift and executed a series of evolutions that made him see more stars than Sir John Herschel ever discovered. Getting to his feet he ran for Best's station to get out the light. It was a sprint for life. He did not make it, and the express overtook him, and he had to stand aside while it passed, and than ran, reaching Best's a few minutes after the train.

Pilling's Heroism.

Driver Pilling wasn't satisfied that Bott would get to Best's in time, and he did something that needs to be seen to be appreciated. The boiler was fast emptying itself of steam and water, he knew that it was only a question of time until she would run down and stop, but at the rate they were going, if one of the fragments of the shaft struck a hard tie exactly right it would throw the engine into the ditch, or possibly across the rails. He had to act quickly, and do what he could to head off the express. He crawled, taking hold of the top of the cab, hand over hand along the side of the cab, until he reached the footboard running along the boiler, and swinging out from the front, as far away as he could from the noise, waited to reach Best's, hoping that the station man would be on the platform. Catching sight of him Pilling roared at the top of his voice to put out the red light. This and nothing more. There wasn't any time for the interchange of civilities. The station man had a hasty glimpse of the engine and driver and they were gone, lurching down the rails. The red light was flashed out thirty seconds after.

Stopped the Express.

Pilling made his way back along the footboard and cab to the tender and dropped off. He left the engine on the chance of its running down before it reached Peterboro, and ran across the open fields to a farm house, where he got a lantern. As was to be expected the people had no red light, so Pilling got a red table cloth, and hurried back to the track, and putting the cloth over the lantern, swung it to and fro. The express came along looking for the lost engine and found Driver Pilling so engaged. He was taken in and cheered and chaired.

The lost engine was found on the track about four miles out of Peterborough. The staff turned out, and getting out tools and lamps, set to work and took off the broken rod and heaved it onto the tender. Then the engine of the express gathered the derelict in and slowly pushed on into town reaching the station two hours late on a 24 mile run.

The conduct of Driver Pilling and his fireman is worthy of special recognition by more than their employers. Fireman Bott is a son-in-law of Conductor Jack Britton, of Lindsay.

SPIRITED TREATMENT FOR GRIP

A Colorado Editor's Prescription to Cure the Dreaded Grip.

Many are the prescriptions that are being recommended as "a sure cure" grip. The Hamilton Spectator has been talking about sprinkling sulphur in your shoes and salt in your undershirts. But a Colorado editor is the latest to give his "cure" for the dreaded disease of sore head, sore back, sore joints, sore throat, sore body, sore heart. The Colorado "cure" is something akin to the one which advised a man threatened with grip to go to bed and hang a hat on the foot of the bed and imbibe whiskey until he saw two hats. Here is the Colorado man's "cure." The Post does not recommend it, nor is it likely that the W.C.T.U. will endorse it, but here it is:

"Four quarts of whiskey, into which were dissolved four ounces of loaf sugar. To this we added a teaspoonful of water and another quart of whiskey, and then placed over a hot fire and let boil sufficiently long to boil out all the water. We then stirred in a little more whiskey to cool and gulped it down without batting an eye. In order to remove the taste from our mouth we took a little more whiskey."

SEWAGE AND STORM WATER.

Why Lindsay's Separate System is Preferable to the Combined System—Planned for Future Needs.

As many of our citizens are under the impression that our town authorities made a mistake in adopting the separate sewerage system planned by Engineer Chipman some eight or ten years ago, the following article may help to convince them that our council acted wisely in declaring against the combined system:

Montreal has had a sewage farm established at St. Denis, says the Star, and there has been contention over the bringing of storm-water to the farm, which led to the resignation of the city surveyor, who wished two pipes laid, one for sewage and one for storm-water. The road committee and council decided to carry both in one pipe, and the contract, therefore, actually cost $3,000 more than was asked for the two-pipe system. The current number of Engineering has some interesting remarks on this subject, in an article on the sewage farm at Aldershot, Eng., it says:

The most important feature of the sewage farm at Aldershot is that no storm-water comes to it. When the farm was drained by the royal engineers they determined, with wise fore thought, to adopt the separate system, and send nothing to the farm but genuine sewage, the rain-water being dealt with otherwise. It needs only a moment's thought to show what a vast difference this means to the working of the farm. It renders its management largely a matter of routine; each day a definite quantity of sewage arriving at expected times—mostly in the forenoon, less in the afternoon, and scarcely any at night—has to be dealt with. Were the rainfall included, the flow would be four times as great sometimes as others, and often larger at night than during daylight. Again, it would be much greater in winter than in summer—that is, when the land was less able to deal with it, the greatest work would have to be done. A sewage farm that gets all the storm-water of the district is like the South-western Railway during the race season—it is liable to periodical congestions, which are fatal to regular and successful workings. The separate system of town sewerage has been generally accepted by engineers for many years now.

Agreed on One Point.

The Farmer does not always agree with his country cousin; for instance, take the matter of tea. The former seldom drinks anything but green tea, the latter very seldom drinks anything but black tea, but they are both agreed that the purest and most delicious tea in the world, whether it be Black or Green, is sold in the well-known packets of the SALADA Ceylon Tea Co.

The receipts from commercial lighting were less, due, the Taunton newspapers agree, to closing twenty-seven saloons. These saloons were nearly the only places in Taunton which were lighted by electricity after a quarter past 8 in the evening, which is the bed time of Taunton people. It has been difficult, also, to induce Taunton people to abandon candles as a means of lighting. Under municipal ownership there is a saving of $34 per light. There are 247 lights, making a total saving of $8,400 per year in consequence of municipal ownership. And the streets are lighted more hours.

LINDSAY, FRIDAY, FEB. 15th, '01.

Our Board of Education

The Inaugural Meeting Held Last Wednesday.

MR. THOS. STEWART RE-ELECTED CHAIRMAN.

The Standing Committees for the Year Appointed—Principal Broderick's Report Contains Some Very Important Recommendations—Renewal of Third Class Certificates by County Board of Examiners was Sharply Criticized—Protest Against Mrs. Harrison's Poem was Fyled.

The inaugural meeting of Lindsay Board of Education was held last evening in the council chamber. The absentees were Messrs. R. J. McLaughlin, Dr. Jeffers, R. Kennedy and J. Kennedy.

On motion of Col. Deacon, seconded by Mr. Flavelle, Mr. Thos. Stewart was re-elected chairman for 1901.

Mr. Stewart, on taking his seat, thanked his colleagues for the honor conferred on him, and said he would do all in his power to help educational matters forward. He asked the board to consider as a suggestion the advisability of arranging for a series of essays by teachers on educational and allied subjects, which might be read and discussed at meetings open to the public.

Standing Committees.

On motion the board went into committee of the whole, Col. Deacon in the chair, to appoint the standing committees for the year. The following draft was approved:

Finance.—Mr. D. R. Anderson, chairman; Messrs. Flavelle, J. Kennedy, R. Kennedy, Sylvester, McLaughlin and Staples.

Management.—Mr. J. Staples, chairman; Messrs. McWatters, J. Kennedy, R. Kennedy, Anderson and Kylie.

Sites and Buildings.—Mr. R. Kennedy, chairman; Messrs. Pilkie, McWatters, Staples, Sylvester and Dr. Jeffers.

Visiting and Reports.—Col. Deacon, chairman; Messrs. Kylie, McLaughlin, Pilkie and Dr. Jeffers.

Lectures and Entertainments.—Mr. J. D. Flavelle, chairman; Messrs. Kylie, Deacon and Dr. Jeffers.

Advisory.—The chairmen of the several committees.

The minutes of the last regular meeting were read and confirmed.

Collegiate Institute.

Principal Harstone's report gave 165 as the number of students on the roll at present. From town, 97; from Victoria county points, 64; from outside counties, 4. Average attendance for January was 144. The Principal applied for the customary annual grants for the Library and scientific apparatus, for supply of paper, etc., and asked that the board appoint a representative on the Lecture Course committee.

On motion Mr. J. D. Flavelle was appointed, and the other clauses of the report were referred to the proper committees.

The Public Schools.

Headmaster Broderick's report gave 846 as the number of pupils on the rolls of the various schools for January; average attendance, 746. In IV book, 146; III., 238; II., 216; I., 246. Attached was a statement of attendance for the past 11 years, and the Headmaster pointed out that in that period there had been an increase of 185 in the number of pupils enrolled and a gain of 240 in the average daily attendance.

The report went on to state that the present seemed a fitting time to refer to the character and kind of work being done in the schools, and to outline any method by which the system might be improved. The care taken by the board in filling vacancies had resulted in a staff of high efficiency, and the teachers were devoting themselves to their work with a high purpose; where the full measure of success was lacking it was due rather to inexperience than to lack of enthusiasm. But there are lines along which advance could be made. Teachers might do more in the way of supervising children while on the playground. This had not been done in the past with any thoroughness, and it was his intention to suggest a change, and to report to the board every month any failure to comply with the regulation. As to the board, there are many ways in which it might assist in the work of betterment, but principally by visiting the schools regularly and frequently, and in this way acquiring a knowledge of the teachers' work only to be gained by personal contact. Some provision might be made for winter sports for the children; a few dollars expended in the summer would provide a sheet of ice on the grounds of each school.

Another matter worthy of attention was the study of vocal music in the schools; it would be of high value as a means of moral training and the enculcation of patriotism and discipline. It should be placed on the same footing as other subjects, and be carried out by the regular teachers. The engagement of a special teacher for a few hours weekly at a large salary would give the subject a fictitious value. He would advise that all teachers be urged to fit themselves to teach vocal music, and that the board take musical qualification into account when engaging teachers in future; also that he be given permission to make arrangements to utilize to the best advantage of the schools the talents possessed by the teachers already qualified. Finally the Principal proposed that teachers fitting themselves by taking lessons in the theory of music should be remunerated by an increase of salary.

The Principal also suggested that a grant be made to the public school library; the importance of furnishing a means of acquiring knowledge not to be found in the school text books being made plain by the fact that 70 p.c. of the pupils in attendance never reach the fourth book, and that only 8 per per cent. complete the public school course.

That the duties of school caretakers be carried out in accordance with printed rules.

The report also called attention to the necessity for small repairs at several of the schools, and the need of a new outfit of maps, to cost about $75.

Home Work for Pupils.

Mr. Anderson said he had been hoping the Principal would refer briefly to home work in his report.

Mr. Broderick—"I intended to do so, but my report was so lengthy that I thought it wise to omit any reference to that matter. I should like to hear the matter discussed at this or another meeting; I have strong opinions on the subject, and if the board see fit to agree with me the grievance can be settled very easily."

The Report Discussed.

On motion it was decided to discuss Mr. Broderick's report clause by clause.

The suggestion concerning better supervision of children on the playground was approved, and the matter was left in the Principal's hands.

Several members frankly acknowledged that they had neglected their duty in the way of visiting the schools. The clause was referred to the Visiting and Reports committee.

When the suggestion re music was reached Col. Deacon remarked that the school curriculum is already in a congested state, and he would prefer to see fewer subjects and more thoroughness. Too many fads were being foisted upon the Education department. The question was, where are we going to stop? He would like to see pressure brought to bear on the Minister to reduce the number of subjects to be taught. (Mr. Anderson —Hear, hear.) As for home-work, there was altogether too much of it; it was a cruel thing to see four or five children poring over books by the light of a poor oil lamp. If he had the power he would do away with home work, or most of it, in short order. (Mr. Broderick — Hear, hear.)

Mr. Flavelle thought the teaching of music as a school subject would be advantageous, but the details would require careful consideration. There was no good reason why the Principal should not be allowed to make a start with the teachers already qualified. If the school curriculum is congested, as was claimed, it seemed to him that the teaching of music would prove a relief to the pupils. The board consented to allow Mr. Broderick to make a start with the teachers already qualified.

The suggestion that a grant be made for the betterment of the school libraries elicited a protest from Col. Deacon, who referred to our Public Library as being quite sufficient for all purposes. The clause was referred to the Finance committee.

On motion the rules governing school janitors were referred to the Managing Committee and Principal for revision. The managing committee are empowered to re-engage such of the caretakers as they deem fit at their present salaries.

Le Bonne Ste Anne.

Magistrate Steers' protest against a selection recited at the Institute recently by Mrs. S. Frances Harrison, (Seranus), was read by Secretary Spier.

Mr. Kylie said the course of lectures provided had proved of vast benefit, and any cause that would interfere with the attendance of all classes of the people would be a most unfortunate thing. He had not been present at the lecture referred to, but had read the poem when published in The Evening Post, and could not detect anything very offensive in it. Without meaning any disrespect to Mr. Steers he believed his proper course was to ask that the communication be fyled. Mr. Pilkie seconded the motion, which was carried.

Report of Finance Committee.

Mr. Anderson, chairman, presented the report, which recommended payment of the following accounts:

Collegiate Institute—
Light, Heat & Power Co.	$7.72
McLennan & Co.	1.37
R. S. Porter	3.61
H. J. Little	3.00
E. Gregory	13.07
Public Schools—
C. S. Blackwell & Co.	$2.80
McLennan & Co.	1.88
R. S. Porter	1.85
Sutcliffe & Sons	7.20
J. G. Edwards & Co.	10.43
G. A. Little	.50

Miss Lizzie Everett was allowed a refund of $1 on school fees for December, owing to illness.

The report was adopted.

Third Class Certificates.

At the last meeting of the board Mr. Staples moved a resolution protesting against the frequent renewal of third class certificates by Inspector Knight as being an injustice to teachers holding second class certificates, and asking the board to petition the Minister of Education to prohibit such renewals. The motion had been held over for discussion when Inspector Knight would be present, but through an oversight that gentleman had not been notified.

In defence of his motion Mr. Staples said he knew of teachers holding second class certificates having to accept schools in Muskoka and elsewhere up north while teachers holding renewed third class certificates were engaged close to town.

Principal Harstone explained that the power to grant renewals did not rest entirely with the Inspector, but with the County Board of Examiners, of which he (Harstone) was a member. The Examiners had been fairly strict in granting renewals but had taken the ground that an experienced teacher holding a third class certificate was capable of better work than one holding a second class certificate, who had never taught a day.

Mr. Anderson believed the law was wrong and should be amended.

Mr. Staples referred to a particular case where the wife of a farmer in the vicinity of Lindsay has charge of a school, her third class certificate having been renewed a number of times. He had always understood that renewals were permissive, not obligatory.

Mr. Broderick, on being asked his opinion, said that renewals were undoubtedly permissive, but there was a good deal of force in Mr. Harstone's argument as to the relative value of teachers.

Chairman Stewart said it was not clear to his mind that the Department, in declaring that no new third class certificates would be issued, contemplated the cancellation of existing third class certificates. In the case of some sections in our northern districts it would be a hardship to compel the people to pay a high salary to a second class teacher.

Mr. Staples—"It simply means that if our third class teachers manage to get on the right side of the Inspector they can go on getting renewals for life."

Col. Deacon thought there was no justification for an aspersion of that kind, as all no doubt felt convinced that Inspector Knight could not be swayed by any motive other than the good of the schools under his charge.

Principal Harstone—"A teacher may pass the second class exam., get a life certificate, and never look up his work in after years, while the third class teacher, having to pass periodical exams., must keep himself well up in his work, and is likely to be the better teacher."

Sundry Appointments.

Moved by Col. Deacon, seconded by Mr. Sylvester, that the County auditors be appointed to audit Board of Education accounts, the remuneration to be $5 each.—Carried.

Moved by Col. Deacon, seconded by Mr. D. R. Anderson, that Mr. Wm. Flavelle and his honor Judge Harding be appointed Board of Education representatives on the Public Library Board for the terms ending Jan. 1903 and 1904 respectively.—Carried.

The board then adjourned.

THEY BURNED THE MORTGAGE

Janetville Methodists are Rejoicing.

A few years ago the Methodist church at Janetville was destroyed by fire. The spot where it stood was left black and strewn with ashes. There was no insurance on the building, therefore, there was no money to start to rebuild with. But the people were not disheartened; they went to work and in a short time had a larger and better edifice erected wherein to worship the Almighty God.

The new structure was of brick instead of wood, and was equipped in a very comfortable manner. A debt, of course, had to be carried, but on Tuesday of this week, at a meeting of the congregation, the pleasing announcement was made that the encumbrence had been entirely wiped out and the mortgage was burned in the presence of the people. Mr. Jas. Hobbs, secretary-treasurer, touched the match to the papers and the one-time debt went up in smoke. Mr. Wm. McGill made a neat speech, as did also the popular pastor, Rev. Mr. Adams.

An interesting entertainment was given during the evening by Lindsay talent,—the Cambridge-st. Methodist choir, star amateurs every one. The program embraced the names of Prof. Morris, Mrs. Manning, Misses Bowes, Staples, Fee and Walters, Messrs. Waite, Routley, Sacksville, Brimmell and Widdess. At the close the visitors from Lindsay, numbering thirty-two, were entertained in the most generous manner, and returned home delighted with the hospitable treatment accorded them.

The Janetville Methodists are to be congratulated on their good standing and their admirable financial success.

A Business Body.

Here is a "pointer" for some of our county councils: The county council of Haldimand for the past four years have elected their warden, done the business of the county and returned home all on the same day. Halton is not a very large county, but still it has a business-like record that larger counties might envy.

May Lose her Hand.

Mrs. Wm. Hoadley, who went to Toronto hospital early in November last for treatment on account of anticipated blood poisoning, having had a finger amputated just before Christmas, expected to have returned home last week. Unfavorable symptoms, however, have set in and the doctors now fear that the hand will have to be removed in order to save her life. Mrs. Hoadley ran a tamarac sliver in her finger in the first instance.

Grip.

Cold that makes you rear and rip;
Quinine with a fiery nip;
Boiling drinks to sip and sip;
Lemonade and highpriced flip;
Back that aches from neck to hip;
Swollen nose and puffy lip;
Head that seems to go ca-zipp!
Pulse that shows a lively clip;
Strength that swift away doth slip;
Feet that stumble, stub and trip;
Knees that toward each other dip;
Gait that rolls as if on ship;
Tongue that's furry to the tip;
Still more quinine—'nother nip—
It's the grip!

To Make Deer Season 30 Days.

One or two changes in the Ontario game laws are said to be under consideration of the provincial authorities as a result of last week's meeting at Montreal of the North American Fish and Game Protective Association. After a lengthy discussion at that meeting which was attended by half a hundred representative men from Canada and the northeastern States, a recommendation that deer hunting season be extended from September 15 to November 30 was rejected and a thirty-day season between those dates favored. In Ontario the season is only 15 days and the possibility of extending it is being considered, but action is by no means certain.

Will the Company Accept?

LIGHTING COMMITTEE'S REPORT READY FOR COUNCIL

The Terms of the Final Offer were Framed Last Evening.

The special Joint Lighting Committee met last evening to prepare the final report in connection with the street lighting contract and allied interests. Wm. Flavelle was the only absentee.

The Light, Heat & Power Co's best offer is $45 per arc lamp of 1500 candle power, burning from dusk till 1 a.m., and $8 per year for 16 c.p. street incandescents, burning all night. As for power, the company has not yet quoted a price which the town can offer to manufacturers desirous of locating here and wishing concessions, nor has the domestic schedule for lighting been revised, as was urged at the public meeting held in December.

The ultimatum prepared and endorsed by the Lighting committee last evening names $40 per year as the outside figure for street arc lamps, and $7 per year for street incandescents. We have been unable to learn whether the report presses for any concessions in connection with the rates for power and domestic lighting in return for the use of the streets, as several members were in favor of asking.

The report will be forward to council and will be considered at an adjourned meeting to be held shortly. It is now up to the company to accept the offer or refuse it. In the meantime the members of council will do some hard thinking. So will the citizens.

WEDDING BELLS.

McElwain-Jackson.

Peterboro Examiner, Friday: A very pretty wedding took place at the residence of Mr. Robert McElwain, 6th line, Emily township, on Wednesday evening last, Jan. 30th, when his eldest daughter, Martha Jane, was united in marriage to Herbert Jackson. At six o'clock, as the wedding march was being played by Miss McPherson, of Omemee, the contracting parties entered the parlor, the bride leaning upon the arm of her father. The groom was supported by Mr. Harry McElwain, brother of the bride. Miss Ida Jackson, sister to the groom acted as bridesmaid. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. H. B. Bowes, in the presence of about seventy guests. After congratulations had been extended all sat down to a sumptuous repast. The bride was the recipient of many useful and costly presents as an expression of the esteem in which she is held by many friends. At a late hour the happy couple left for their new home, second line, Emily township, with the best wishes of their many friends for their future happiness and prosperity.

OBITUARY.

Washington Daily Post, Feb. 1st: One of the best known restauranters of the city, Mr. Daniel Buckley, died at his home, 517 Sixth-st., northwest, yesterday morning, after a comparatively brief illness. The immediate cause of Mr. Buckley's demise was acute kidney trouble. He had been for many years a sufferer from this ailment, and for the past two years had been far from well. Last Monday Mr. Buckley was on the streets and at his place of business. The next day he was confined to his bed and remained there until his death occurred.

Mr. Buckley was born in Lindsay, Ont., in 1859. He came to Washington in 1883, and at once engaged in the restaurant business. He opened in the little place at 702 E street, just opposite the old Post Office Department. He became popular with the employes of the department, and the little place was frequented by government officials, and was well-known to newspaper men. It never lost in its popularity, and Mr. Buckley was pleased to speak of it as "the house of Daniel," and by this name it was known.

Mr. Buckley was a member of Division, No. 2, A. O. H., as well as of the St. Aloysius' branch of the Catholic Knights of America. The interment will be private. Mr. Buckley is survived only by a widow. Mrs. Buckley has been confined to her bed for some time from illness, and her husband's death came as a great shock to her.

The above will be read with deep regret by many of the old residents of our town and vicinity, who were intimate with deceased in the years gone by. Mr. Buckley was born in Ops within a few miles of the town, and left Lindsay in 1879. Since then he had paid his friends here periodical visits, and spent a few days here last fall, when he confided to a friend that he believed that he would not live to see the old town again. Peace to his ashes.

It Hangs On

We are talking about your cough. One cold no sooner passes off before another comes. But it's the same old cough all the time. And it's the same old story, too. There is first the cold, then the cough, then pneumonia or consumption, with the long sickness and life trembling in the balance.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

loosens the grasp of your cough. The congestion of the throat and lungs is removed; all inflammation is subdued; the parts are put perfectly at rest, and the cough drops away.

CONQUERED

Back Ache and Kidney Disease Conquered by Dr. Arnold.

Since Pasteur perfected his process of inoculation to prevent hydrophobia following the bite of mad dogs, or since the success of the new anti-toxin treatment for diphtheria was proved, the medical world has not witnessed so great a triumph as that which Dr. Arnold's Toxin Pills have won—and deservedly won. This is because they act in the only way that can result in curing disease. They simply kill the germs or microbes that cause the disease, and they counteract or sweep out of the system the poisonous products (toxins) of the germs. Now, as all diseases are caused by germs, it stands to reason that if the germs be killed the disease must come to an end.

J. Jones, 237 Elizabeth-st., Toronto, says: "I have had kidney disease and bladder weakness for a long time. Suffered from gravel also. Took all the advertised 'sure cures,' but all failed. I tried Dr. Arnold's Toxin Pills, which have made me sound and well in every way."

E. J. Howell, 83 St. David-st., Toronto, says: "I endured the most intense agony from Bright's disease during two years. All the medicine I took failed to help me, until I started taking Dr. Arnold's Toxin Pills. They effected a thorough and permanent cure."

Dr. Arnold's Toxin Pills, at all druggists, 25 cents a small box, 75 cents a large box, or sent on receipt of price by The Arnold Chemical Co., Limited, Canada Life Building, 44 King-st., west, Toronto.

Pa's Scheme.

"Maybe he wants to be able to blame his stupidity on the cigarettes."

Saturday's Markets.

On account of the stormy weather the attendance at the market Saturday was slim. The exhibit of beef outside was large, the whole front of the platform being lined with farmers' sleighs, but the sale was rather small. Following were the prices paid: Butter, 17 to 20c. per lb.; eggs, 18 to 20c.; turkeys, 10 to 20c.; chickens, 35 to 50c. per pair; lard, 10 to 11c. per lb.; beef, $5.50 to $6.50 per cwt.; dressed hogs, 7c. per lb.; potatoes, 30c. per bag; apples, 50c. to $1 per bag; hay, $7 to $8 per ton; live hogs, 6c. per lb.; hides, $5 to $5.50.

Success of the Salt Cure.

(Seaforth Expositor.)

A Goderich township farmer hired a very inexperienced boy a short time ago to help about the place. One morning he told the lad to go and salt the calf in the pasture. The boy took about a quart of salt, rubbed it all over the calf, working it into the hair. A gang of colts in the pasture scented the salt and got after the calf. They licked the hair all off the calf's back and tried to lick the hide off, too. The farmer tried to catch the calf and wash it off, but the creature, thinking he wanted to lick, too, kept out of his way.

The Egg Supply in Danger.

A number of Mariposa farmers complain that their hens are dying off at a rate that threatens the depletion of their poultry houses. The trouble appears to be infectious in its nature, and is spreading with undesirable rapidity. Mr. Culbert, of Little Britain vicinity, has lost over thirty hens despite the greatest care possible, and his neighbors' flocks are also undergoing a thinning-out process. The trouble was first noticed about the middle of last summer; the hen affected would first go lame, then the comb and wattles would assume a pale color, and the hen would pine away and die in the course of six weeks or two months. Mr. Culbert says he weeded out all his old birds and placed the young and healthy ones in a new and warm house, but despite all his care and attention the disease is still at work. Can our local poultry fancier, Mr. D. C. Trew, suggest the cause of the ailment, or prescribe a remedy?

Railway Notes.

—Conductor Wm. Fair, of the Belleville-Madoc run, is on the sick list, and is being relieved by Mr. Geo. Jobbitt, of this town.

—Divisional Freight Agent A. White, of the Grand Trunk Railway, reports to-day from advices received by him from northern lumber camps that the lumber trades this summer will be the largest for the past three years at least.

—Parliament will be asked to grant incorporation to the Mackenzie Valley Railway Company, with power to construct a railway from Prince Albert, on the North Saskatchewan, to a point on the Slave River, and the right to extend to the boundaries of Alaska.

—R. A. Dickson, of Grand Forks, B. C., is applying for the incorporation of a company for the purpose of building a railway from Cascade City along the valley of the Kettle River and the north fork of that river to Franklin Camp, westerly to Vancouver, via Vernon City, with branches.

—The deputation of Haliburton County Councillors when in Toronto this week asked the government to grant a bonus of $3,000 a mile for twelve miles of railroad from Irondale Junction to Minden village. This, they urged, will give the upper navigation of the Trent communication with the lower parts of the province of Ontario.

—A smash-up occurred on the C.P.R. at Norwood yesterday morning. As the west bound local was pulling in the air-brake refused to work and the engine struck the tail end of an east-bound freight which was just pulling into a siding to give right of way. Half-a-dozen freight cars were badly wrecked, the engine was damaged, and the track was torn up for a considerable distance.

—An effort is being made by the Grand Trunk Railway Company to have completed its double track between Hamilton and Niagara Falls early next summer, in time to accommodate the Pan—American Exposition business. The second track has been laid and is ready for use between Hamilton and Jordan, a distance of twenty-six miles. The track laying and ballasting between Jordan and Niagara Falls, a distance of 16 miles, will be pushed as soon as the weather permits, in order that the work may be completed in time.

LINDSAY BOARD OF TRADE

Hotel at Sturgeon Point Under Discussion.

WAS ANNUAL MEETING NIGHT, BUT ATTENDANCE WAS SLIM

Hence Only a Few Matters were Discussed—The Establishment of a Blast Furnace Again Advocated—Fish Fry for the Kawartha Lakes—British Chamber of Commerce asks to have the Canadian Bankruptcy Laws made Uniform.

It was hoped that a large attendance of members would mark the annual meeting of the Lindsay Board of Trade, set for Thursday evening, but the turnout was most disappointing, only a few members putting in an appearance. Among the number were President Flavelle, Secretary Sootheran, Messrs. Sylvester, Paddon, Barr, Fisher and Brady. The meeting of the special lighting committee and the lecture under the auspices of the Teachers' Convention accounted for the absence of a few members, but it was a case of sheer neglect on the part of other absentees, and their lethargy does not augur well for Lindsay's advancement. We have a lot of citizens who will lean over their counters and give their opinion as to what ought to be done to help the town along, but when a meeting is held to discuss ways and means they are invariably absent—they prefer to let other men sacrifice their time and comfort. We have too many of that class of citizen, and high as may be their opinion of their worth and standing in the community, it cannot be denied that Lindsay would be a better town if such men gave place to others with a higher conception of the duties of citizenship. So much for the absentees.

President Flavelle said that in view of the small number present he thought it would be inadvisable to proceed with the election of affairs and other business pertaining to the annual meeting, but as there was a quorum it would be proper to deal with any pressing business.

Secretary Sootheran then read the minutes of the last meeting, which were duly confirmed.

Sturgeon Point Hotel.

The following communication in connection with the above important matter was read by the Secretary:

To the President and Members of the Board of Trade, Lindsay, Ont.

Gentlemen,—At the request of several citizens, I have been looking into the question of a Summer Hotel at Sturgeon Point, with a view of utilising the offer made by the Grand Trunk Railway in this connection. I visited Toronto some days ago and had a long interview with Mr. J. K. Paisley, of the Iroquois Hotel. This gentleman has had large experience in summer hotels, having been manager for some years of the Peninsular Hotel at Penetanguishene. He is now manager of the Belvidere at Parry Sound and the Sans Souci at Moon River, as well as owner and manager of the Iroquois in Toronto, and he was also manager of the Royal Hotel in Hamilton for two or three years. Knowing that Mr. Paisley was a very successful hotel man with great experience, I went to see him, and laid the subject of the Sturgeon Point Hotel before him. By the aid of a map I showed him the location of Sturgeon Point, its position on the chain of lakes and rivers known as Kawartha Lakes. I pointed out its good fishing and admirable situation as a summer resort. Mr. Paisley was much pleased at what he heard, and said he was satisfied that Sturgeon Point was one of the best locations for a summer hotel in Ontario, and he thought in a short time it would surpass Muskoka as a place of abode for tourists. He thinks the hotel should be built on the bluff somewhere in the vicinity of the spring, and the latter used as a drawing card for the hotel.

In order to meet the requirements of the Grand Trunk Railway, as expressed in the letter from that company, it will be necessary to put up a building with at least 200 bed-rooms. About half of these rooms should be connected so that family apartments, en suite, may be made. A large and airy rotunda, with an equally large dining-room, is a necessity. Proper bath-houses and boat-houses must also be provided. The house and its appointments must be up-to-date and first-class in every respect in order to meet the competition of other places. Mr. Paisley suggests that the house be brick veneered, with hardwood floors, which make it cool and do away with expensive carpets, rugs being laid in parlors and bedrooms. About twenty or twenty-five or thirty rooms could be made with bath rooms attached.

One of the great necessities of summer resorts is golf links. People now-a-days prefer golf to any other sport and every up-to-date summer resort must have its golf links. The probable cost of such an hotel as I have outlined would be about $50,000. This seems a large sum, but I think it is not any too much for the purpose, and I am convinced that that amount in stock can be raised in Lindsay, New York, Rochester, Toronto and other places. Already two gentlemen in New York have signified their willingness to take $500 each in stock. Mr. Paisley says that if the people of Lindsay show the proper kind of interest in this scheme by subscribing liberally for stock, there will be no trouble in raising $15,000 to $25,000 in Toronto. The endorsation of the Grand Trunk Railway will be a great help in the matter of raising the money.

I hope this matter may be discussed by the Board of Trade at once, as there is no time to be lost if we wish to take advantage of the G.T.R.'s offer.—Yours truly, R. J. MATCHETT.

Lindsay, February 6th, 1901.

President Flavelle expressed the opinion that the old site would be the better one, as it fronts the only harbor on the lake.

Mr. Matchett—"Well, Mr. Paisley mentioned a number of reasons why the site at the spring would be preferable. However, that is a secondary consideration — the main thing is to awaken interest in the project and secure stock."

In reply to a question Mr. Matchett said that if Lindsay citizens would subscribe for $10,000 worth of stock he felt confident that the balance could be obtained elsewhere on the strength of the G.T.R. guarantee to keep the hotel filled. Mr. Paisley thought that $20,000 or $25,000 could be secured in Toronto alone.

Mr. Fisher—"There should be little difficulty in disposing of $10,000 worth of stock in this town."

Mr. Matchett—"The G.T.R. people are most anxious that a start should be made so that the hotel might be ready for the season of 1902. They would begin their advertising at once."

Mr. Brady—"Don't you think the amount is large—would not $20,000 suffice?"

Mr. Flavelle—"It will have to be a large building, well equipped in every way for the American trade. Besides, it must be built in accordance with the G.T.R. specifications to earn the guarantee."

Further discussion was deferred till next meeting.

Blast Furnace at Lindsay.

At a former meeting a communication from Mr. G. H. M. Baker, local manager for the Rathbun Co., asked the Board to consider the possibility of having a blast furnace located at Lindsay. A second letter from Mr. Baker on the same subject gave statistics showing that only a very small proportion of the iron used in Canada is produced here, and that the Dominion and Provincial bounties aggregate $7 a ton. Harwood could be delivered here by boat for many years to come at a low price; the ore is close at hand; and when the Trent Valley Canal is opened to the Georgian Bay we shall be on the short line between the east and west. The establishment of a blast furnace would take a lot of money, but there seems to be no trouble in getting the money needed for blast furnaces owing to the great market and large profits. The matter will be discussed at next meeting.

Canadian Bankruptcy Laws.

In a communication from the Canadian Section of the British Chambers of Commerce stress was laid upon the bad effects produced by the lack of a uniform Bankruptcy law in Canada. A memorial will probably be framed at next next meeting for transmission to parliament, in accordance with the request of the British-Canadian Traders.

After a few minutes' discussion relative to re-stocking the Kawartha Lakes with maskalonge and bass, the board adjourned for one week.

QUICK AND SURE.

A Pile Remedy Which Really Cures.

Mr. D. F. Collins of Garnett, says; "I commenced using the Pyramid Pile Cure at a time when my case was bad. I thought nothing could cure it, but before I had used a fifty-cent package I began to feel much better and now I can honestly say I am entirely cured. It is the quickest and surest remedy I have ever tried or heard of."

From Thomas Williston, of Port Jarvis; "Just one package of the Pyramid Pile Cure did wonders for me and I lose no opportunity of recommending such a remedy." 0 0

Amos Crocker, of Worcester; "After having gone through an unsuccessful operation for piles and after trying any number of salves and ointments without success it is no wonder that I can find words of praise for the Pyramid Pile Cure. One package did me more good than all the remedies I had tried before. It is so simple and painless to use that I felt no inconvenience whatever, while using it."

It has been thoroughly tested by physicians in every state in the Union and the best authorities recognize it as the safest, surest and cheapest pile cure known.

The Pyramid Pile Cure cures every form of piles itching, protruding or bleeding, without a particle of pain.

Railway Notes.

—The Railway World is being kept busy discussing new positions for Mr. Chas. M. Hays, the former general manager of the Grand Trunk, and now of the Southern Pacific. It is said that his appointment will be announced in a few days at the head of a large railway organization, organized by Morgan, Rockefeller and other associates. Mr. Hays is looked upon now as the king of railway managers.

—The Erie Railway management has issued an order doing away with the fruit peddlers and newspaper agents, on the entire system, and other companies will follow suit. Book stalls will be established at the leading stations.

—All trains were delayed Saturday owing to the very heavy snow-fall. The "flanger" was sent north to Haliburton Friday afternoon, yet the evening train from the I.B. & O. Junction was "stalled" four times on the way down, and arrived here an hour late.

La Grippe's Ravages.

A CAMPDEN LADY CURED OF ITS AFTER EFFECTS

She was Left Weak and Run Down, and Unable to Regain her Strength, Until She Used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

In the village of Campden, Ont., and throughout the surrounding country, there are few people better known or more highly esteemed than Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Albright. Mr. Albright has for many years filled the position of village postmaster, in addition to conducting a boot and shoe business. But it is with the postmaster's estimable wife that this article has chiefly to do, as it gives, practically in her own words, the particulars of her recovery from a severe illness through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. To a reporter who asked Mrs. Albright if she would consent to give the particulars of her illness and cure for publication, she said; "If you think my experience will help some other sufferer I am quite willing to give it, for I may tell you that I am a very enthusiastic admirer of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. For some years prior to the winter of 1898 I suffered with a lame back, which frequently prevented me from doing my household work. Later exposures to cold developed sciatica, and every movement of the body caused intense pain. In this way passed gloomy days and restless nights, until the winter of 1899, when my trouble was aggravated by an attack of la grippe. The first and most severe symptoms of this trouble passed away, but it left me in a weak and depressed condition. I did not appear to be able to recover my strength; my appetite was very fickle; I was tremendously nervous, and my heart would palpitate painfully at the least exertion. I had been under a doctor's care, but did not recover my strength, and as a consequence I was much depressed in spirits. At this juncture a friend who called upon me advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I decided to follow the advice, and procured a supply. To my gratification I felt an improvement in my condition almost from the outset, and after using the pills for a little over a month I was once more enjoying the best of health, every trace of thr trouble that had afflicted me having disappeared. It is nearly three years since I used the pills, and I have been well and strong ever since, and I have the best of reason for ascribing my present good health to the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a tonic and not a purgative medicine. They enrich the blood from the first dose to the last and thus bring health and strength to every organ in the body. The genuine pills are sold only in boxes with the full name, "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People," printed on the wrapper. If your dealer cannot supply you send direct to the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont., and the pills will be mailed post paid at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50.

A Pleasant Sleighing Party.

Last Monday about 150 young people, composed of members of the Cambridge-st. Methodist church Young Peoples' Society of C.E., and their friends, drove out to the commodious residence of Mr. and Mrs. Johnston Ellis, Ops. After a short and interesting program of songs, recitations, etc., refreshments were served in the dining hall. A jolly sleigh load of young people from Janetville were also present and greatly assisted in enlivening the proceedings. A most pleasant evening was brought to a close by all uniting in singing Auld Lang Syne. All were delighted with the hospitality of their courteous host and hostess.

Signs and Ads.

Every person who has a store, an office or other place of business, and who considers a painted sign over his door necessary, can increase the number of his patrons by newspaper advertising. An immense proportion of the people look to the newspapers for information as to where they can get what they want—a fact that should furnish business men with a strong motive for advertising. The successful merchant would as soon think of taking down his signs as of leaving out his "ads," which is proof that they pay for themselves. From a business point of view the only valid excuse for a failure to advertise is that which prevents an establishment from carrying an adequate stock—a lack of capital.—Philadelphia Record.

CHEESE TRADE IN DANGER.

We received $20,000,000 for our cheese last year. This has grown in a few years to be one of the greatest of Canada's industries. If all reports are true we are destined to see this great source of wealth lost to us by the dishonesty of the farmers themselves. Apparently we had before us the prospect of completely controlling the British market. Everything pointed to that, but unless a change is made we are likely to lose all that we have gained. The Woodstock Express which has been looking into the matter has given so forcible a statement of the present condition of affairs that we cannot do better than give its article in full. It is a scathing denouncement of the fraudulent methods adopted by some of our cheesemakers in putting upon the market cheese that is unfit for use. The Express says:

"Some time ago The Express uttered a note of warning as to the quality of some of the western cheese that was finding its way to the English market. The warning was uttered on the strength of a statement made by one of the best known buyers attending the local market, to the effect that the high character of western cheese was suffering for the want of cleanliness in making. The statement was rather severely criticised in some quarters at the time. Last week the Eastern Dairymen's Association met at Smith's Falls, and the facts brought out at that meeting indicate that the situation is as bad, if not worse, in the east, James Alexander, a Montreal exporter, had no hesitation in saying that the reputation of Canadian cheese had fallen back five years because of dishonesty and carelessness. If we are to believe the report of the instructors the dishonesty on the part of the patrons in supplying watered milk is very widespread. To this must be added dishonesty, on the part of some makers, carelessness of shipping, and the evil consequences that flow from dirt, and you have the dangers that are threatening the reputation of Canadian cheese. Mr. Hodgson, a well-known exporter, declared that there was positive dishonesty in making. Balls of rancid curd have been put in cheese in order to get rid of them. In some cases cuttings from old cheese have been incorporated in new makes. In one case a piece of colored cheese was actually found in white cheese. Dan. Derbyshire, whose fame is confined to no district, went even further. He said that in some cases makers who found themselves with sour cheese which was not worth a dollar in the world, had cut these into pieces and placed them inside the new cheese, hoping the flaw would not be detected. Some of the instructors reported that in nearly half the factories the milk was watered. One reported that some of the factories were positively dirty. But most significant was the statement of Prof. Ruddick, 'I have,' said he, 'been particularly impressed by the amount of time and space given in these reports to the testing of milk. This watering and skimming is a serious evil, but we lose ten times as much from dirty as we do from watered milk.' It is not an easy or a pleasant matter to deal with; but it is of far too much importance to be overlooked, and only by facing the difficulties firmly and fighting them honestly and manfully may we hope to restore and maintain the reputation of a great industry."

The cheese makers of Ontario had better look to it that such practices are stopped. Once the British buyer gets the idea that Canadian cheese is not up to the standard we may bid farewell to the English market. We cannot do business there unless we furnish the best article. Competition is too keen to allow us to send inferior cheese to England.

The college at Guelph is doing good work, but it by no means covers the field.—Toronto World.

The Dominion Experimental Farms, the provincial agricultural colleges, and the local farmers' clubs, have been doing good work. * * * Probably there is no expenditure for which the country gets a better and more direct return than this part of the vote of the Department of Agriculture, and the work done has excited the admiration and envy of other nations, the Mother Land among them.—Montreal Gazette.

And only a short time ago every tory paper in Canada was denouncing the Agricultural College and objecting to spending money on it, holding that such concerns ought to to be self-supporting. Their second thoughts are more sensible.

PERSEVERANCE REWARDED

Mrs. Berry was at First Discouraged, but Afterwards Resumed Treatment and was Cured.

Bear River, N.S., Feb. 11.—Mrs. Elizabeth Berry, of this place, has had an experience both unique and interesting. She says: "For over eight years I suffered from chronic Kidney Disease. I tried many remedies, but with no relief. A friend advised Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"I took one box and as that did not seem to help me very much I left off and concluded there was no remedy. For three years more I struggled on till at last I got so bad that I couldn't dress or undress myself and I did not sleep more than five minutes at a time day or night.

"I determined to try Dodd's Kidney Pills once more. This time I bought five boxes. When these were done I was a little better, so I got seven more. I have not finished the twelfth yet and I am completely cured of every trace of the old trouble.'

UNCLE SAM'S WHITE ELEPHANT.

(Montreal Witness.)

A despatch from General McArthur, commanding the United States troops in the Philippines, just made public, reveals a state of affairs in those islands strikingly analagous to the situation in South Africa, only much more serious and difficult. General McArthur has been fighting the Filipinos since the outbreak of hostilities and may be said to understand them pretty well, and he says they will never submit. Like the Boers, when they are captured they take the oath of allegiance and receive the treatment accorded to civilized belligerents. But on the first opportunity they dig up their buried rifles and resume the sport of sniping Americans from convenient concealment, of which the thickets of the island afford an infinite abundance. This routine of 'pacification' has been repeated so often that General McArthur sees no way of meeting the difficulty except by deportation to some distant part of the Pacific. Some of the leaders who fell into his hands he has already exiled to Guam. But the trouble is that there are millions of people who are in active sympathy with the so-called 'insurgents' while pretending to be 'Pacificos' friendly to the United States. Gen. McArthur thinks the war situation is chronic and that it will continue indefinitely. So the War Department has decided to recall him, as Spain used to do when her generals did not seem to know what to do next.

SUMMER RESORTS OF CANADA.

(Toronto Globe.)

Owing to the very extensive and judicious distribution of tourist literature relating to Canada, which was vigorously carried out by the Grand Trunk Railway system at the Paris Exposition, applications from all parts of Europe are now being received for additional information as to the best means of reaching the several districts and summer resorts on the lines of the Grand Trunk. Many applications are received from Germany, France, Spain, Belgium and other European countries. The very handsome and representative display of photographic views of Canadian scenery evidently attracted a considerable amount of attention, and, no doubt, has installed into the minds of European people a conception of the beautiful summer resorts of Canada, and the descriptive literature has educated them to a better knowledge of the country.

As an instance of the requests received, a letter from a city in Belgium asks for copies of the descriptive literature relating to the "Highlands of Ontario," and for time tables and routes to the resorts in this district from Quebec and Boston; others inquire as to the fishing and hunting in the different regions, and many other matters pertaining to the different cities and towns of the Dominion. The advertising features of the Grand Trunk have shown a steady development, and to-day this railway is one of the most effective advertising agents for the Dominion of Canada in Great Britain, Europe and the United States. Not only does this illustrated literature reflect credit on the company, but a systemized department of publicity is constantly using all its endeavors to bring Canada before the world and intelligently giving information to the thousands who are each year looking for new pleasure grounds.

Newspapers and Magazines.

—The modes for spring are now taking definite shape and The Delineator for the month of March illustrates and describes some decided novelties. It looks as though there might be a return of overskirts as represented by a series of two or three flounces. Eton Jackets in various modern forms of modification are to be very popular this season and there will be a tendency to show l'Aiglon collars as applied to jackets. The ripple back effect on skirts cut in habit fashion is also gaining ground, and the March Delineator contains an article written by an experienced dressmaker showing how to produce this effect. French and Russian effects in the garments of children are becoming more popular.

EAST VICTORIA TEACHERS

HELD A PROFITABLE CONVENTION LAST WEEK.

Many Important Subjects Discussed—Lecture by Principal Scott, of the Toronto Normal School.

Bright weather, large attendance, excellent papers and breezy discussions, combined to make the East Victoria Teachers' Association a great success on Thursday and Friday of last week. The convention opened in the Union School on Thursday morning with the President, Mr. Samuel Couch, principal of Omemee Public School, in the chair.

The President's address was followed by routine business, and then the subject of the best text-books came up. Mr. Hardy discussed this from the High School standpoint. In the 20 subjects taught in High School courses there had been four new text-books this year, viz., in Latin, French, German and English Grammar. In Latin and possibly Grammar, it was possible to view the old and new books together in the same class; it was not practical in the other cases. From the standpoint of teaching the new text-books were worthy of high praise; in other respects they were open to very serious criticism.

In the discussion that followed it was made very plain that the method of the Education Department in giving out new text-books is very strongly condemned by the teachers. The new Public School text-books were largely agreed upon as being an improvement on previous books.

Mr. McLellan opened the morning session with a paper on Entrance Examination Questions.

Thursday Afternoon Session.

"History" was the subject of the first paper in the afternoon, and an admirable paper it was. Mr. D. W. Assselstine, of Kinmount, was the writer, and his chief points were: the waste in our education system, the value of historical pictures both for history and composition; the moral training afforded by history in furnishing example and all kinds of lives, and proper judgments of men; the work in senior classes to be a synthesis of previous work; value of collateral reading for both pupil and teacher; the work increased for the teacher but his reward in his own mental and moral growth. A very interesting discussion followed, the present text-books in history being implemented by supplementary matter, the need of supplementary reading in history being emphasized by motion by Mr. J. C. Harstone, seconded by Mr. A. E. Bysom, that Messrs. Brodgrass, Hilborn, Bysom, Assselstine, Jardine, and Harstone, be a committee to formulate a resolution, which should be arranged.

Mr. Sam. Hughes addressed the convention on the use of pictures in the schools, and his address pleased, illustrated by drawings on the blackboard, made very clear the chief points from which our eyes are liable. He made a strong appeal for proper care of the eye and for sympathy with those whose eyesight is defective and whose ability is dulled by eyesight.

The last paper of the afternoon was one of great moment to every parent, and it was a large and full one of parents were present. Home work so much talked about in the home, in press, the school boards and at conventions, was the central and inevitable discussion at the hands of Messrs. O. Conway, Jordan, Jardine, Brodgrass, Black, Knight, Colling and Rev. T. E. Hughes. Opinions were very much divided. Several gentlemen thought most of the school work was mere rubbish, that very few children had too much work, that it was a pity that they were permitted to read too many novels, that their parents were too indulgent to be bothered hearing the lessons with their work. Others took the ground that there were very serious evils in the matter, that many children were done or suffered in health, that many injured their eyesight, that parents were prevented from reading the books they ought to read. All thought, however, on the whole, that little or no home work should be given to the senior children.

Lecture in the Evening.

In the evening a small audience gathered in the Collegiate Institute to hear Principal Scott, of the Normal School, Toronto. Mr. Scott is one of the ablest lecturers on the platform and his address on "The Training of Children, as a Science, or a Graded Issue," took of advertising in a manner less the reverse of the small attendance. In introducing the gentleman, Chairman Hughes, Miss Stewart, referred to the society's acquaintance with Mr. Scott to the Lindsay Board of Education, and his delight he had in being present at Mr. Scott's lecture. Space will prevent the insertion of the text of a lecture that The Post would gladly have all readers read in full.

The training of children is of supreme importance because the right training is infinitely better than reformation, or cure, of the evils of children. Training is possible and does produce results. In 1871 there were 10,000 in the prisons of England; in 1891 there were 20,000. Yet the education was necessarily the same. Reformation has been seen in the prisons of the United States; 43,000 in one prison, and yet there for the difference lies largely in the greater care in the training of girls.

Training is equally applicable to the moral and spiritual development. Psychology deals with the relation of sensations, nerves, brain, nerve-centres and higher nerve-centres, and the will. When a habit is formed the lower nerve-centres are the highest, then the brain and the will are freed from exertion in the matter of greater work. Boy can be trained to think, and speak and act rightly, till right thinking and right doing become a habit. Bad habits are just as possible as wrong habits, and both are the result of training. Repetition is the great agent in the formation of habit.

The influence of heredity is potent, but the influence of environment and training is vastly more so. This fact makes progress and civilization possible for the human race. Habit is the result of habit. Habit is a repetition or tendency to repeat what has been done before. Hence the vast importance of right habits in manhood and morals. After referring approvingly to the manners of American and Canadian in comparison with Europeans, Mr. Armour discussed our duty in times matured. He claimed that neither manners nor morals can be taught directly. What he teaches says or does is the full of set purpose is of little value. He must work through the influence of his example and through his sympathy with the pupil, with whom he is in the schoolroom. Two studies at least are of great service here, literature and nature study. But you cannot teach anything without reverence and charity or immorality.

Supplementary Library Committee reported at this juncture, recommending that about 100 volumes, constituted as follows, be purchased for circulation among the various schools in the Inspectorate: P. Y. Lovell, Old Stories from Canada; Story: F. Y. Powell, Sketches from British History; Dr. Scott, Sketches from Canadian History; Dr. Scott, An Easy History of England; First Course; Second Course. Historical Biographies: Lennie Creighton, Social History of Canada; Dr. Scott, Sketches from the Lives of English History; A. B. Hart, Epoch Maps Illustrating American History; C. G. D. Roberts, History of Canada; Ashe, Beyond the Mississippi; Dr. Cox, except Roberts' History of Canada, which Mr. Assselstine moved, seconded by Mr. Hardy, and carried. The report was adopted and committee given the necessary instructions.

Mr. Scott closed the morning session with an exposition of lightning methods in spelling.

The Afternoon Session

was opened by Mr. N. F. Black in a very vigorous address on School Reading and Reader. Mr. Black has some right to speak authoritatively on this subject, as his work of Primary Reading has been published by Messrs. Copp, Clark, and is one of the pieces of work. The aim of teaching reading is reading, not to make a reader. Mr. Black made an onslaught on the Public School Reader. It is "the words; its phonic system is poor. There is no supplementary to checkbook work, and there is a lack of interest in the first months. Spoon will not permit an outline of the valuable matter, thought somewhat technical address that following.

Mr. Scott spoke next, after a very pleasing address by Inspector Sproule, School girls, and a charming recitation by Miss Lyons.

The Nominating committee presented its report, and officers were elected as follows:

President, Mr. H. Stevens, B.A.; Secretary, J. E. Allan, B.A.; Treasurer, Mr. H. Stevens, B.A.; Library: Conciliators, A. J. Morgan, B.A., and Miss Stewart; Mr. Bysom; Miss Loddies, Lindsay; Miss Mitchell, Lindsay; E. A. Hardy, B.A., Lindsay; R. Assselstine, B.A., Omemee; Delegates to Ontario Educational Association, C. P. Black, Lindsay; W. W. Jardine B.A., Omemee; Representatives on Public School Board, G. B. Brodgrass.

The work of the afternoon of the O.E.A. be sold to the members of the E.V. Ass., at the cost price, viz., 50 cents.

The 50 copies of the Lindsay Public Library catalogue be purchased for distribution to the members of the E.V.T.A., at a cost of $2.

The convention was then brought to a close.

A POOR BREAKFAST.

Very Few People eat a Good Breakfast.

"All I want for breakfast is a roll and a cup of coffee."

This remark is heard not only in hotels, restaurants and lunch rooms, but it is the usual breakfast order in the home circle as well. For over a dozen hours fast it would seem that the first meal of the day should be a hearty, substantial meal, and yet, living as we do, amid the rush of modern, unartificial lives, it would be a mistake to do so, as some breakfast is a mere pretence.

Says a latter day philosopher: "Among the many years of active business life, I never remember having eaten a good substantial breakfast, but suppose that it was of no importance so long as I began to lose appetite for lunch and dinner.

My physician told me I was victim of nervous dyspepsia and must take rest and recreation, as no medicine would cure the trouble, but that if I was wise I would follow as my business advisor, and that I would be well repaid. I resorted to medicines and procured temporary relief, but soon accidentally that I hit upon one remedy which I found agreed with me in a dose, store one evening I noticed a number of men buying Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, a widely advertised remedy for all stomach troubles, and the force of example was too strong for me, and I bought a fifty-cent package.

I took a tablet after each meal, and in a few days my appetite picked up, and I began to feel my old ambition for work returning, and could eat a good breakfast because I wanted it, and from that time to this I take Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets as regularly as I take my meals, not because I take them any trouble with my stomach, but because I don't want to lose.

A fifty-cent box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will last me a month and keep my digestion in good order. They are sold by all druggists, or, if you prefer, by sending the price to Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich., they will be sent you by mail.

SECOND DAY'S PROCEEDINGS.

The first paper on Friday morning was by Principal Scott. His subject was, "Indirect Teaching." The business of the pupil is not to learn, but to grow. His growth will be largely fostered by indirect teaching. Nothing now can be taught a child. He must fit it to what he already knows. There must be centres of knowledge into which the new must be fusted. These are called apperceive centres. They are vitally important in education, and indirect teaching is the great parent. Nature's studies are invaluable in this work. Five minutes every morning with great pupils on nature and things in general will be exceedingly profitable. Three subjects are best taught indirectly, viz., reading, drawing and composition.

Mr. Armour gave a very thoughtful and finished address on "Morals and Manners in School." He defined the term "morals" as relating to character. Character is the complex result of all the through a varied combination of habits. What we are is the result of habit. Habit is a repetition or tendency to repeat what has been done before. Hence the vast importance of right habits in manhood and morals. After referring approvingly to the manners of American and Canadian in comparison with Europeans, Mr. Armour discussed our duty in times matured. He claimed that neither manners nor morals can be taught directly. What he teaches says or does is the full of set purpose is of little value. He must work through the influence of his example and through his sympathy with the pupil, with whom he is in the schoolroom. Two studies at least are of great service here, literature and nature study. But you cannot teach anything without reverence and charity or immorality.

CONDEMNED.

When an innocent man is condemned for any crime he doesn't lose hope. He lawyers appeal from one court to another. They are hopeful to the last he can be saved. It is the same way with a good doctor when his patient seems condemned to death by disease.

But doctors make mistakes sometimes and they lose heart too. Right after they have tried everything they know and the patient is no better, they think there is nothing more to be done. They don't always get at the root of the disease at first. They frequently give a patient up to die of consumption, when scrofula or kidney troubles which builds up solid, muscular flesh and healthy nerve force.

Mrs. W. B. Duncan, of Arlington, Phelps Co., Mo., writes: "My husband took two bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery when he was given up to have blood into consumption, and we were very thankful when the medicine could be found. I wish all persons troubled with cough would take it. I keep your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Favorite Prescription' by me. I shall always recommend and praise these medicines."

I am now prepared to give you a full description of my husband's illness as near as I remember it. In the fall of 1888 he was taken with the 'La Grippe.' Eight years ago last March is the date when he first received benefit from your medicine. He was formerly a robust and hearty looking man of about 180 lbs. Four years old when married, and that winter every time he took a little cold he would have a hard cough. He had pains all through his chest and lungs, sometimes would have to leave his work and looking well. He said he had always coughed in the morning and night. He was not alarmed at the symptoms as I was, although he has his mother and two of the family had that dreadful cough and the family thought he was in danger of the same consumption. He continued to cough and grew worse, and was pronounced by the doctors that it was a disease until in 1895 he had an attack of pleurisy, and at that time he was never expected to be worse before. His cough grew worse and worse although he kept working all the time. Sometimes he would vomit immediately after his meals. Helpless on that way for somewhile. In the winter of 1898 he was taken down with the 'La Grippe' and commenced his work as usual, coughing night and day but worse than ever. He was advised to try something new, or to go to Colorado. He said 'well, if I go to the doctor I will go to bed, and go there to stay. I will try something new, I depend upon the doctor's medicine.' By this time he was very weak, and had no appetite, and said he was tired of the drug store and the doctors and the medicine, and he would not live to be a burden to his friends. He said 'No I will not, for if I do I will die before I get home.' He began to pick up, and went to the doctors and next they went to the grocery. He was weak and said that the doctors all call this disease hereditary consumption. Well, said the druggist, I will give you Dr. Pierce's medicine, and you can try it and know for yourselves the best medicine I have in my store. You can give it a trial.' So my husband commenced to take Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and also the 'Pellets.' In a short time the battle was gone he was improving. He had a better appetite and was feeling much better. He took seven bottles of the 'Golden Medical Discovery' and as many of the 'Pellets.' At the end of that time he looked like a new man. He was full of life, and he was so glad, was weighed more, since using your medicine than ever before in his life. He gained about twenty-eight pounds. When he was taken down with the 'La Grippe' he was thought to be in a low state, and hearty the people would say, 'Well, George, you look like the spring that you would be in your grave by this time.' The other day he was in the drug store of medicine. Our home doctor had remarked that he would not live to see the spring, and when he saw the change he said, 'Well, I am surprised to see you looking so healthy and strength of time.' At this time the fame of Golden Medical Discovery spread rapidly through all that neighborhood."

EQUIPMENT OF OUR CHEESE FACTORIES.

Condition of the Curing Room all Important—Sub-Earth Ducts for Cooling

Last fall, at a meeting of the Victoria County Cheese Board, the buyers complained that during the heated terms a number of factories selling on the Lindsay board had delivered cheese in very bad condition, and they advised that the curing rooms be fitted with a ventilator.

We take the following extract on the same subject from the report of an address delivered recently at a meeting in Western Ontario:

Curing Cheese.

The maker should know whether the cheese are to be cured here or the consumer or dealer. Moist cheese cure quicker than dry cheese. Assuming that all conditions are favorable, temperature, air, moisture, and light are the points to be considered. The temperature must be even and not at all times. It is naturally higher at the top of a room and consequently new cheese should be put on top therein and gradually lowered as they get older. The cheese should be cured slowly, but not in cold weather, as often the case. Thorough ventilation is necessary. Moisture is important. In dry weather put on the floor of the room or sprinkle the floor, with water. Light is important. Keep the direct rays of the sun should not be allowed to reach the cheese. Cheese and curing-room should be kept clean, and the former should be properly numbered and kept straight on the shelves.

Sub-Earth Ducts.

Mr. J. N. Paget gave his experience with the sub-earth ducts as follows: The duct did not keep the temperature as low as I thought it would, but go above 70 degrees. During the first and last weeks of curing, when the weather was exceedingly hot, the temperature would be 70 degrees for a couple of hours. Aside from this the results were a great deal better than previous. As well as cooling, the duct helps to ventilate the curing-room. Proper dimensions are necessary in building a duct. If water remains the duct is useless. The duct should not be properly insulated. A mild light should be in the room is better than shutters. He used seven inch tile, laid underneath the duct, but thought larger tile and less tile would do. The entrance to the duct should be some means to draw cold air out of the duct. The duct was at one end and outflow at the other end of curing-room. There was a current of air in the early morning. This duct cost him $100 in all. He had the intake pipe forty feet high, with revolving cowl on the top. A maker stated that he had a duct in use in his creamery for over 20 years and it was in good working order still. The duct was 150 feet long, made of 20-inch sewer pipe placed in the earth. Surface drain. The outlet was to the smoke stack of the boiler, which was 80 feet high. This kept the outgoing air moving, and created circulation through the duct.

—Some time ago the civic authorities are sending a gardener around with his mowing pulling up weeds in the telephone and telegraph companies to see that he was removed unnecessarily destroyed, by those whom the Montreal Witness says are the worst stringing Vandals. MORE FAME FOR LINDSAY.

Mr. A E. Pilkie now Holds a World's Amateur Skating Record.

Our readers will be interested in the following, taken from the sporting columns of Monday's Toronto World:

Montreal, Feb. 10.—The annual skating race of the Montreal amateur Association were held on Saturday. The events were for the most part only of local interest, the chief event of importance being the making of a new world record. The 880 yards, which was the previous record was 1 min. 7 sec. A. E. Pilzie, of Montreal, now a new record of 1 min. 20 sec. flat.

Mr. Pilkie's victory is all the more worthy of praise because, unlike the majority of his opponents, he is amateur in no regular sense of training, being unable to space the time. We expect further honors will fall to him when the American championship races are held in Montreal shortly.

To feel tired after exertion is one thing; to feel tired before is another. Don't say the latter is laziness—it isn't, but it's a sign that the system is overtaxed, is run down, and needs the tonic effect of Hood's Sarsaparilla.

It's a warning, too—and sufferers should begin taking Hood's at once. Buy a bottle to-day.

After Typhoid

fever, or other almost mortal sickness, a man or woman sometimes will gain a pound a day from taking an ounce a day of SCOTT'S EMULSION and the gain be healthy.

The ounce gives strength to get the pound; there is no miracle in it.

Body and mind are weak; digestion is weak; and hunger is ravenous.

SCOTT'S EMULSION of Cod Liver Oil is the food to begin and go on with. It furnishes strength to digest a little easy other food; and a little grows to enough. But the gain is nearly all fat.

The bones had not lost much; the muscles had lost, and had not got back their strength; they have lost there bulk; the fat was all gone.

The fat has come back; the muscle slowly recovers its bulk, more slowly its strength—the bulk of muscle was fat—and the bones are about the same as before.

It is SCOTT'S EMULSION of Cod Liver Oil that starts the body going again—give it time.

The genuine has this picture on it, take no other.
If you have not tried it, send for free sample, its agreeable taste will surprise you.

THE KING'S MESSAGES

King's Gratitude For People's Affectionate Tributes.

TO MY PEOPLE BEYOND THE SEAS

Tactful Addresses to All Subjects of the Empire—His Majesty's Message to Greater Britain—Universal Grief Testifies to the Loyalty to the Throne—Will Follow Victoria's Example.

London, Feb. 5.—The King has sent the following message to all the British colonies and dependencies:

To My People Beyond the Seas:

The countless messages of loyal sympathy that I have received from every part of my dominions over seas, testify the universal grief in which the whole Empire now mourns the loss of my beloved mother.

In the welfare and prosperity of her subjects throughout Greater Britain, the Queen ever evinced a heartfelt interest. She saw with thankfulness the steady progress which under the wide extension of self-government, they had made during her reign. She warmly appreciated their unfailing loyalty to her throne and person, and was proud to think of those who had so nobly fought and died for the Empire's cause in South Africa.

I have already declared that it will be my constant endeavor to follow the great example which has been bequeathed to me. In these endeavors I shall have confident trust in the devotion and sympathy of the people, and of their several representative assemblies throughout my vast dominions. With such loyal support I will, with the blessing of God, solemnly work for the promotion of the common welfare and security of our great Empire, over which I have now been called to reign. EDWARD.

To the Empire at Large.

London, Feb. 5.—King Edward has gazetted the following to his subjects throughout the Empire:

To my people:

"Now that the last scene has closed in the noble and ever-glorious life of my beloved mother, the Queen, I am anxious to endeavor to convey to the whole Empire the extent of the deep gratitude I feel for the heart-stirring and affectionate tributes which have everywhere been borne to her memory.

After alluding to the common sorrow, the King concluded by again pledging to walk in the footsteps of the late Queen "in the fulfillment of my great responsibilities."

Kaiser Honors Queen Alexandra.

London, Feb. 5.—The Times yesterday says it is informed that the Kaiser has appointed Queen Alexandra to be honorary colonel of the Prussian Regiment of Dragoons, of which the late Queen was honorary colonel. Previous reports had said that the appointment had been conferred upon King Edward.

KINGLY SYMPATHY.

Emperor Francis Joseph Regrets the Murder of King Humbert and Death of Queen Victoria.

Vienna, Feb. 5.—The newly elected Reichsrath was opened yesterday with a speech from the throne. Emperor Francis Joseph recalled his heartfelt sorrow at the death of "My dear ally," the late King Humbert, the "victim of an execrable crime," and the demise of Queen Victoria, "who was a shining exemplar of all sovereign virtues, and who was united to me by sentiments of true friendship."

His Majesty proceeded: "The cordial feeling which characterizes our closer relations with the powers allied to us is unaltered, and I rejoice to recall the evidences of German sympathy which received such touching expression on the occasion of my visit to Emperor William, from the inhabitants of the capital of Germany."

In connection with events in China the Emperor said: "The efforts of the powers are directed towards the restoration of an ordered condition of things while upholding the integrity of China. Happily, therefore, no apprehension need be entertained that events in that part of the world will react upon the peace of Europe."

HIS LONG STAY APPRECIATED.

Popular Demonstration as He Went Across London—King Edward Showed Much Affectionate Regard to His Great Nephew, and the Man Overcame the Monarch at the Final Parting.

Windsor, Feb. 6.—King Edward, in the uniform of a Prussian Dragoon Regiment; Emperor William, wearing a British Field Marshal's uniform; the Duke of Connaught, in the uniform of a Prussian regiment of Hussars, and Prince Henry of Prussia, left Windsor Castle yesterday in a royal carriage, drawn by four horses with postillions, and an escort of Life Guards. They drove to the railroad station and took a train for London. Their Majesties were loudly acclaimed by the assembled crowds.

Arrival in London.

London, Feb. 6.—On the arrival of Their Majesties at Paddington station, they were met by an assemblage of high court and army officials. The band played "God Save the King," a procession was formed, and the royal carriages were driven to Marlborough House and escorted by cavalry.

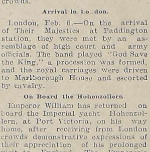
On Board the Hohenzollern.

Emperor William has returned on board the Imperial yacht Hohenzollern, at Port Victoria, on his way home, after receiving from London crowds demonstrative expressions of their appreciation of his prolonged visit to England. The Emperor's passage through London was somewhat marred by bad weather. Unmistakable evidence of the place he has won in the hearts of the English people was seen in the affection with which he was bidden farewell by King Edward, the Duke of Connaught and other members of the royal family.

A naval parade greeted the Emperor's arrival at Port Victoria, when all the war vessels dressed ship, this being further evidence of the exceptional official cordiality existing between the two countries.

Ovation at Charing Cross.

Emperor William was accompanied by Crown Prince Frederick William



MARLBOROUGH HOUSE.

and the Duke of Sparta. It was at Charing Cross Railroad Station, subsequent to the luncheon at Marlborough House, that the chief ovation occurred.

The crowds, packed densely, cheered lustily, as each State carriage, containing the members of the German suite, passed, and shouted themselves hoarse, when, behind a brilliant escort of Life Guards, Emperor William, King Edward, Crown Prince Frederick William and the Duke of Connaught drove up in the same carriage.

The Archbishop of York, Field Marshal Earl Roberts, the Lord Mayor and many distinguished people, including the members of the German Embassy and a number of officers, gathered on the platform to bid farewell to Emperor William. The Kaiser was in the highest spirits. He talked, laughed and shook hands with all around, and smiled continually. King Edward was equally cheerful. He appeared to be in better health than for weeks past.

An Affectionate Farewell.

After an affectionate farewell between the two monarchs, the train started out amid the playing of the National Anthem by the band of the Coldstream Guards and the cheers of the people. King Edward ran forward to take a final grip of Emperor William's hand, which was held out of a window. It was evident that no one was better pleased at the day's proceedings than the Emperor himself. A number of German detectives ceaselessly followed in his footsteps and boarded the Imperial train before it started. Emperor William wore a British field marshal's uniform, and King Edward and the Duke of Connaught wore German uniforms. For the first time in many days the flags in the streets and on buildings flew at the flagstaff heads. The German flag was prominently displayed.

The Hohenzollern Sails.

The Hohenzollern sailed from Port Victoria at 5.25 p.m. yesterday.

The Hohenzollern anchored last evening in Sheerness Harbor. She sailed at 6 o'clock this morning, escorted by the German cruiser Nymphe and the British cruisers Niobe and Minerva.

Black Eagle for Earl Roberts.

London, Feb. 6.—Emperor William has conferred upon Earl Roberts the order of the Black Eagle, the highest German decoration.

Germany Will Mourn Three Months.

Berlin, Feb. 6.—By command of Emperor William the court will remain in mourning for three months in memory of Queen Victoria.

Prince Henry a British Admiral.

London, Feb. 6.—Prince Henry of Prussia, who rejoined the German flagship Baden at Portsmouth yesterday afternoon, was gazetted last night an honorary vice-admiral in the British navy.

SCANDALOUS INVENTION.

Sir Felix Semon Gives Indignant Denial to Story That King Is Suffering From Cancer.

New York, Feb. 6.—"King Edward's days are numbered," says a London despatch to an evening paper here, which goes on to say that London was shocked yesterday by the report that the new Sovereign was a victim of cancer of the throat. Sir Felix Semon, the specialist, is said to be in almost constant attendance.

A Scandalous Invention.

London, Feb. 6.—Professor Sir Felix Semon, physician for diseases of the throat to the National Hospital for Epilepsy and Paralysis, and president of the Laryngological Society of London, etc., asks the Associated Press to say there is positively no word of truth in the story, published in the United States, that King Edward is suffering from cancer of the throat. Sir Felix Semon wishes it to be called a "scandalous invention and ridiculous report." He hopes this statement will be a final answer to the cabled despatches he is now receiving from America. He declares he has not seen the King for weeks past, and that when he last saw him his throat and general condition were never better. The physician adds that anyone hearing the King speak in public would know in a minute that there is nothing the matter with his throat.

SPECIAL MESSAGE TO INDIA.

King Has Addressed a Greeting to Ruling Chiefs of His Empire.

London, Feb. 6.—The King-Emperor has sent a special message to the people of India, and a greeting to the ruling chiefs of the native States. He refers to the late Queen's special interest in India, to his own visit to that country, to the deep impression he received there, and to his purpose to follow the Queen-Empress in working for the well-being of all ranks in India.

Will Rest in Their Old Home.

London, Feb. 6.—It is understood that King Edward and Queen Alexandra will rest at Sandringham for the next few days. The former will return to Buckingham Palace Feb. 13 and hold a Privy Council to draft the King's speech at the opening of Parliament.

Duke of Cornwall Recovering.

London, Feb. 6.—The Duke of Cornwall and York is making satisfactory progress towards recovery.

THE OLD-TIME GRANDEUR.

King Edward Will Open the Imperial Parliament on Feb. 14.

London, Feb. 8.—Doubt as to the nature of the ceremonial to be observed at the opening of Parliament, Feb. 14, has been set at rest by an official announcement that King Edward will open his first Parliament with a full state ceremonial. The ancient state coach, which has not been used since the Prince Consort's death, will be employed. The precedent of 1886, the last occasion on which Queen Victoria opened Parliament in person, will be followed. The entrance will be through the great gates under Victoria tower, the Sovereign and his suite passing thence to the robing room. It has a black marble stairway, which for years has been incased in wood. Thence they will go through the gallery and Princes' chamber into the House of Lords. It is understood that Sir Arthur Bigge, who was private secretary to Queen Victoria, will be appointed private secretary to the Duke of Cornwall and York.

FOR BADEN-POWELL'S POLICE.

Mr. Chamberlain Cables Lord Minto to Have Recruiting Go On.

Ottawa, Feb. 5.—On Jan. 30 Hon. Joseph Chamberlain cabled Lord Minto as follows:

"The High Commissioner for South Africa telegraphs that Col. Steele of Strathcona Horse was leaving South Africa about Jan. 18, and asks that Capt. Hall should be instructed to wait his arrival before commencing work. Hall sailed by the Numidian on Jan. 19, for Portland, the High Commissioner has been informed. Presume that as raising men is matter of urgent importance there will be no objections to Hall proceeding with attestation of recruits, pending arrival of Steele. Is delay likely to prejudice recruiting? Will it not in any case be necessary to employ several officers to attest recruits, having regard to distance traveled?

"(Signed), Chamberlain."

A later cable asks that the work of recruiting proceed at once, and this is being done.

A cable from Sir Alfred Milner says that Pte. Armitage of Winnipeg is dangerously ill at Springfontein.

Another Victim of Fever.

Ottawa, Feb. 5.—The Militia Department yesterday morning received the following cable from Sir Alfred Milner, addressed to the Governor-General:

"Cape Town, Feb. 2.—361, Fornie, Lord Strathcona's corps, died of enteric fever, Bloemfontein, Jan. 31. (Signed) Milner."

Mr. Fornie came from Scarborough, England.

Lieut. Ecclestone at Halifax.

Halifax, Feb. 5.—The steamship Corean has arrived here and Lieut. Ecclestone and Lieut. Murray have arrived and are well. Lieut. Ecclestone was in charge of the postal service in South Africa for the Canadian soldiers, and went from the Hamilton postoffice. Lieut. Murray is a Woodstock man.

QUEEN'S LOVE MATCH

Ends by Wilhelmina of Holland Wedding Man of Her Choice.

PRINCE OF THE NETHERLANDS.

Civil and Religious Ceremonies Performed—Simplicity and Dignity Characterize Both of Them—The People Acclaim the Queen and Her Partner for Life—The Court Chaplain's Good Advice.

The Hague, Feb. 8.—Wilhelmina, the first ruling Queen of Holland, yesterday married Duke Henry of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, who became Prince of the Netherlands by proclamation in The Court Gazette last evening.

The marriage was a series of brilliantly colored pictures, but the severe simplicity of the Dutch form of marriage, which was followed to the letter in the civil contract before the Minister of Justice (Dr. P. W. A. Cort Van Der Linden), and in the old-fashioned religious service in Groote Kerk, gave it a democratic tinge.

At 11 o'clock the marriage party emerged from the palace to proceed to the Palace of Justice. Queen Wilhelmina passed down the steps on the arm of the Duke, with the train of her white wedding dress sweeping behind her; then the Queen's mother, in purple. The Grand Duchess Maria and half a dozen ladies of the court followed, then the generals and admirals, fairly gleaming with gold lace and medals, at the salute on both sides, making a truly regal picture.

The gilded coach presented by the people of Amsterdam was drawn by eight horses, bedecked with orange colors.

In the White Hall of the Palace of Justice, six high officials waited, as witnesses. They, with the minister of Justice, Dr. Van Der Linden, were the only persons beside the Queen's mother and the Grand Duchesse Maria and two or three clerks, who saw the signing of the contract.

The religious edifice in which the final ceremony was held is a great bare structure of gothic type, with which vaulted arches. The body is filled with plain box pews. The scene when the weddings guests assembled, however, was most magnificent.

A roar of cheers announced the arrival of the bridal party, at 12.30. They entered the main door in the vacant wing of the church, walking up the steps on a strip of red velvet, under a red and buff canopy, bearing the arms of Holland, and proceeded along the nave, through a lane of palms, to the aisle, between the burgomasters and civilian guests 50 feet long, which was draped with blue, displaying the orange lion.

Before the wedding procession entered the church, the great congregation arose and the choir of 100 voices sang to Hildack's music the words of the 16th and 17th verses of the first chapter of Ruth. The blue curtains were held aside by the court officials and to this music the party slowly marched down the aisle.

The Queen and the Duke bowed slightly to the right and left, acknowledging the salutes of the congregation.

The groom wore the uniform of a Dutch admiral and carried his chapeau. More noble couples walked behind.

The Duty of Love.

The court chaplain, Dr. Van Dervlier, standing before the bride and bridegroom, then delivered an address. His text was a passage from the fourth Psalm, "Lord lift Thou up the light of Thy countenance upon us."

"The festal hour has arrived," said the pastor, "wherein the entire people has its share of delight. The prayer contained in the text embodies the essential conditions for lasting married happiness, which does not depend on external things, but on the disposition of the heart. The prayer for the light of the Lord's countenance seems to suggest some darkness, and it is certain clouds will show themselves at times in the conjugal heaven.

"This union which we to-day are celebrating has already demanded sacrifices. The husband has had to leave his country and people, and the bride has had to leave the side of a dearly loved mother. In the future, too, be sure the reverses of life will fall to your lot. Do not then forget the prayer of David: 'Lord lift Thou up the light of Thy countenance upon us.'

"It will be necessary for you, if you are to fulfill thoroughly the duty of marriage, to fulfil the duty of love in your mutual relations. In that relation man is the head and woman is the heart. The psalmist's prayer will also be your help when you have to bear your mutual burdens, for in marriage two sinners are united, each having his and her own faults. Finally, it is indispensable to the unity whereto you have been called.

"According to the command of God these two shall be one. Now only love can form and preserve this tie. But if you wish this bond not to be loosened your hearts must be filled with prayer, 'Lord, lift Thou up the light of Thy countenance upon us.'"

After the chaplain's address and after the nuptial benediction had been pronounced, the bride and bridegroom exchanged gold rings according to the Dutch custom.

A Family Bible Presented.

Queen Wilhelmina and Duke Henry rose as the wife of the chaplain handed them a large blue bound Bible, in accordance with Dutch custom. They then walked back to their chairs and the audience resumed their seats with them.

The chaplain spoke again, briefly.

The whole wedding party then proceeded to the reception room attached to the church, where the Queen tenderly embraced first her mother and then her husband. The Queen's mother, too, kissed the latter. The bridegroom then kissed his bride and his own mother.

The newly wedded pair received the congratulations of their families, and drove to the palace.

A gala wedding breakfast followed.

PRINCE OF THE NETHERLANDS.

Will Have to Provide For and Educate the Children and Defend His Royal Wife.

The Hague, Feb. 9.—The Queen and Prince Heinrich have bound themselves by the marriage contract in accordance with the statutes to recognize the husband as the head of the matrimonial union, and to provide for and educate the children of the union. The husband assumes the responsibility of representing the wife in all civil actions.

The wife promises to obey the husband, but by special recent act of the Dutch Parliament she is exempted from the usual promise, "to dwell with him wherever he deems it best to live."

The contract also provides that the Queen shall allow the husband interest on 50,00,000 guilders, and that he shall receive no income from the state except in the case of the Queen's death. It is further provided that the Queen shall yield obedience to the husband as wife, but not as Queen, and the husband relinquishes the right to administer the wife's property.

The Court Gazette publishes a decree signed by the Queen, announcing that the Prince of the Netherlands will have a seat in the Advisory State Council.

That Holocaust in Russia.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 9.—Despatches from Baku say all the available hospitals are filled with sufferers from the fire, while the sheds on the Fair Grounds are crowded with homeless people. The fire broke out in the evening at meal time, and spread so rapidly that many people were unable to escape from their homes. The fire even cut off the retreat of the spectators, thirty of whom perished. It is believed the conflagration was started by a discharged employe, for the purpose of revenge. The total number of victims is not obtainable at present.

MR. SPEAKER ELECTED

Mr. L.P. Brodeur, M.P. For Rouville, Chosen For the House.

SWEARING IN THE MEMBERS.

Formal Proceedings in the House of Commons—The First Business to Sign the Roll at King Edward's Bidding—Dr. Macdonald of Huron Elected Deputy Speaker—Members Introduced.

Ottawa, Feb. 7. The ceremony of signing the oath for the ninth Parliament of Canada, and for the first time King Edward VII. took place in the House of Commons at noon yesterday. At ten minutes before the hour the roll, in all its bluntness of colour was brought to and laid on the table before the clerk's desk, just behind the seat of the Speaker, in the usually dim, on either side were placed a brightly burnished gold mace, with Pride in soft leather, and a massive base of ebony. Silver Bible, silver edges and clasps, and a beautiful silver crucifix in the centre. This is the Canadian Parliament Bible, members. Sharp at noon, Sir John Bourinot, Clerk of the House, rose and said some minutes were spent in the exchanging of greetings, with the freeings and being introduced to the new Speaker, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, James Sutherland, Hon. John Haggart, Hon. John Costigan, Dr. Sproule, Hon. T. Wallace, Mr. B. Blakeslee and others.

The first business of the roll was Dr. Sproule followed by Hon. John Costigan, Hon. John Haggart, and Hon. James Sutherland. As fast as the members came signed their names, and as the roll filling in two sections, so that members on each side of the table could sign at the same time. The oath was very simple, the heading of the roll, "Declaration of Allegiance and Oath of Allegiance of members of the Dominion of Canada, which they signed—I do swear that I will be faithful and bear true allegiance to His Majesty King Edward VII."

At 12 o'clock the Commons gathered, the Clerk, Sir John Bourinot, presiding, and were summoned to the Senate, where the Deputy Speaker announced that the House would not be ready for business. The Senate was also complete. The Commons had, as usual, the Speaker's chair empty, therefore return to their chamber and elect a Speaker, and report the result, when the speech from the throne will be delivered.

The commons thereupon returned to their chamber and Sir John Bourinot having taken his place at the first step of the dais leading up to the speaker's chair, the Hon. Mr. Brodeur, M.P. for Rouville, Que., was chosen Speaker and duly confirmed.

Dr. Macdonald of Huron, was elected Deputy Speaker and chairman of committee. The House then separated.

In the Senate the Senators attended in the room of Mr. Speaker Clerk of the Senate, and subscribed the roll of Parliament and the oath of qualification. At 4 o'clock before the commons were summoned. Hon. Messrs. Legrand Jones, Robert McKay, A. T. Wood, H. Valentine Ellis and George McHugh were sworn in and produced the writ of summons, took the oath, and subscribed the roll.

THE NEW LEADER.

Mr. E. L. Borden of Halifax the Choice of the Conservative Caucus—Ratify Needed Locally.

Ottawa, Feb. 7.—The Conservative caucus reassembled last night at 8 o'clock and broke up at 11.15. The attendance made by Mr. W. R. Brock, the chairman, at the close was that Mr. R. L. Borden of Halifax had been chosen Parliamentary Leader. The choice was entirely unanimous," said Mr. Brock, "and the feeling was almost that the man voted for it. 'Mr. Borden is elected without any restrictions upon his action. A committee was appointed to arrange for a banquet to the new leader, consisting of Messrs. W. H. Bennett (Chairman), Clarke, Pope, Gananoque, Prior, Roche, Maclean and Kemp."

Three Hours Discussion.

Mr. Brock was emphatic in his statement that there was absolute unanimity at the caucus, and it is, therefore surprising that over three hours should have been consumed in discussing the matter. It will be remembered that the title given Mr. Borden is Parliamentary leader. It is to be presumed that the convention which so shortly to meet will select a leader for the party, not merely the Parliamentary wing as well as formulate a policy. The committee appointed to draft a resolution to Sir Charles Tupper's valedictory have not completed their labors, but will do so to-morrow.

Badly Needed in Nova Scotia.

Halifax, Feb. 7—The situation prevails in local Tory circles that Mr. E. L. Borden's form of leadership will be short. It was arranged some time ago that Mr. Borden would contest Halifax Federal politics to enter the Dominical arena. The Nova Scotia local elections will probably occur next spring, and the Tory party managers here urged, get a leader to contest Halifax at the this Province. Mr. Borden is the only man available, and it is now alleged that after this Parliament he will go into Provincial politics and leader of the Local Opposition. The Tories have four members out of a House of 38, and not one of the four even pretends to leadership. It is, therefore, a safe wager that Mr. Borden will not stand in the way of the humiliation of Ontario leaders in the Dominion Parliament.

THE SPEECH FROM THE THRONE.

Our Brave Soldiers, the Australian Commonwealth, the Royal Visit, the Pacific Cable, the Reverse Duties, Etc., the Tariff Policy Touched Upon—Investigation Proposed for Such Abuses.

Ottawa, Feb. 8—The recent death of Queen Victoria threw a gloom over the ceremonial of the opening of Parliament yesterday, which was emphasized by the deep mourning worn by the ladies who were present and the black ties displayed by the gentlemen. The Senate chamber were unique in that the brightness and rich color usually displayed on variable features of the inauguration day were almost lost in the sombre hue of mourning took the place of the gray Tints which fashion and the occasion usually call for. Yesterday, and the Senate chamber offered the spectacle of an array of black-clothed senators, relieved only by the red and gold of military uniforms and the brilliant ribbons, characterized by a hush and quiet unknown in the chamber of late, save the battle and hum of voices, preceding the formal opening of Parliament.

The Commons having been summoned to the Senate Chamber, Mr. Speaker Clerk, formally reported the house's election, and then His Excellency read the speech from the throne in French and the speech from the throne, as follows:

The Speech From the Throne.

Honorable Gentlemen of the Senate:
Gentlemen of the House of Commons:

Since our last meeting the Empire has been bereaved by the death of the demise of her late Majesty Queen Victoria. The universal regret, and sympathy with which the tidings of her Majesty's death, was received throughout the entire civilized world afford the best evidence of the manner in which she has at all times discharged her duties, both as a woman and as a sovereign, and how her unprecedentedly long and glorious reign, and the loyalty and love that in no portion of her vast territories, upon these subjects, more profoundly felt than in the Dominion of Canada. Her Majesty King Edward VII. has assumed the throne, and has announced that the House would not be ready for business. The Senate was also complete. The Commons had, as usual, the Speaker's chair empty, therefore return to their chamber and elect a Speaker, and report the result, when the speech from the throne will be delivered.

The commons thereupon returned to their chamber and Sir John Bourinot having taken his place at the first step of the dais leading up to the speaker's chair, the Hon. Mr. Brodeur, M.P. for Rouville, Que., was chosen Speaker and duly confirmed.

Dr. Macdonald of Huron, was elected Deputy Speaker and chairman of committee. The House then separated.

In the Senate the Senators attended in the room of Mr. Speaker Clerk of the Senate, and subscribed the roll of Parliament and the oath of qualification. At 4 o'clock before the commons were summoned. Hon. Messrs. Legrand Jones, Robert McKay, A. T. Wood, H. Valentine Ellis and George McHugh were sworn in and produced the writ of summons, took the oath, and subscribed the roll.

The Canadian Premier's Tribute to Queen Victoria.

THE MESSAGE TO THE KING.

The First Constitutional Sovereign the World Ever Saw—The Glories of Her Reign—Her Majesty's Great Character—Advancing Colonial Development—Her Friendship for the United States.

Ottawa, Feb. 8.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier in the House yesterday, in an eloquent and scholarly terms, moved an address of condolence, in the fitting upon the death of her late Majesty the Queen. The motion was seconded by Mr. R. L. Borden, leader of the Opposition, who spoke with profit and was cheered unanimously in silence. Almost every member of the House was present, and the galleries were packed to the doors. Hundreds were turned away.

Sir Wilfrid's Tribute.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier, on rising to move the address to the King said: "We have passed under the shadow of a death, which has caused more universal sorrow than any death that has recorded on the pages of history. In these words there is no exaggeration. Not only the United Kingdom, but the Empire, and the United Islands—and the Continent, which forms the United Kingdom, and extends the Sovereignty of Queen Victoria, are in mourning, deep, sincere and heartfelt in the sincerity of the grief and the cottages of the poor and the palaces of the rich, for the Queen, in her long reign, had endeared herself to her people and veneration. There is sincere and unfeigned sorrow in all the countries of Europe, who had learned to admire and to envy the many qualities of Queen Victoria. Her reign was a genuine grief in the neighboring nations of Europe. Her Majesty's reign was peaceful, for the Queen was a lover of peace, and her influence was always used in the cause of peace, and it was much relied upon when the sovereign of the United Kingdom should come."

Sir Wilfrid then spoke of the progress of the Victorian age. Sir Wilfrid said that Queen Victoria was first absolutely constitutional sovereign of ever had, and the Queen Victoria was the first of all sovereigns who was absolutely impersonal in the political world. Her influence was all-powerful in the reign of Queen Victoria in the Empire, and contributed to colonial development, based on loyalty and respect, including a toward imperial expansion.

Sir Wilfrid said the Canadian rebellion of the first year of the Queen's reign. Let me say at once," he declared, "that it is the truth, the truth that the rebellion in Lower Canada was a rebellion against the authority of the young Queen. Let me say that the rebellion in Upper Canada was a rebellion against the Government which then prevailed. Let me say that the Queen's reign anyone had reached the age of discretion of Canada, the prophecy would have been fulfilled, that the Queen's reign of a visionary dreamer. To-day we have the fulfilment of the dream of the nation of Canada. I use the word nation advisedly, for the nation of Canada acknowledges the supremacy of the Queen, maintaining that supremacy by only a nominal tie, at the present moment composed of soldiers, of the Queen's Canadian subjects, of Indian volunteers.

Sir Wilfrid dwelt upon the blessings of constitutional government, and then spoke of the friendship during the American Civil War, for securing the neutrality of Canada, securing the modification of the Alabama claims, and the Fenian raids, and the Trent Affair, and the Venezuela Boundary Dispute, and being in the first years of her own reign, and in the last years of her years to flow down the checks of her people, and to mingle with the mourning the previous four years on a national scale, and, he can say that, if it did not bring sorrow, it would have checked the joy and clouds and to-day, in the time of England's sorrow, the Queen's people have flocked to their allegiance to the country of which they were secured in the eighteenth century, but perhaps it is not too much to say, but perhaps it is not too much to say, that the Canadian people inaugurated by the hand of the Queen Victoria, and those who have contented, again, not by legal bonds, but by the affection, as strong perhaps as if sanctioned by the law of the two countries.

Sir Wilfrid spoke of the simplicity of the late Queen's character. "She was a woman," said Sir Wilfrid, "like to her," said the Premier, "the people of the United Kingdom, and the people in her first year, she dressed her court, and the court dressed for her court. Nay, I boldly say she lives in the hearts of her subjects, and the memory of her reign, of her pure profile stands more carved in the hearts of her people than the profile of posterity will ratify the sentiment of the poet, Byron, when he says: 'She wrecked woman. She created royalty.' The world is better for her life. Sir, the Queen is no more. Let us with one heart say, 'Long live the King!'

"I propose to the House that we should unite in a resolution to His Majesty, conveying the expression of our sorrow at the loss in his mother, a loss which we may say with every respect is ours also. Only a few days ago His Majesty sent a message to his broad dominions, in which he said it would be his duty in life to follow in the footsteps of his great and noble mother. We did not want that assurance on the part of His Majesty. We knew that the wisdom of the great Queen which she has succeeded on the throne, would be his guide, and we have believed from the first that he who was a wise Prince would be a wise King, and that the policy which has made the British Empire so great under his predecessor would be the policy, and that the reign of King Edward VII. would also be a continuance of the reign of Queen Victoria. Let us offer the King the expression of our loyalty, which does not spring from any sycophancy and self-interest, but from a feeling that duty appreciate the blessings of our connection with the Empire, and now beg to move.

"To His King's Most Excellent Majesty: Gracious sovereign,—We, your Majesty's subjects, in Canada, assembled, humbly beg leave to approach Your Majesty with the expression of our deep and heartfelt sorrow at the loss of our beloved sovereign lady, Queen Victoria.

"In common with our fellow-subjects in all parts of the Empire, we deplore the loss of a sovereign whose high and exalted virtues have for three generations commanded the respect and admiration of the world.

"In the hearts of the Canadian people, we mourn for the beloved sovereign under whose fostering care first took root the germs of a nationhood, and to whose wise and beneficent rule we are in a large measure its growth and prosperity.

May it please your Majesty to accept and spread all these sentiments which we have now ventured to express, and there lies come to each one of us a sense of profound thankfulness, that we say it with all possible respect and truth, make bold to express our sense of loyalty to Your Majesty's person and throne, and to express our sincere and unfeigned hopefulness and well-being of Your Majesty's reign, and will suffer no diminution under Your Majesty's gracious rule.

The Conservative Leader.

Mr. R. L. Borden (Halifax): I have much to add. The Premier is the very eloquent and appropriate mover of the address of condolence. Friend, the Prime Minister, has moved, and the Leader of the Opposition, it will meet with the cordial approval and support of every member of the House.

The fifth honorable gentleman has well referred to the loyalty of this country, at the time when the Queen was called upon to mourn, and its condition at the present time, when the Queen has so recently succeeded princess, having no means of inter-communication with Northern Canada, and the Canadian Northern Columbia an unknown country.

Canada is a loyal country, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, governed by the same principles, with the same general laws, and instead of retarding we see our submission and returning to the same a stately line the battles of the Empire across the Atlantic, and a change which has been to so great a degree under the influence of her late Majesty.

I may be permitted to add a word with respect to the interest which Her Majesty always took in her colonies on this side of the Atlantic. We well remember how anxious she was for the Confederation of the British provinces, and the Confederation of the Dominion of Canada, and the prophecy which was made by the Queen's Ministers, the prophecy would be fulfilled, and the Queen's reign would be a visionary dreamer. To-day we have the fulfilment of the dream of the nation of Canada. borrow for her death, in the fullness of her years, there is mingled a note of triumph for the character and the work she has left behind her.

"With respect to the accession of His Most Gracious Majesty, it might be well to recall that he, in Canada, where he was yet a young man, laid the cornerstone of this very building, in which we now assemble. The commentator which he then laid might well have been thought a symbol of the great Dominion which has since grown up—as the right honorable Premier has said, there has been great development during the reign of the late Majesty. The foundations have been laid during that time. Let we hope, as we all believe, that the structure which will be erected upon these foundations in the reign of King Edward VII. will be a stately one, a structure of which all the Empire and not Canada alone, may well be proud."

The resolution was then adopted. Sir Wilfrid moved that the Senate concur in the resolution, and the House adjourned.

A BIG PROJECT.

Dominion Government Said to Be Taking Steps to Buy All Canada's Telegraph Systems.

New York, Feb. 5.—The Herald prints the following from its Toronto correspondence: "The Dominion Government has practically taken steps to purchase the telegraph system of Canada, extend them throughout the country and place them in connection with the Postoffice Department. It is also seriously proposed to follow the example of the Bell telephone, but in the case of the latter municipalities will be licensed, as in Britain, to operate the system within their own areas.

The question of the absolute control of the Canadian telegraphic service has long been a bugbear, but not until the present Liberal Government came into office has it been possible to talk of purchase. With a surplus amounting to over $7,000,000 for 1899-1901, and a prospect of a surplus of $10,000,000 for 1901-1902, the plan seems feasible.

The great network of Canadian statistics is to be cables owned by the Britain under the Atlantic and Pacific and land lines on poles or wires owned by the Dominion, creating the Dominion a world's power, by giving the telegraph system of the globe to a code absolutely under Imperial control.

The business men of Canada are believed to be in favor of the scheme, and before the Liberal Ministers who forced on Britain the adoption of the Pacific cable, the telegraph bill has actually reduced the loss on the Dominion system, and it is hoped to make a national telegraph system a reality.

The Great Northwestern Telegraph Company and the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, which control, will sell the wires in Canada. The Great Northern Company of both concerns is being made very quietly, and it is said, a connection will be twixt the Government and these two companies be completed on an early date, a bill dealing with the subject will go before the next session of the Dominion Parliament.

The Canadian Pacific system extends to about 10,000 miles, and it is difficult to get at the exact cost, because it is mixed up with the railway accounts, but the cost is estimated at from $7,500,000 to $8,000,000.

The Great Northwestern system will probably come near this amount, while the Bell Telephone Company of Canada has a capital of $5,000,000, so that the purchase of these concerns would be a probable expenditure of from $20,000,000 to $25,000,000. The Government owns several telegraph lines, and in almost all Railway charters clauses providing for the purchase of the lines. In any case, the capital will be amply secured, and the employes would prefer to be Government officials to corporation employes.

It will be provided, in case the Government prosecutes the scheme, that newspaper telegraphic rates cannot be increased, and facilities will be given to news agencies or newspapers running special wires, as in Britain. The only fear of commercial men is that United States telegraph companies may raise the rates, or otherwise act in antagonism to a Government board.

Keene and Fenelon Falls hockey teams crossed sticks here on Friday night of last week the result being 11 to 1 in favor of the home team. On Monday night the Fenelon Falls team played the Norwood team at the latter place, the result being 5 to 3 in favor of the home team. The return match of the Norwood and Fenelon Falls series will be played here on Friday night next, and a hot game is expected, as the order of things will be reversed in the coming struggle. At Norwood the rink is much larger than here, and it is understood there are no guard boards around the rink. This is the Falls team at a great disadvantage, and we trust they will be enabled to meet the opposite state of affairs when they come here, and consequently win for a victory for the home team.

On Monday of this week Mr. Wm. Smithson, of Fenelon township, received a telegram that his son Arthur was dead at Montreal. The news came as a shock to the family and the community, where Mr. Smitherson has resided for about the past two years. He visited during the last two months, but did not appear to be suffering from that he became affected with the disease which ultimately proved to be a useful life. On that date he was taken to the hospital in Montreal, but later on it proved to be something of a more—diphtheria. He leaves a father, two sisters, three brothers and a host of mourners his untimely demise. His wife and child, who reside at Victoria, and one of Mr. Sadlay, and niece of Mr. John McSwyn, both of Lindsay. Mr. Smitherson's friends throughout the county of Victoria will have the sincere sympathy of the family well-wishers and acquaintances in their sad bereavement.

The young sons of our town have formed a Debating Club. They meet every Monday evening in McIrath's hall, Porchin. The last night's evening's discussion was, "Which is the most useful, a trade or a liberal profession? The gentlemen chosen for opposite sides were Mr. J. Beale for the affirmative, and Mr. J. Broom, Jr., for the negative. Mr. G. L. Ainsworth was chairman. Considerable notes were well argued and the chairman found it difficult to decide owing to the subjects being so closely interlinked. G. B. RENNIE,
GEO. DOUGLAS, } Auditors.

To the Reeve and Municipal Council of Mariposa:

GENTLEMEN,—We have completed the audit of the accounts of your Treasurer for the year ending December 31st, 1900, and beg to submit the following statements:

FIRST,—Detailed statement of Receipts and Expenditures;

SECOND,—Abstract statement of Receipts and Expenditures;

THIRD,—Statement of Assets and Liabilities;

FOURTH,—Statement of Drainage and School Debenture.

We find that the books of the Treasurer have been kept in a most excellent manner, all payments by him being from properly authorized orders, signed by proper vouchers and receipts produced for them. We find the cash balance at the credit of the Municipality on the 31st of December, 1900, to be as follows: In the Bank of Montreal, Lindsay, ten thousand three hundred and thirty dollars and 88-100 cents, ($10,330.88); Cash in the hands of the Treasurer, one hundred and forty-nine dollars and 80-100 cents ($149.80). Total cash on hand, $10,489.68.

We find, too, that your Treasurer presented a semi-annual statement to you of the still outlies in the County Treasurer's office, Lindsay, and unchanged in any particular.

We desire to express our thanks to the Clerk and Treasurer for the very courteous manner in which they assisted us in our work.

We find that an omission of $300 of personal income assessed to William Chambers was not placed, also the item of Rent, $100 assessed on the Dominion Hotel, but added on the assessment Roll, but added on the Collector's Roll by the Clerk and taken paid. Also west half Lot No. 3, Concession 9, was assessed in School Section No. 10 instead of School Section No. 3.

Respectfully submitted,

G. B. RENNIE,

"THE SEAMY SIDE OF DEMOCRACY"

Thoughtful and Instructive Lecture Delivered by Dr. Russell, K.C., M.P., of Nova Scotia.

UNDER THE AUSPICES OF THE COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE LITERARY SOCIETY, FRIDAY EVENING

In response to many requests we have decided to find space for a practically verbatim report of the excellent lecture on Democracy delivered by Dr. Benjamin Russell, M.A., D.C.L., K.C., M.P., We bespeak a careful study of the distinction, points of which will appear in three issues. Dr. Russell said:

I. INFLAMMABILITY OF DEMOCRACY.

Few things are more striking to the student of political literature than the change that has come over the spirit of observant and thoughtful writers in recent years in considering the tendencies and investigating the problems of popular government. You will recall the spirit in which Emerson, in one of his essays, refers to the development of American popular institutions as the growth of a social and political condition of advance exceeding that of any thing the world had theretofore enjoyed. If you will contrast this cheerful and hopeful prophecy with the tone in which the writers of the New York Nation, for instance, feel compelled from time to time to comment on recent developments in American political life, you will understand the nature of the change to which I have referred. Had Emerson lived to witness these developments I am afraid it would have shaken the serene faith of the buoyant optimism of his temperament to restrain him from some angry expressions of disappointment and chagrin. The same contrast is observable if we compare the spirit in which extensions of the franchise were hailed by the great Reform Bill of 1832 down to the more recent measures of reforming administration, hailed as decided by their champions and hailed by the great majority of political writers and speakers, with the sober and chastened spirit in which the participation of the masses in the work of government is viewed by many of the best writers and deepest thinkers of the present day. Time was, not long ago, when it was considered that no one but an old fogy or a man pronounced and confirmed pessimist could question that the prevalence of Democracy necessarily implied the greatest good of the greatest number, that under a democratic system of government all would go well because all were enfranchised, or that a government could not but otherwise than beneficient and secure. Some there may be doubt well aware that in these days it is not safe to say the direct opposite of the pronounced pessimists and alarmists, but grave and serious thinkers who are neither pessimists nor alarmists, who point out and emphasize the great and serious dangers confronting those communities in which democratic movement prevails.

Broad Based Upon a People's Will

The best that the champions of Democracy have succeeded in doing has been to prove very clearly and forcibly indeed, that no other system of government is so liable to abuse as Democracy, that no other system is in fact so inflammable, that Democracy is, in a sense, a dangerous experiment, and that it is peculiarly and only committed to popular institutions, and not to any form of constitutional existence, but in all probability will first force its attention and development both as regards the good and evil which they are destined to spread and the social conditions which they are destined to extend. Under those circumstances it is not unreasonable to wish that things were otherwise in this regard, but that they are, or to fear the future developments and extensions of the spirit which has made the brave and hopeful hearts. Should we wish that the spirit of Democracy be less of Sir Henry Maine and Mr. Lecky, it would be little to waste in useless regrets the energies that would all be more well directed in endeavoring in vigorous effort; knowing well that no vain regrets could ever bring back the shadow upon the dial.

The moral of Democracy, as of life in Morse on, not all your piety nor all your wit Shall turn back to cancel half a line, Nor all your tears bring back a word of it.

While, however, we recognize in this necessity, in the inevitableness of democratic institutions a kind of widely extended franchise, while we admit the force of the argument that any other system of government in modern times, at least since the rise of British extraction, it can serve no good purpose to shut our eyes to the defects by which it is marred, or the dangers to which it is attended. We shall only be

Living in a false position

if we assume its absolute perfection and its perfect security of with the easy-going optimism which is perhaps too much the spirit of the western world. We take it for granted that men may approximate to us, and imperfectly live up to our ideal, but we forget that it is not so matter what mistakes we may make, or what we may have undone; still further, if, with the experience of the lessons of history, we accept as gospel truth the maxim that we can argue that the voice of the people is the voice of God, forgetful that it was a fair sample of many of the people of this one, we do not even argue as a reason for desiring the banishment of Aristotle that "he was tired of hearing him called the just," and that on a yet more tragic occasion it was the voice of the people that crucified the Son of Man, but Barabbas.

We have had some recent illustrations, on a scale of magnitude of reference and grandeur, of the dangers to which a democratic community and government may be exposed. How still we ever be able to forget the spirit of insane panic which a few years ago swept over the whole expanse of the great American republic, when every newspaper in the land, every one of very few notable and most prime worthy exceptions, when it seemed that even the religious guides and teachers of the land, when three-fourths of the re-called and miscelled religious newspapers of the country, when the presumably devout and pious author of Hon Hur, when the Senate of the United States, despite the better and wiser counsels of the blind old Chaplain,—the Senate once fifty described as

"Guardian of the law
Where Clay once lifted and Webster's sturdy brow Brooded above bolts that all the tempests knew."

—when the House of Representatives in full cry, with hardly a dissentient voice, were ready, cordially and gleefully, to welcome the proposal, made by a British Parliament, for no cause whatever that an intelligent mind could understand, for no cause that could be formulated in terms that any international authority could recognize, the unlimited use of a foundling child, which not a single man, woman or child in the United States could claim a particle of genuine interest, as to the merits of which it was quite as well possible that the wisest statesman or the most learned jurist in the United Republic could have any rational conviction. How can we explain the apparent unanimity the democracy of the United States evinced on the occasion to enter upon a struggle which, at its close, must have annihilated the American fleet, laid every seaboard city of the United States in ashes, arrested the progress of civilization throughout the whole world, and left hundreds of thousands of widows and orphans to weep across the Atlantic to be cared for by public and private charity, or to drag out their lives in penury and sorrow.

Devastated the Fairest Lands of Canada,

I do not refer to a still more recent episode on which the verdict of history is yet to be made up. I do not say that the resolutions that led up to the Spanish-American war were wrong, or that the events of which they were the precursors are to be regretted. On the contrary, I have that the Spanish war was inevitable, and I think the best thing for the expansion on which the Republic has entered, the disposition of Mr. J. H. Walker, Q.M. C.A. Secretary, was granted the loan of the Old Town Hall benches for the winter months.

Ald. Jackson pointed out that as Town Commissioner Chalmers was not in the city, the work for which $1,000 had been paid to Engineer Ashbridge last year, it would be necessary to supply him with certain instruments, he would cost about $100. It was agreed that the Commissioner should go to Toronto to select the same.

Fire and Water Lighting Committee.

Ald. Robson, chairman, read the following report of the Committee:

Your Committee have little private business to report, but would recommend that the Lighting Committee be authorized to obtain the services of Mr. Ashbridge, Toronto, to report on the Lighting Committee's proposition, which appears to us to be a very fair one, and which requires that before raising the rates the Lighting Committee must offer to purchase the plant of an existing company (of which there is only by arbitration; or if you do not choose to pay the commercial lighting you can offer to purchase street lighting part of it can be separated without injury. I think there is no question in regard to purchasing the plant should be severed without injury, that is, if we purchase at all. I do not know what position the Company would take in regard to the contract with the town, and as their old arc lamps were unsuitable for the present system, they could not be used again, and that they had to provide a new system of lamps, and they be required to remove the lamps, poles and wires of the Company. The committee, thought nothing should be done in the matter at present, however, the council do not intend to enter into a contract, I can only repeat the advice, as I cannot see what right the Company have to place on the streets with poles, wires and lamps in use. Whether the Company have any street lighting plant or not, must appeal to boy before putting in a plant is a question, it is not so badly worded, it has not been judicial to a member of the council to give an opinion. I would point out, however, that if does not seem to apply to a plant where power is brought from a distance, in this case, and could hardly apply to a plant such as Lindsay is, I think, however, the proper course would be to enquire and see if the Company make any claim, and also that before entering into any contract the ratepayers (as a by-law to put in a plant would have to be on charge) the council should ascertain the best course at the Company offer to agree to, and then the ratepayers would have to vote on the question whether they preferred that course, or the proposition of the Company, with this end in view I would suggest that the Company, and then a conference with the Company, and the ratepayers, when the pros and cons could be discussed, and we would be in a position to take hold of and discuss the matter. Of course these are only suggestions of mine, and I do not ask the council see fit.

Ald. Jackson other points and reasons which might be mentioned, but I think the Council have taught here to mention here. If, however, there is any more information which you want that I can supply, I shall be happy to do so, as I feel, as I have stated on former occasions, that this is the most important matter the council have to deal with, and it should be more to be carefully considered.—Yours truly,

G. H. HOPKINS, Town Solicitor.

It was decided to invite the members of Fenelon Falls to meet the council at the earliest possible date to quote final prices.

Council Committees Meet

FINAL REPORT OF SPECIAL LIGHTING COMMITTEE PRESENTED.

Light, Heat & Power Co. will be Asked to get Down to Business and Quote in Writing their Best Prices for Arc and Incandescent Lamps.

The Board of Works, Finance, Town Property and Police and Lighting committees met in the clerk's office on Thursday evening to transact business. Ald. Sinclair was absent owing to illness.

Board of Works.

Ald. Tomkburn chairman, read a number of accounts some of which were found to be certified to while others failed to state by whom the liability had been incurred, despite the communication that all orders for goods or work, must be issued on printed form, said order to be signed by party issuing same and to be attached to account when sent in for payment. The accounts lacking certification were referred back.

Town Commissioner Chalmer's estimate of work for 1901 was left over, being a somewhat lengthy document in the sense that it recommends work in excess of $1,000. It was pointed out in evening will be specially set aside for careful consideration of the various recommendations in the estimate. Accounts from the Waterworks Commissioner were also held over, pending a meeting with the Commissioner of the Council of various questions in dispute.

Fire and Water Committee.

Ald. Hore, chairman, read a letter from Fire Commissioner Chief Fire Department, to make provision, when pipeline Up Year's estimates, for the supply of certain deficiencies in the fire department, amongst which, of course, the long-promised fire hall. The matter of the Hydro-Electric Power Co. lighting question has been settled in

The letter from Mr. Scott, special agent for the Bell Tel. Co., with reference to the daily inspection of the new wires and poles to the Legislature to get the right to purchase same by arbitration. If the Company refuse to do the committee's terms I would advise a contract. We will not notice it in only five years, with right of renewal for five years, or continuous from year to year to be determined on six months notice, and then absolutely terminates, giving the town right to do as they like. Five years is not a very long term, and as the rates are bound to take any number of lights, but may take as many or less as they choose, I think it is advantageous, and before the end of the five years arrangement may be made for the purchase of the whole plant.

Of course if the Company will not come to the terms proposed by the council, in view of the voice of the ratepayers, I do not see their way to entering into any contract, and would like to consider the question of lighting the town with other wires. There is the Hydro-Carbon lamp which may be anything to promise, but putting in, or if you propose putting in a number of lamps to test, I think you must recollect there is the statute known as the Municipal Act, which requires that before raising the rates the council must offer to purchase the plant of an existing company (of which there is only by arbitration; or if you do not choose to pay the commercial lighting you can offer to purchase street lighting part of it can be separated without injury. I think there is no question in regard to purchasing the plant should be severed without injury, that is, if we purchase at all. I do not know what position the Company would take in regard to the contract with the town, and as their old arc lamps were unsuitable for the present system, they could not be used again, and that they had to provide a new system of lamps, and they be required to remove the lamps, poles and wires of the Company. G. H. HOPKINS, Town Solicitor.

It was decided to invite the members of Fenelon Falls to meet the council at the earliest possible date to quote final prices.

The Company want this made subject to their present rights, if any, in regard to street lighting, or, in the alternative, suggest that the Company should be paid for lighting on the commission of the contract, or arbitration, and that not for large poles and wires. The committee take the ground that the Company have no rights, and object to leaving the matter open to be determined in five or ten years, when it would be difficult to get evidence. The matter should be settled now. You will notice that the contract does not interfere with poles or wires for private lighting, but only wires and lamps, poles and wires used exclusively for street lighting shall be removed, and that at the end of the term the town shall be at liberty to do their own lighting; without purchasing, or offering to purchase any poles, wires or property of the Company. The date in my resolution of what was agreed to at the public meeting when the matter was discussed, and in my opinion the town should under no consideration agree to anything else. As regards purchasing the plant at the end of the term, that is not so objectionable as a matter of principle, but is a question of monetary consideration for the light. The position of the committee is that at the end of the contract the town will buy the lamps if they want them and they can get them at a fair price, or the Company may sell them to whom they choose, but that the town should not be compelled to buy old lamps that may be unsuitable for out of date.

I think the above expresses the present position of the matter, and subject that the feeling of the committee was that if the Company are prepared to concede what they asked, as indicated above, the committee were prepared to recommend the council to enter into a contract, and therefore be putting in a town giant. Of course the Company have to accept, and endorse the matter, unless the council are prepared to do nothing.

Personally, I am strongly in favor of municipal ownership, but I believe in owning and controlling both public and private lighting. I do not think any system should be complete with the Pension Falls water power, and I am glad I think that town should own. I so advised last year, and can only strongly repeat the advice, and that everything should be subject to the rights of the town, and that we should, if necessary, approach the Legislature to get the right to purchase same by arbitration. If the Company refuse to the committee's terms I would advise a contract. We will notice it in only five years, with right of renewal for five years, or continuous from year to year to be determined on six months notice, and then absolutely terminates, giving the town right to do as they like. Five years is not a very long term, and as the rates are bound to take any number of lights, but may take as many or less as they choose, I think it is advantageous, and before the end of the five years arrangement may be made for the purchase of the whole plant.

THE FACE BEHIND THE MASK

Hubert was gazing slowly and critically around, taking note of everything. Something glittering flashed on the floor under the mantel, and he went over and picked it up.

"What have you there?" asked Sir Norman in surprise, for the boy had started so suddenly and flushed so violently that it might have astonished anyone.

"Only a shoe buckle—gentleman's. Big enough for it."

Though he spoke in his usual careless way, and half-hummed the air of one of Lord Rochester's love songs, he watched his face as Hubert examined it. It was a diamond buckle, exquisitely set, and of great beauty and value, but Sir Norman knew nothing of it.

"There are initials upon it—see there!" said Hubert, pointing, and still watching him with the same powerful glance. "The letters C. S. That can't stand for Count L'Estrange."

"Who, then, can it stand for?" inquired Sir Norman, looking at him fixedly, and with far more penetration than the count page had given him credit for. "I am certain you know."

"I suspect," said the boy, emphatically, "nothing more; and if it is as I believe, I will bring you news of Leoline before you are two hours older."

"How am I to know you are not deceiving me? I will not betray her into the power of the Earl of Rochester—if, indeed, she be not in his power already!"

"She is not in it, and never will be brought into it. I feel an odd interest in this matter, and I will be true to you . . . . . though why I should be I really don't know. I give you my word of honor that I will do what I can to find Leoline and to restore her to you, and I have never yet broken my word of honor to any man," said Hubert drawing himself up.

"Well I will trust you, because I cannot do otherwise better," said Sir Norman, rather delefully; "but why not, let me go with you?"

"No, that I would never do! I must go alone, and you must trust me implicitly. Will you give your hand upon it?"

"Nay" shook hands silently, went downstairs and stood for a moment at the door.

"You'll find me here at any hour between this and morning," said Sir Norman; "farewell now, and heaven speed you!"

The boy waved his hand in adieu and started off at a sharp pace. Sir Norman turned to the opposite direction for a short walk, to cool the fever in his blood, and think over all that had happened. As he went slowly along in the shadow of the houses, he suddenly tripped up over something lying in his path, and was nearly precipitated over it.

Stooping down to examine the stumbling-block, he proved to be the rigid body of a man, and that man was Ormiston, stark and dead, with his face upturned to the calm night sky!

CHAPTER XVII.

When Malcolm Ormiston, with his usual good sense and penetration, took himself off and left Leoline and Sir Norman tête-a-tête, his steps turned as mechanically as the needle does to the Pole toward La Masque's house. Before it he wandered, around it he wandered, like an uneasy ghost, lost in speculation about the hidden face and fearfully important about the flight of time. If La Masque saw him hovering aloof and unable to make himself go perfectly it might touch her obdurate heart and induce her to shorten the dreary interval, and summon him to her presence at once. That little lamp—one opened the door, and his heart beat with anticipation; someone pronounced his name, and, going over, he saw the animated bag of bones—otherwise his lady-love's vassal and porter.

"La Masque says," began the attenuated jackey, and Ormiston's heart nearly jumped out of his mouth, "that she can't have anybody hanging about her house like its shadow, and she wants you to go away, and keep away, till the time fixed for you has gone[pass]."

So saying, the skeleton shut the door, and Ormiston's heart went down like lead. "There being nothing for it but obedience, however, he turned and reluctantly turned away, feeling in his bones that if ever he came to the bliss and ecstasy of calling La Masque Mrs. Ormiston, the gray mare in his stable would be by long odds the better horse. Unintentionally his steps turned to the water-side and he paced backward and forth of stairs, determined to go into a boat and watch the Illumination from the river.

Late as was the hour, the Thames seemed alive with wherries and barges, and their numerous lights danced along the surface like fireflies over a marsh. A gay barge, gilded and cushioned, was going slowly down, and as he stood directly under the lamp, he was recognized by a gaudy man with a lady who leaned over and hailed him.

"Ormiston! I say, Ormiston!"

"Well, my lord," said Ormiston, recognizing the handsome face and animated voice of the Earl of Rochester.

"Have you any engagements for the next hights? If not, come and have a seat here, and watch London in flames from the river."

"With all my heart," said Ormiston, running down to the water's edge and leaping into the boat. "With all this hustle of life around me, one would think it were noonhere, any instead of midnight."

"The whole city is astir about these fires. Have you any idea they will be successful?"

"Not the least. You know, my lord, the prediction runs that the city will not be burned, but living, one no longer able to bury the dead, and the living unable to pay rent," said the earl, shuddering slightly, "if it continues increasing much longer as it does now daily. How do the bills of mortality run today?"

"I have not heard. Clerk! There goes St. Paul's tolling twelve."

"And there goes a bell of fire—the first among many. Look, look! Shooting up into the black darkness!"

"Yes" will not do it long. Look at the sky, my lord."

The earl glanced up at the midnight sky of a dull and dingy red color, except where black and livid clouds were heaving like angry billows, all dingy with smoke and streaked with bars of fiery red.

"I see. There is a storm coming, and it will carry the worst hurriers and most worshipful lord mayor will see that it will blow over this shower, and themselves sent home wet jackets."

"And for weeks, almost months, there has not fallen a drop of rain," remarked Ormiston gravely.

"A remarkable coincidence, truly, and it seems as if the fatality hangs over this devoted city."

"I wonder your lordship remains."

"The earl shrugged his shoulders significantly."

"It is not so easy leaving it as you think, Mr. Ormiston; but I am turn so back it is decomposed by brief period. You are sworn, I suppose, that the court leaves before daybreak for Oxford?"

"I believe I have heard something of it—how long to remain?"

"Till Charles takes it into his head to come back again," said the earl, "which will probably be in a day or two. Look at that sky, all black and scarlet; and look at those people—I scarcely thought there were half the number left alive in London.

"Even the sick have come out tonight," said Ormiston. "Half the people are in the city, whatever their beds, full of new-born hope. One would think it was a carnival of death! How, Ormiston," said the earl, looking at him with a light laugh, "the pretty little white fairy we rescued from the river is not one of the sick parading the streets."

Ormiston looked grave.

"No, my lord, I think she is not. I left her safe and secure."

"Who is she, Ormiston?" coused the earl, laughingly. "Some fair lady that I make a mountain out of a molehill. Tell me her name."

"Her name is Leoline."

"What else?"

"That is just what I would like to have someone tell me. I give you my honor, my lord, I do not know."

"The earl's face, half indignant, half incredulous, wholly curious, made Ormiston smile.

"It is a fact, my lord. I asked her last night, and she told me Leoline—a pretty title enough, but rather unsatisfactory."

"How long have you known her?"

"Since first of my hight[hight] Ormiston, musingly, "about four hours."

"Nonsense!" said the earl, energetically, "What are you telling me, Ormiston? You said she was an old friend."

"I beg your pardon, my lord, I said no such thing. I told you she had escaped from her friends, which was strictly true."

"There is a pretty demon had you the impudence to come up and carry her off in that way! Ormiston, you are a better right to her than you — the right of discovery; and I shall call upon you to deliver her up."

"If she belonged to me, should only too gladly be at your lordship's disposal," laughed Ormiston; "but she is at present the property of Sir Norman Kingsley, and to him you must apply."

"Ha!" His inamorata, is he? Well, I must say his taste is excellent; but I should think you ought to know her name, since you and he are noted for being the modest heroes of Hythias."

"Probably I should, my lord, only Sir Norman, unfortunately, does not know it himself."

"The earl's countenance looked so utterly blank at this announcement that Ormiston was forced to throw in a word of explanation.

"I mean, my lord, that he has fallen in love with her, and, judging from appearances, I should say his flame is not altogether hopeless, although they have met to-night for the first time."

"A rapid passion. Where have you left her, Ormiston?"

"In her own house, my lord." Ormiston replied, smiling quietly to himself.

"Where is that?"

"About a dozen yards from where we stood when you called me."

"Who are her family?" continued the earl, with the possession of a devouring curiosity."

"She has none that I know of. I imagine Mistress Leoline is an orphan. I know there was not a living soul in her house but myself when I left her."

"Ormiston, I tell you I know it! exclaimed the earl, half starting up, as if about to return to Leoline's side, now back to the landing."

Ormiston looked at his excited face with a glance of quiet malice.

"No, my lord, not quite; Sir Norman Kingsley was with her."

"Oh!" said the earl, falling back with a sigh of relief, "that is another matter probably and out her name before Kingsley, I wonder you forbore to mention it at once, instead of leading me on to the end, to him, after all your trouble."

"Another, my lord?" inquired Ormiston, maliciously.

"Hopelessly!" replied the earl with a deep sigh. "She was a perfect little beauty, and if I can find her, I intend to make her Countess of Rochester, if I have already sent Hubert out in search of her, and by the way," said the earl, with a sudden increase of animation, "what a wonderful resemblance he bears to Hubert—I could almost swear they were one and the same."

"The likeness is marvelous, but I should hate to take such an oath. I confess I am somewhat curious myself, but I have a chance of having it gratified before to-morrow, I suppose."

"How these fires blaze! It is much brighter than at noonday, show me the room in which Leoline lives!"

Ormiston easily pointed it out, and showed the earl the light still burning in her window.

"It was in that room we found her first, dead of the plague."

"Dead of the plague! cried the earl, aghast.

"Dead from the plague! I'll tell you how I found it was," said Ormiston, who forthwith commenced and related the story of their finding Leoline; of the resuscitation, at the plague-pit of the Earl of Sir Norman's house, and of the delirious plunge into the river, and subsequent cure.

"A marvelous story," commented the earl, when Ormiston ended. "And Leoline seems to have as many lives as a cat! Ormiston, I tell you she is in disguise—she, Ormiston, ... shake back it to be a princess . . . . . anything else! Your lordship knows as much about her now as I do myself."

"You say she was dressed as a shepherd when you met?"

Simply enough. She was to be married to-night, and she not taken the plague instead."

"Married!" Why, I thought you said as a few minutes ago she was in love with Kingsley. It seems to me, Mr. Ormiston, your story is a little inconsistent," said the earl, in a tone of astonished displeasure.

"Even the sick have come out tonight," said Ormiston. "Half the people are in the city, whatever their beds, full of new-born hope. One would think it was a carnival of death! How, Ormiston," said the earl, looking at him with a light laugh, "the pretty little white fairy we rescued from the river is not one of the sick parading the streets."

SHOULD USE PHOSPHATE.

A GREAT CONSTITUENT IN PRODUCTION OF BETTER WHEAT.

McAllister Milling Co. Have Engaged Mr. W. J. Thompson, B. S. A., to Present the Matter to the Farmers —A Fair Trial to be Given.

(Peterboro Review.)

Mr. W. J. Thompson of Hamilton, Bachelor of Scientific Agriculture is here upon a mission of great import to all farmers. Mr. Thompson some years ago took up the study of agricultural chemistry and is a leading authority on the problems connected with soils, crops and manures. Besides an extensive practical experience in the Old Country, he has for over fifteen years farmed in Canada, and is one who may well be considered to know what he is talking about.

It is in the use of phosphate by the farmers that the McAllister Milling Company hope to secure a better class of wheat for milling purposes, and, with this object in view, Mr. Thompson has been secured to inform the farming community of its desirable properties. A carload of the material will be distributed among the farmers in small quantities and a fair test made. The Milling Co., above this expense, is even willing to add two cents a bushel to the standard price for phosphate wheat.

Some Important Questions.

Discussing the question with a Review reporter, Mr. Thompson said that for the past two years he had been travelling over Ontario, Quebec and the Maritime Provinces, pointing out the practical principles necessary to get the best results out of the natural resources of the farm. In the province of Ontario, to which he had given particular attention, there have been two important questions interesting nearly all farmers. These were, first, the change in the average soil as shown by the decreased power to get a good crop of clover, and, secondly, in the remarkable change in the milling quality of Ontario wheat.

Solving of the Problem.

In discussing the matter from the standpoint of a practical farmer, it may be said that a great many assume that these two changes have been brought about by changes of the season. There are others again, who, reasoning from their intensified practical experience claim it is a matter of condition of soil. By way of illustra- makes the best use of natural resources, such as stock manure, saves it carefully from heating and leeching, and follows up a systematic rotation of crops, in which clover is ploughed under every three or four years at the outside. In addition to this, the best farmers make it a point to sow no cereal crop without seeding with clover, thus keeping up the supply of vegetable matter.

The matter of controlling the season in the light of science of soil physics must be governed by improving the condition of the soil. The soil that is well stocked with vegetable matter does not suffer from drought to one-half the extent that otherwise rich soil would that lack vegetable matter. It is well known to every practical farmer, in cultivating grain and roots, how much he can control the moisture in a dry season simply by a system of constant and shallow cultivation.

Reasons for Failure.

The chemical reason for failure is getting a good catch and crop of clover, also an improved quality of wheat, for bread purposes, are attributed to the unbalanced state of the average Ontario soil. It has been found that in growing grain about 90 per cent. of the total phosphate taken up by the grain crop enters into the composition of the grain. The grain is that which has been sold off the farm for many years.

Changing in System.

Changing the system of farming from grain growing to stock raising does not save very much phosphate supply, for the reason that a ton of beef sold off the farm removes twice as much phosphate as a ton of a wheat or other grain. Stocking raising, however, does help to keep up a larger supply of ammonia and potash, which are the two very important constituents in getting increased crops. The latest information given out by our own Dominion experimental farms has shown that two tons of clover hay per acre will remove seven times more lime and more phosphate acid (which two substances form phosphate) than 50 bushels of oats. From this evidence, it would seem no more than reasonable, and is borne out by advances practiced in all civilized countries that supplying phosphate, balanced by the other important constituents of the soil fertility is absolutely necessary to get highest results in quality and quantity.

Lack of Phosphate.

The lack of phosphate matter in the soil is evidenced in great grain crops by the straw lying down, the slow ripening of the grain, shrunken sample, and poor milling quality.

The matter of supplying gluten in flour is based on increasing the supply of ammonia in the soil. This is brought about by keeping the soil in in the best condition and growing clover, which supplies the ammonia free of charge. A good crop of clover, plowed under well, adds as much as $50 worth of ammonia per acre, taken from the atmosphere. This gives the general farmer a great advantage over the market gardener, who is not in a position to grow clover, and has to buy his ammonia in expensive fertilizers at $50 or $60 per ton. The average farm then, can supply itself with all the ammonia it requires from the air by growing leguminous crops, potash supply, as in most farms, being kept up pretty well by keeping the straw on the farm and saving the liquid part of the manure.

Clay and Sandy Farms.

Those who have clay or clay loom farms have a still greater supply of potash as compared with those having sandy farms. So far as nature, itself is concerned, it distributes potash throughout the world much more generally than it does phosphate. There is only one potash mine in the world, at the present time. It is found at Stasfurt, Germany. Phosphate however, is found in mines in almost all countries. Canada, in the last two or three years, has been giving greater attention to using up its own supply of phosphate, found in eastern Ontario, Ottawa and Brockville districts, and in sections in the province of Quebec. In the United States, Carolina, Florida, and more recently, Tennessee, have been the chief supply of phosphate for that country, as well as for a great part of Europe.

Important to Farmers.

Phosphate matter is important to every farmer who desires to get an increased quantity of grain and an improved quality, which must be brought about by using phosphate intelligently, and, balanced by the other important elements, which he obtains more readily on his own farm. But the fact that over the province of Ontario there is a much greater demand for bran, which is chiefly the phosphate part of wheat, is evidence that the farmer unconsciously recognizes the necessity of putting back on the land the phosphate taken off by the continuous growing and selling of grain.

How Control Can Be Secured by Men With the Money.

Montreal, Feb. 14.—Speaking of Mr. W. F. Maclean's speech yesterday in the House of Commons, Mr. T. G. Shaughnessy, president of the Canadian Pacific, said yesterday: "There is nothing whatever to prevent American capitalists, if they have got the money, from buying the stock of the Canadian Pacific, which is for sale in London and Montreal, and on Berlin and other Continental Bourses. Having acquired the stock, there is nothing to prevent these gentlemen from controlling the policy of the company and exercising their control for the advancement of the United States interests."

"What do you think, Mr. Shaughnessy, of the suggestion that in order to prevent this, the Government itself acquire possession of the Canadian Pacific and other railways?"

"Well," observed Mr. Shaughnessy, speaking quite frankly, "I think it would be infinitely better if the Government intends to take up seriously the business of railroading, that the public money of this country should be invested in the acquisition of such railways as the Canadian Pacific and Grand Trunk, than that it should be wasted in the subsidizing and construction of useless lines."

St. Petersburg, Feb. 18. — M. de Witte, Minister of Finance, has issued a decree regarding the application of an increased tariff to certain imports from the United States. The decree is based upon the first paragraph of article 628 of the Customs Statute. The measure will become effective a fortnight after their promulgation, that is on March 1. The ordinance requires that the articles affected be accompanied, upon importation, by a certificate of origin. Locomotives, with complicated threshers attached, and steam plows and fire engines are excepted.

Canadian Products Favored.

Ottawa, Feb. 14.—The Department of Agriculture has received from Mr. Harrison Watson, curator Canadian section of the Imperial Institute, London, a letter addressed to him by a leading firm of British importers, in which he says: "You will be pleased to hear that the trade have shown a stronger desire to give preference to Canadian goods. In fact there have not been wanting instances where the evidence of the growth of Imperial unity has been so marked as to cause buyers to be willing to pay enhanced prices for goods of Canadian origin."

Do You Know This Curler?

CHARACTER SKETCH OF A LINDSAY CLUB SKIP.

Taken from the Ontario Curling Association Annual for 1901.

There are men who acquire distinction as skips in the game of curling, just as men rise to prominence in politics or in the church, or in other walks of life. Each king of the tee has his own curling character and individuality, made up in part of his skill with the stones, his personal qualities, his antics upon the ice, and the harangue which falls from his lips; all over and above the enthusiasm which is never absent. We hear of the bankers, journalists, scientists, etc., of whom something is written, and above which is printed the words "Canadian Celebrity," and why should we not essay to paint a word picture of a curler, though the task be as difficult as the artist's attempt to reproduce a sunset, and perhaps as unsatisfactory. In this game of the moving spheres, which,—afternoon and evening, from Halifax to the Rockies, all winter through, is engaged in by bankers, journalists, scientists,, and all the others, there appears here and there a man, before whom some should do reverence, and from whom some of us might take a lesson, and for such an one we are looking.

We see before us the tall and stalwart frame of a Canadian born, who, though still in the vigour of young manhood, has already attained an envied distinction in his serious life work, and who steadies himself there by the exercise, delight and enthusiasm which comes to one who flings the stances and wields the besom, and for the time being lives in the spirit of curling, and is oblivious to ought else upon this revolving earth. His moving stone is for him the world in miniature, with its similar shape and triple motion.

Just as every soldier who can shoot straight is not fitted to be a captain, so it is upon the ice, skill alone does not qualify for a skip, and this is sometimes forgotten by clubs when the October election comes around. It will be found, where the skips are enthusiastic and kindly and attentive to their players, that the game flourishes and the curling club becomes the boast and the pride of the town; but where the skips lack, the game languishes, fine ice on a sharp night is unoccupied, foreign victories are few and inter-club matches are seldom finished.

The skip we have in mind is not one of those self-centered sort, who thinks of nothing but his own shots and skill. He plays the game in a dignified way as benefits his size. He does not rush and run and sweep with the energy of some, and so when the weather is cold he wears his gloves. At odd times however the spirit moves him mightily, as when a stone has lost its turn and is falling away, he will then try to mesmerize it back with the Highland fling and other appropriate gymnastics. We may well watch him a little more closely, as he is busy directing affairs among the stones. His clothes do not tell as much as we might expect, — grey sack coat, peaked cap, and brown gloves, one of which he takes off now and then as he turns to shake hands with some of the spectators, for he seems to be a man with many friends. He is slow and deliberate, interested and careful, and his six feet and some inches enable him to look over the heads of the other skip, as the opposing stones come on and enter the rings. As he thus stands in repose, a slight stoop would seem to indicate a poring over books and some familiarity with a pen and a desk. When the stones have gathered in and the cumbered rings become a chess-board, he may be seen walking about and gazing down, deciding what is to be attempted next, and how it is to be accomplished, to hold what he has, or to take from his opponent what the latter has gained. His broom gets proper use on the ice, and in the air, he signals for what he wants and also what he gets; now he holds it in both hands, now under one arm with his hand in his pocket, retreating, advancing, sweeping, a quiet skip on the whole. When he goes to the back to play he runs or slides, pulls off his gloves, kneels, twists his stone on his broom, swings it with deliberation, slides after it to the tee, crouches there watching its progress, or follows it to the rings, as the circumstances seem to require. We observe him too, friendly and chatty with the opposing skip, and ready to discuss his own plans of campaign with his vice-skip before going to play. Between him and each man on his rink there is a continuous wireless telegraphy, for this alleged recent discovery has been known to curlers from the beginning. Across the ice flashes that understanding between commander and men which makes the rink a unit instead of four disjointed members. He realizes, too, that his men are mortal like himself, and so expects that there will be some misses, and when they come he encourages and does not blame.

If we now use our ears, we will learn at once that on the ice our skip is not pessimistic. "Well played," and "All right," are the texts which are woven through his discourse from beginning to end. "Jack! I want you to draw one for yourself," and as Jack's stone approaches in a likely manner, Jack gets an address of three words many times repeated, of "Well-played-sir," and feels proud of his shot, and of the familiarity and respect with which his chief gives him his christian name, and yet "Sirs" him. Then Harold gets his turn—for it is a feature of curling that christian names will out—"Al right Harold, not quite so heavy—that's good, sweep now—Whoa! whoa! shot you are sir." Then comes another end, and he shown his faith in Jack by another address of this sort. "Now, Jack—you can just come in between those if you like—that's like it —Well played, sir." And then, when Jack has been supplanted by the enemy, and with the side of his foot in the hack and eye on his skip is ready with his second stone. "Now, Jack, I want you to put that one through, and lie over here — whoa! whoa! whoa! too heavy I'm afraid." Then we hear him shouting, "well played sir," to his man who has accurately taken the broom and hit the stone as directed, even though the result has been to give the other side the shot. He did what he was told and gets his praise for it, though the result is disastrous.

In the town where our skip has his devoted following of three, and from which he has sometimes gone forth to play in tankard matches, and where at curling meetings he is always called on for the speech of the occasion, and about the length of two stone puts from the rink, stands a kirk. In the work there, we will find that our curling friend takes a deep interest, and he is besides a regular attendant at divine service. It is well known that he has a unique influence with young men, and no one will deny that in a large measure this comes from his interest in curling, and his conduct upon the ice. If we happen into that kirk on a Sunday morning, or in the evening, we will soon find that our skip can preach as well as he can curl.

BOUNTY ON BEET SUGAR.

An Influential Deputation at Ottawa Sees the Ministers Who Will Consider the Matter.

Ottawa, Feb. 16.—An influential deputation waited on Sir Richard Cartwright, Mr. Mulock, Mr. Paterson and Mr. Fielding yesterday afternoon on behalf of the Ontario Beet Sugar Association. The spokesman of the association said that Canada now needs a diversity of industries, and this is especially true in regard to agriculture. The efforts to supply our own people from the products of our own soil, with so necessary a food material as sugar, "now entirely imported from other countries," was held a big step in this direction. Experiments conducted by the Ontario Government, under the able supervision of A. E. Shuttleworth of the Ontario Agricultural College at Welland, Newcastle and Aylmer last season, as well as experiments at Wiarton, Dunnville and other points, in this and former years, went to prove that the soil and climate of a very large portion of Ontario are admirable adapted to the successful cultivation of the sugar beet of a high percentage of sugar, of great purity, and a yield per acre equal to if not greater than any other sugar-producing country in the world. No crop now raised in this country can compare with that of the sugar beet in profits to the farmer. The Ontario Government tests this year have confirmed this statement, and prove that $60 per acre will not be above an average, while from $100 to $120 per acre are not uncommon, figuring the beets at only $4 per ton, which is from 50c to $1 per ton less than the farmers of the United States received from the factories last year. A crop of sugar beets properly cultivated leaves the land in such an improved condition that other crops raised on the same land are greatly benefited for several years after.

Factories are wanted and men will be found willing to put these up if the Government will give a bounty for a term of years.

Mr. W. M. German, M. P., on behalf of the farmers of Welland County, and Dr. Sproule, M. P., speaking for the farmers of the Wiarton district, supported the application. The Ministers replied that the views expressed would receive consideration.

THE DEAL WAS CLOSED.

Mann & MacKenzie Will Get the Leased Lines of Manitoba.

Winnipeg, Feb. 14.—Premier Roblin returned yesterday from Toronto. When questioned by a reporter, Mr. Roblin said that the railway negotiations between the Provincial Government and Mann & Mackenzie had been satisfactorily completed on Monday, and that there had been no hitch whatever in the transaction. He says no particulars of the deal will be divulged until to-night. The whole transaction will then be given to the public.

BINDER TWINE AT COST.

Hon. Mr. Stratton Gives Mr. Eilber Some Information at the Legislature on Friday.

Toronto, Feb. 16.—In the Legislature yesterday Hon. Mr. Stratton presented the annual report of the Inspector of Division Courts.

Mr. Eilber inquired whether it was the intention of the Government to operate its plant at the Central Prison and furnish binder twine to the farmers at cost price.

Hon. Mr. Stratton replied that it was being furnished to the farmers direct and as nearly as possible at cost.

Mr. Barr moved for a return giving the name of each license commissioner and the expenses allowed him in 1900. Also the name and salary and allowance for expenses of each license inspector. He suggested that such information should be included in the license report.

Hon. J. R. Stratton said that there had been no increases in the salaries of inspectors since a return was made for 1899, with one exception in regard to North Grey. To make an additional return would involve considerable expense and would give very little fresh information. He was of course willing to supply any fresh details required.

The motion was withdrawn.

Neglected Children.

The eighth report on work for Neglected and Dependent Children for 1900 showed that the total number of children under supervision was 1,318, who had all been placed in homes, in addition to a number who had been helped in their own homes, provided with situations or admitted into hospitals or charitable institutions. During the year children's aid societies had sent in the names of 188 children to be entered for future supervision. There were 59 sent to homes through the Bureau, making a total of 247 new entries, or 5 more than in 1899. About 55 children who returned or were recalled from homes which had formerly been found for them were replaced. The record of deaths was an exceptionally good one, as only seven out of the total number under supervision had occurred during the year. The present whereabouts of 36 of the children was uncertain. Of the whole number 74 were in public institutions, such as the Industrial School, Asylum for Feeble-minded, etc., 6 in the Ontario Reformatory, 4 had gone to foreign countries, 31 had been returned to relatives, 1 was in prison, 45 earning good wages and practically independent, and 5 married. Of the older girls 4 had been led astray and become mothers. The report also contained details of the distributing homes throughout the Province where neglected and friendless children from Britain were received, from which it appeared that the work of Dr. Barnado's homes in Ontario had been greatly increased, the number of children provided for being 752, as compared with 463 in 1899. The report also contains some important recommendations as to the best manner of dealing with the evils of juvenile cigarette smoking, the attendance of young boys at low theatres and other abuses tending to encourage youthful vagrancy and demoralizing habits.

Want Grant of $1,000.

The Army and Navy Veterans called on the Premier yesterday and asked that the promised grant of $500 for a monument to the soldiers in the old military burying ground be increased to $1,000, as the English regiment which was expected to have co-operated, had been so cut up in the South African war that no assistance could be looked for in that direction. Memebers of the same deputation asked that the land grants to Fenian veterans should be made to include the regulars as well as volunteers.

A GORGEOUS FUNCTION.

King Edward Has Sanctioned the Official Programe For the Opening of Parliament on Thursday.

London, Feb. 13.—King Edward has sanctioned the official program of the ceremonial to be observed in the House of Lords on Thursday. The great officers of State and others will assemble at the entrance of the House of Lords. The King will alight from the State carriage, and the procession will move to the Robing-room.

After the King is robed, with the Duke of Devonshire, Lord President of the Council, carrying the Imperial Crown, the procession will advance into the House of Peers, the Cap of Maintenance being borne before the King on the right hand of the Sword of State.

When the King is seated on the throne, the Duke of Devonshire, bearing the Cap of Maintenance, will stand on the steps of the throne. On the right of the King will be the Marquis of Londonderry, with the Sword of State; on the left will be the Lord Steward. The other officers of the household will arrange themselves on each side of the throne in the rear of the great officers of State. When the King retires, the procession will return to the Robing-room, and thence to the State carriage, in the same order as it came.

Lady of the Garter.

A special edition of The Gazette announces that by the King's demand a special statute under the seal of the Order of the Garter shall be issued, conferring upon the Queen the title of "Lady of that most noble order."

Lord Roberts' title is gazetted as "Viscount St. Pierre and Earl of Kandahar and Pretoria."

NOT PERSONA GRATA.

London, Feb. 13.—Dr. Morrison, wiring to The Times from Pekin yesterday, says: "Sir Ernest M. Satow, British Minister to China, has informed the Chinese authorities that the British Government declines to accept an obscure official like Chang Po Hsi, the literary chancellor, as special envoy to carry condolence to London on the death of Queen Victoria."

THE NEW WAY TO TREAT DISEASE

Powley's Liquified Ozone

The Most Remarkable Preparation known to Science

Ever since the remarkable cures of Mr. J. W. G. McCarthy and Mr. Francis, attention has been drawn to Powley's Liquified Ozone. The marvellous nature of the recovery of both these gentlemen stamped Ozone as being a treatment which was fairly marvellous in its health giving power. Hundreds of testimonials have been received since then; each testimonial can be verified. Read what R. E. Fleming says. "Some fifteen months ago a friend spoke to me about Ozone and I have truly thanked him ever since. I have suffered all my life from indigestion, weak stomach, bilious headaches, and poor, thin, watery blood. Some years ago, in fact when a young boy, I had bilious headaches once and twice a week, and later on in life always had two severe attacks twice a month. I despaired of ever getting any relief or permanent cure. Fifteen months ago I had a severe attack of Kidney Trouble, suffering with pains in my back, my blood being in a miserable condition. I was weak, had a poor appetite and found it hard to get a good night's rest, had no pleasure in attending to my daily business, in fact, getting up in the morning was no pleasure; always wanted to lie in bed. So I began taking Ozone four times and after using a few bottles I found a decided improvement, but always thought that I would suffer with bilious headaches and weak stomach for the rest of my natural life. After using four bottles I found I was entirely cured of Kidney Troubles, and after using a few more bottles I found my stomach strong and that my bilious headaches were leaving me, and my blood was pure. I can faithfully say that at the present moment I am permanently cured and gaining solid flesh and muscles rapidly. I take the liberty of presenting to you this, my testimonial, that others may see and profit thereby if suffering as I was. Believe me, very truly yours. Signed,

R. E. FLEMING, 227 George St., Toronto

NORTH AND EAST VICTORIA REFORM ASSOCIATION

The annual meeting of the Reform Association of North and East Victoria has been called for Thursday, March 7th, in Dickson's hall, Pontypool, at 1 o'clock sharp. The Hon J. R. Stratton, Provincial Secretary, and other well-known speakers, will address the meeting. The officers—President James Dickson and Secretary E. Morgan—are anxious that there should be a large attendance of the reformers of the riding, as matters of importance will come up for discussion.

RAILWAY COMPETITION IN MANITOBA.

Premier Robin's arrangement with the Northern Pacific and Canadian Northern Railways, by which he leases the roads of the former in Manitoba and releases them to the latter, retaining control by the Manitoba government of the freight rates within the Province and as far east as Port Arthur, looks like a good thing for the people of Manitoba. The term of the lease is 999 years, practically forever, the rental increasing from $210,000 a year to $300,000, with option of purchase for $7,000,000. The Canadian Northern will pay the government an annual rent as the government pays the Northern Pacific, but in consideration of the conceded control of freight rates the government guarantees interest on the bonds of the Canadian Northern from Port Arthur to Rainy River. This provision makes it inexpedient for the government to overdo the business of cutting down the freight rates. The Canadian Northern must be allowed to earn enough money to pay rent and interest, otherwise the taxpayers of Manitoba would have to make good the deficit. The chief appears to be complete. Mr. Robin said in his speech that the rates on the Canadian Northern would regulate the rates on the Canadian Pacific, thus easing the burden which Manitoba has been carrying while they were dependent upon a single railway. As the late lamented Sir John Macdonald remarked many years ago, "You cannot check Manitoba."

THE STANDARD OIL CO.

The Morgan-Rockefeller combination is probably the greatest trust that the world has been seen. J. Pierpont Morgan, the head of the great New York Banking firm, and John Rockefeller, President of the Standard Oil Company, are the leaders in this gigantic combination of industrial interests. The property owned by or under the control of these capitalists is estimated to be worth nearly three billion dollars. They own coal mines, trans-continental railways, steamship lines and iron mines, and they practically control the production of the petroleum of the world. The Carnegie steel works are now owned by them, and the steel trust alone is capitalized at a billion dollars. The following companies have been taken into the steel combine:

Company	Authorized. Stocks and Bonds.
Carnegie Company.....	$320,000,000
Federal Steel	200,000,000
American Steel & Wire.....	90,000,000
National Tube.....	80,000,000
American Bridge.....	70,000,000
Moore company:
National Steel.....	50,000,000
American Tin Plate.....	50,000,000
American Steel Hoop.....	40,000,000
(Total.....	$900,000,000

This calculation leaves out the $57,000,000 American Sheet Steel Company, the fourth of the Moore concerns.

The interests are so vast that the mind can scarcely grasp them. The men in their employ outnumber the population of some European states. These modern Croesuses can go upon the stock market and virtually control it. If they felt it to be to their interest to wreck a railway, one word from them would cause the price of its shares to fall twenty points in an hour.

The question naturally arises, Where is this to end? These men can go on piling interest upon interest till their power will be such that no government can cope with them. If they see cheap, they can make or break governments at will. When such a condition of affairs is reached the question of state ownership will come to the front. If capitalists can control these vast industrial interests and manage them for their own private gain, why cannot the government take over the control of them and manage them for the benefit of the people? Such a combination as the Morgan-Rockefeller one is bearing when it would seem to be inevitable—state ownership.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Mr. R. Kimber Johns, presiding officer of the Muskoka Reform Association, has called a convention for Wednesday, 27th inst., to be held at Bracebridge.

The Ottawa Citizen draws attention to the fact that the late Sir Frank Smith, whose estate was probated at $1,300,000, bequeathed only $3,000 to charities, and comments thus: "It is very questionable if the public has gained by the usurpation by the government of control and distribution of what otherwise would take the form of voluntary legacies to other charitable institutions." The Smith estate gives $65,000 in succession duties from the estate of Sir Frank Smith, and the money will all go to benevolent institutions. That Sir Frank Smith would have given so much sum there is no certainty. It is better to have a sure thing.

Bridgeport, Connecticut, has a scheme of municipal co-operation. Six corporations are to be chartered, which in part involve the raising of six million dollars, but without going outside the city to borrow. Forty thousand dollars cash will each take $175 worth of stock. Out of each subscription twenty-five dollars will be deposited in a savings bank, which is to be one of the six corporations, while the remainder will pay for one share in each of the other five companies. Along with the scheme, is to be established a system for insuring the lives of prominent citizens, the city paying the premiums and having the benefits, as a means of wiping out the city debt. The plan is said to have the support of many business men, who believe that the joint stock system can be successfully carried out in the way to a whole community, the members of which can from their own resources create all the means necessary for the establishment and carrying on of industrial, banking and distributing enterprises more economically than under the existing competitive system. This experiment shows how extremely modern communities long to discover a cure the tyranny of combining wealth. It will be followed with interest even by those who look only for its future.

In allotting free homesteads to the South African heroes Premier Ross does his duty both by the Empire and by Ontario. He shows that he believes not, only in Canada for the Canadians, but in the Canadians for Canada. It is no secret that the Canadians were offered many inducements to remain in South Africa, after the war. The inducements are still going on, and really the South African establishment looks very tempting. Very alluring also are the offers made to cut an settlement of British soldiers, warranted expert in farming, on the land, that the Canadians could find good, comfortable wives of their own blood. But young Canadians were not led away by the glamour of South Africa. There was plenty of sport and adventure to be sure, but they realized that their lives were better worth while that it was not all beer and skittles. On the contrary, treaties with Canada they thought wistfully of Canada, fair Canada, with her little mamma, her bracing winters, and her tuneless variety of seasons. So they came back dutifully to build up their native country, to multiply and replenish the thrifty earth under Heaven, the earth that has onto her breast pressed the fair fertile valleys of West Ontario. Their sturdy children will find health and happiness, and those qualities which enabled them to hold down a wilderness will win fortunes from Dame Nature, who is stubborn only till she meets her master.

Obituary

—Denis Twohey, one of the oldest and most highly respected residents of the township of Ops, died in Lindsay on Saturday, Feb. 16th, after suffering illness of nearly two years, although he was able to work about for part of the time. The deceased was 78 years of age, and was born in the county of Kilkenny, Ireland, in 1822. When a young lad his parents came to Montreal, and thence to Toronto. After remaining there for three years Mr. Twohey came to Ops and took up the 200 acre farm near the town limits on which he spent the greater part of his life. He was twice married. By his first wife he had a large family, of whom only a daughter, Mrs. Hickey, residing in Toronto, and a son, James Twohey, who is engaged in the ranching business near Calgary, N.W.T., now survive. The deceased had four brothers, James, who resides in Lindsay, being the only survivor. Mr. Twohey was a devoted husband and a kind father, a good neighbor and a true and honest man in all his business dealings. In religion he was a devoted son of the Catholic church, and was a staunch reformer in politics. His father presented the old Catholic cemetery to the Catholic parishioners many years ago. The funeral took place last Monday morning, and was very large.

CANADIAN CORDAGE CO.

Farmers to Manufacture Their Own Binder Twine at Peterboro.

In another column of this paper appears the Prospectus of the Canadian Cordage and Manufacturing Company, Limited, which is being organized by farmers for the purpose of manufacturing their own twine. The stock is to be sold in small blocks of from one to ten shares in different parts of Canada, and it is hoped by that means that the Company will practically have the control of their twine among their own shareholders. The Prospectus shows that every shareholder of the Company who will send in an order for 500 lbs of binder twine, or upwards, will be entitled to have his order filled at wholesale rates. The Farmers' Binder Twine Company of Brantford is organized on the co-operative principle similar to this one, and has paid large dividends to its shareholders.

A Canadian agricultural journal, The Farming World, of December 4th, 1900, says: "The Farmers' Binder Twine Company of Brantford has declared a dividend of 90 per cent. on the present season's business. This company has had a most successful career. Since the organization it has paid five 10 per cent. dividends, one of 60 per cent., one of 100 per cent., and the present one of 90 per cent., an average of 37.4-2 per cent. per year for eight years' business. A most remarkable record."

In order that the success of this Company may be further assured, Local Agents for Ops are to be formed in each County, composed of men of recognized standing and ability. Such a Board, as appears by the Prospectus, has been formed in this County. Inquiries and applications for stock are coming in, the Company from the western parts already a very large quantity of the stock has been actually subscribed, which practically guarantees the Company success. The directors believe that the Company shall be managed by practical and experienced men, and expect satisfactory results may be anticipated.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

Toronto, Feb. 20.—The receipts of live stock at the Cattle Market yesterday were large, 70 carloads, comprised of 1,115 cattle, 1,333 hogs, 484 sheep and 25 calves. Considering the number of fat cattle, trade for them was fair. There was no change in the prices of cheap, heavy exporters, as there were few offered, but light, half-finished shippers were easier, and animals that would have brought $4.25 per cwt. last week sold at 15c to 25c per cwt. lower than on Friday last.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The liberals of North Ontario will hold a convention of February 28th, in the Alexandria Hall, Beaverton for the purpose of organizing the membership of public utilities in the face of the benefits other places of a similar size are deriving from the ownership of public utilities in the face of the benefits derived from ownership of waterworks systems. St. Thomas is a city of about the same size of Stratford. Five years ago against the waterworks and made extensive improvements and extensions, while the result is they are a valuable source of revenue to their city. According to the annual report of the water commissioners presented to the city including a surplus revenue of the year amounting to $29,... and the total expenditure to $75,90, leaving a balance of $19,926.41, leaving revenue of the year available for payment to the treasurer of the city of St. Thomas. This very state of affairs is all the more notable because it has been reached in the face of a substantial reduction in rates. When, oh, when, will Stratford rise to the occasion and secure for itself similar results?

The provincial auditor, the official to whose service is due the remarkable discovery from losses in municipal financing last year, tells numerously of some of his experiences. He was in a district he looks at a gentleman who had been township treasurer for over forty years and found that he never kept a cash book. The auditor consisted in two spikes or files one for money received and one for money paid out. He owed the township thousands of dollars. The marvel of it was how this happened with councils and members were attending to their duties. These councils are supposed to have statements of the accounts from time to time, and nothing but audited documents should be acceptable. Is of no advantage says the Kingston Whig, to point out to a municipality what it should have in the way of officials so long as the little complaint among assistants is likely to lail in office the men who have no qualification for it. The only thing the legislature can do is define the requisites of the officials, and pass a law by which the members of the council will be held responsible, individually and collectively, for any loss or irregularity arising from their appointments. This municipality should certainly not depend on any official who cannot keep books correctly.

Mr. Reeve, general manager of the G.T.R. practically says that unless the Canadian Government is kept open for navigation throughout the year, Boston and Portland will become the ocean ports for Canada. If Mr. Tarte gives us his 30-foot channel to the sea, there is no likelihood that this will happen.

According to one of the best sugar experts who were at Chatham recently, actual growing for market is likely to show better results than the last plots of ground yielded. He intimates that a factory smaller than 350 capacity cannot be profitably operated. A 50 day run will meet any expenses, while a 100 day run will pay large profits. The cost of a 500-ton factory would be about five hundred thousand dollars.

There are 199,729 persons in the United States licensed to sell spirituous liquors. In addition to this number there are 12,327 persons licensed to sell malt liquors only. There are 1,466 persons licensed as wholesale dealers; 1,923 brewers and 1,901 peddlers, making in all 217,346 persons. There are probably 500,000 persons engaged in the manufacture of the liquors sold in the United States, or one person to every 118 inhabitants.

There is a good chance for Canadian farmers to make money by the cultivation of flax, an industry not nearly as much in operation as it ought to be. European consular report that the Russian crop of flax is far below the requirements, and that throughout the continent there is such an opportunity for the introduction of flax from abroad as never occurred before, and that it will take four years at least for the supply of the European flax market into its normal condition. For some immediate purposes the cultivation of flax has never been taken up by our farmers as it ought. The trouble is not great and the profit large. A recently published paragraph stated that a farmer in Elgin sold 1,000 bushels of flax to an eastern firm for $1.75 per bushel, and he has, by counting the number of bushels he raised to the acre, figured that the flax crop of the season just paid the entire cost of the improved farm on which it was raised, and left him a surplus of about $8 an acre. If present prices continue, Wellington, Waterloo, Perth and Oxford counties, and the western area of flax growing in Ontario, the farmers will be in a position to appreciate perception, having grasped the importance of the opportunity. It is not a little profitable clay loamy soil will a good soil, and that can be found in all over Canada. It does well also on rough land newly broken up. It has to be early in a farm in the country on which the owner could not, if he would, realize a handsome profit from this crop.

LIQUID AIR.

Not long ago glowing stories were published about the possibility of producing liquid air as a means of preserving foods. Now, Prof. D'Arsonval, of Paris, who has been prominent in electrics, states that liquid air cannot be used to preserve meat, because it is not antiseptic, does not kill microbes and is five times dearer than ice. He warns the public against commonness in promised preservation of food with liquid air. If it were merely a question of the cost of manufacture, the cost of liquid air, and we might reasonably expect that modern science would find a way of cheapening it. Science does, but it is in no wise antiseptic, and does not kill microbes, it is not likely to prove very useful as a food preservative.

However, Prof. D'Arsonval declares that with liquid air, meat can be quickly reduced to a powder, which can be used as a food for consumption. At the Museum of Natural History in Paris, the other day, he showed a beefsteak that he been dipped in liquid air. When he let it fall on the platform it sounded like a stone, and broke into many pieces. He then showed a dried, after being frozen hard with liquid air, will be found very useful in hospitals, owing to the ease with which it can be sterilized and disinfected. He says that ice dipped into the liquified air will cut glass like a diamond, and that mercury will become as hard as steel. Liquid air, he says, is made from air gives metals, especially steel, temper of a superior quality by ordinary methods, and that it increases their tensile strength. Time to be lost. If out to the thickness of a hair. If the time is not sufficient, it will simply be used to which steel may be put, and increase the cost of the tool.

So many contradictory statements have been made about liquid air by the scientists and men who have been experimenting with it, from Tyndall, of London, to D'Arsonval, of Paris, that it will be well not to draw conclusions until the inventors have carried their experiments somewhat further.—Star.

Railway Notes.

—A reduction has been made in the railway rates to Bishops, clergymen, missionaries under proper ecclesiastical authority, and officers of the Salvation Army in uniform. The new tariff will go into effect on the fifteenth of the present month.

—The G.T.R. to meet the new rates of the Canadian roads, announced a reduction on second class rates from points in the south-western portion of its province, in closing Niagara Falls, Lewiston, Queenston, Buffalo, Ashtonda, Ogden and Salt Lake City, Utah, and to first class rates to Seattle and Spokane.

—A case of importance to railway men, arising out of the smash-up on the Grand Trunk Railway between Bowmanville and Port Hope, in October, 1899, was settled Monday in Toronto by the judgment of Mr. Justice Street. The engineer, Miller, of the train, sued the company under the workmen's compensation act, and the case turned upon the question of whether the engineer was under the conductor's orders. The train was leaving Port Hope the conductor, for fear the engineer's death from exhaustion, stating that he had meet known as extra 916, will meet extra 46, engine 888, at Newtonville. Second 46 was an east-bound freight. The conductor told the engineer a copy of the despatch, as required by the defendant's rules, and the plaintiff replied to the conductor and asked him if it was all right to go, and he replied "Yes," and gave the usual signal to start. After passing out of Port Hope the train collided with another, called first 46, and killed the engineer. He said that the despatch did not affect him, and that it was for the conductor to give the order to start, and it was his negligence in failing to give the signal. The conductor testified that he did not meet second 46 at Port Hope, and that he was governed by rule 23, which provides that in case of the accident. The plaintiff, by rule 52, must obey the conductor's orders in regard to safety of the train, unless they endanger the safety of his engine, and this should be read as meaning, unless he has reason to believe that their orders, etc., and rule 232 cannot be construed as throwing upon the engineer the use of general terms a duty which the preceding rules had especially conferred on the conductor. Judgment was given for the plaintiff.

LIKE A KNIFE.

Such were the Terrible Pains of Sciatica in the Case of Wm. A. Brown

Bracebridge, Ont., Feb. 18.—Northumberland county has seldom seen such an extreme case of suffering as this in the case of Mr. Brown of this place. Mr. Brown had Sciatica. He describes his case this way: "I got Sciatica so bad I could not walk, and hope that I could not walk without suffering awful agony. I turned to Dodd's Kidney Pills and took with a sensation similar to cutting with a knife all through."

"If took Dodd's Kidney Pills. The cultivation of flax has never been taken up by our farmers as it ought. The trouble is not great and the profit large. Accident in the Woods.

While working in the McLeod & McCormick camp in Wilberforce township, last Friday, Mr. Eph. Kelly, of this town, met with an accident which came near terminating fatally. He was cutting down trees when one lodged in the branches of a standing one. He climbed about 18 feet up the tree to release it, and when he had removed one of the branches the tree took off with a jerk and knocked him down. He threw his axe before him and jumped, but on account of the limbs of the trees he became entangled and struck the ground head first. His head alighted in the snow blade upward and in this manner the circumstance in his the side of his head struck the blade of the axe. An ugly gash was the result. The temple artery and two arteries in the back of the higher were severed. He was brought to Fenelon Falls on a sleigh and medical aid and injuries were attended to by Dr. Graham—Fenelon Falls Star.

ONTARIO ESTIMATES.

The Estimates of What Ontario Will Spend Presented.

$59,000 MORE THAN LAST YEAR.

$10,000 For a Statue of Her Late Majesty Queen Victoria—$2,000 for the Enfield Pan-American Exhibition—List of the Increases Asked For—Assessment Commission's Report.

Toronto, Feb. 19.—The Legislature for only ten minutes yesterday, but the sitting was notable for the presentation of an interim report of the Assessment Commission, published under another heading, and of the estimates for the current year. One or two questions were put to members of the members of the Government.

The Attorney-General, replying to Mr. Elliot, said that the John Sullivan reported on June 30, 1899, for the election trial judges in South Ontario was the same person who had served during the Liberal rule in the prevention of the export of sawlogs. In the subsequent proceedings against Sullivan and others, in pursuance of the report, it was found that they had not been guilty of corrupt practices. The amount of the fees and expenses rendered by Sullivan, for the most part prior to the election trial, amounted to, services were dispensed with in September last during the Liberal rule. The pain was for work done prior to that date.

Mr. Premier laid the estimates on the table, and also the report of the Assessment Commission.

The Attorney-General introduced a bill entitled "An Act for the compilation of Imperial statutes in force in Ontario, and for repealing Acts of which he had given several days ago.

The House adjourned at 3.30 p. m.

The Estimates Brought Down.

Premier Ross presented his estimates. They place expenditure at $1,732,406.78, compared with $1,673,292.61 estimated a year ago. This is an increase of $59,114. There is an increase of estimated current expenditure from $3,426,555 to $3,498,117. The expenditure on capital account is placed at $234,433, compared with $193,479 last year, and for other purposes, $119,325, compared with $103,255.

Among the new items are: Statue of Her Late Majesty Queen, $10,000; Pan-American Exposition, $2,000; Government House improvements, $500; experimental fruit shipments, $1,000; Ontario Agricultural College buildings, $3,000; equipment winter show, including $2,343, unpaid account, $4,000; Toronto Asylum for Insane, $4,000; allowances in each of the Government offices abolished, $3,773.

Among the increases are: Surveys in townships of new districts, from $10,000 to $12,000; Parliament buildings, $2,500 to $10,000; forest reserves, $750 to $2,500; Spring Brook Asylum, increased to $1,000; Ontario poultry association, $1,650 to $2,000; Ontario Veterinary College, $1,400; normal and model schools, London, $8,550 to $10,000; Toronto normal classes in Public and Separate schools, from $18,800 to $20,000; Public and Separate schools in new districts, $50,000 to $55,000.

ASSESSMENT COMMISSION.

Commission Finds That the Law Is Unsatisfactory—Draft Bill Submitted to Legislature.

Toronto, Feb. 19.—The report of Assessment Commission was laid on the table of the Legislature yesterday afternoon. It is a book of 400 pages, giving all the evidence taken, and is not yet complete.

The commission report that they have completed the work up to 1899. The report proceeds: "Many anomalies and inequities in taxation have arisen from the existing law have been pointed out to us, to which we have now given our consideration. Some the questions raised are so numerous and so important, and so far beyond the scope of inquiry so large, that we have not been able to deal with them fully at present.

"One matter, however, relating to the assessment of land, has appeared to us to be so important as to demand our immediate attention. It arises out of the decision of the Supreme Court in the Bell Telephone Company and the City of Toronto case, which has held that in assessing poles, wires, etc., of a telegraph company, the property cannot under the Assessment Act be justly valued as materials, according to the law, having regard to the purpose for which it is used, but must be valued as materials, which, if taken in payment of a just debt from a solvent debtor, would have to be removed and taken away by the creditor.

"This legislation 'has been in force without great attention having been paid to the fact that the property was originally passed the Legislature provided, had not in view any property of the description in question. Assessment of such property had, prior to the above mentioned decision, been generally made on the cost of reproducing and replacing the property in sight, and we are of opinion that this is the method of valuation is the fairer. Eminent authorities have recommended, and some of the larger companies operating in Canada have voluntarily conformed to make the admission that the method of valuation is the one generally formed, is one which shows that the law is not in a satisfactory state.

"Since that decision the principle of assessment of such property has evolved by other companies, which are relieved of a large share of taxation which they should justly bear, and that fractional, very forcibly without complaint, but which has now been cast upon other ratepayers of the municipalities concerned.

"Being of opinion that the injustice should be removed without delay, we have drafted and append to this report a bill to effect that object, the passing, or which we respectfully recommend as a remedy until we can completely report upon all the matter referred to us. The report is dated Jan. 30, 1901, and signed, Hon. Mr. Macdonald, Hugh MacMahon, T. H. Macpherson, R. W. McKay, A. Ferguson, D. B. Wilkie, M. Burke.

The bill to abolish the scrap iron duties, and to exempt in the case of mineral lands, hereinafter provided for real and personal property shall be of the assessed value of such value, the assessment shall be the sum of such values.

The value of land apart from the buildings thereon, and exclusive of other improvements, shall be its actual value, regard being had to its condition, situation, and other advantages, and the use to which it is or may be applied. The value of the buildings shall be their actual cost, or the cost of replacing, or of repair and cost of reproduction therefor, and any other circumstances affecting their value.

The assessor or assessors of a municipality corporation shall assess all buildings, structures, substructures, wharves, elevators, fixtures and other things existing, erected or placed upon any lands, and shall be assed to any highway, road, street, lane or public place or water within the municipality, and shall value the same, for the purpose of assessment, as real estate of the person owning, operating or using the same, at the actual value of the property being had to the cost of reproducing and replacing the same for the purpose for which the same are owned, occupied, or used, and to the cost of repair.

Such assessment and valuation shall also extend to and include all poles, wires, attachments and instruments, being the property of or operated or used by any such person or company, extending over or upon or partly between two municipalities, the assessors of the respective municipalities shall make a joint assessment, one-half of which shall be imposed upon each municipality.

In case of a disagreement a county judge is to be selected to act as arbitrator.

The Weekly Post

LINDSAY, FRIDAY, FEB. 22nd, 1901

CHIEF CHANDELL RESIGNED

Mr. Walter Reesor Appointed to the Vacancy.

MESSRS. FLUERY AND SPIER ARE THE ASSESSORS FOR 1901.

Adjourned Meeting of our City Fathers Last Monday—Communications, Reports and Business—Businesslike Action with Regard to Town Hall Improvements.

Our city fathers met in adjourned session last Monday, Mayor Hall and all members being present. The back benches were fairly well occupied, the word having gone abroad that the appointment of new officials might lead up to something interesting.

From D. Fee, asking for an increase of salary as Truant Officer and Black Knot Inspector.—Finance committee.

A number of accounts were read and referred to the proper committees.

Petition from Mrs. P. J. O'Connell and others, asking that sidewalk on Melbourne-st. east be moved out.—Board of Works.

From Secretary of Public Library Board, enclosing annual report and financial statement.—Received.

Committee Reports.

Brief reports were read by Ald. Toughiny, Chairman Board of Works; Ald. Robson, Police and Lighting; Ald. Hore, Town Property; and Ald. Jackson, Finance. The reports were held Feb. 14th and the reports have already been printed in these columns.

By-Laws.

Of Notice of Ald. Jackson, seconded by Ald. O'Reilly, By-law No. —, to amend By-law No. 895, respecting the public health, was read a first time.

On motion of Ald. Toughiny, seconded by Ald. Sinclair, By-law No. —, to appoint assessors for 1901, was read a first time.

The council then went into committee of the whole, Ald. Toughiny in the chair.

By-law No. 896, to appoint a Chief of the Fire Brigade, which was introduced at last meeting by Aldermen Toughiny and Sinclair, was first taken up, and Ald. Jackson moved, seconded by Ald. Hore, that the blank be filled in with the name of Mr. Walter Reesor, adopt by-law the same as that passed by F. Crandell, $600, and to include the daily inspection and care of the Fire station.

Moved in amendment by Ald. Sinclair, seconded by Ald. O'Reilly, that the blank be filled in with the name of Henry Bell, that he was not the mover and seconder that a saving of nearly $100 would be effected by appoint the latter, who was a capable man and had experience, and declared lost and the original motion was adopted after Ald. Sinclair had given his views, to the effect that Mr. Reesor had had a great experience, was a young and active man, and in many ways he had a right to make the brigade perfect.

By-law No. 897 appointing assessors for 1901, was next taken up.

Moved by Ald. O'Reilly, seconded by Ald. Sinclair, that Mr. James Fleury, be one of the assessors.

Ald. Hore, in amendment, proposed that Mr. Jas. Connolly be appointed. He was pounded out that no person of that name was an applicant, and that Thos. Connolly was the party intended, but it was all the same in the end, as Ald. Hore failed to move a seconder, and Mr. Fleury's appointment was confirmed.

Ald. O'Reilly then proposed that Mr. J. D. Smith be the other assessor, but luck was against him—like Ald. Hore, he failed to secure support, and the machine once sailed.

It was then moved by Ald. Robson, seconded by Ald. Hore, that Mr. R. Spier be the other assessor, and the motion carried. The blanks in the by-law were then filled in with the names of Messrs. Fleury and Spier, and the by-law was given its second reading.

The public health by-law, relating to Kent-st. watercourse, was referred to the Board of Works for further consideration.

When the committee rose the fire brigade and assessors' by-laws were given the final reading.

Sundry Motions.

Moved by Ald. Toughiny, seconded by Ald. Sinclair, that the treasurer be instructed to refund, Mr. Thos. Stevenson's lot sold to Mr. O. Bigelow for taxes, and that the taxes on lots 3 and 4, north of Kidout-st., for 1899 be also remitted. Seconded by Ald. Jackson, that the town from threatened action for damages caused by sewer drain running across adjoining property.

Moved by Ald. Jackson, seconded by Ald. Hore, that the clerk be instructed to call for tenders for town printing for 1901, and that disposition of same be referred to the finance committee to report at next meeting of council.—Carried.

Moved by Ald. Hore, seconded by Ald. Jackson, that the Town Commissioner be instructed to remove stage and all lumber at the Market Hall forthwith, preparatory to making the necessary estimate for alterations to the buildings.—Carried.

Council then adjourned.

A STUDY OF DEMOCRACY.

Dr Russell's Elegant Lecture at the Collegiate Last Friday Evening.

The audience that assembled in the Collegiate Institute Friday night to hear the third lecture of the Lecture Course, were treated to one of the finest addresses ever given in Lindsay. For grasp of subject, sequence of thought, and choice of diction, Dr. Russell's lecture deserves the highest praise, and a warm welcome will attend him at any future visit.

Mr. D. R. Anderson occupied the chair, and in his remarks referred to the lasting debt of Lindsay and vicinity to the Lecture Course Committee for Dr. Wright in bringing to Lindsay such men as had been heard upon that platform. Such opportunities were afforded to few places in Canada, and appreciation of the benefit was due.

Miss Emma Beal and Miss Edith Workman entranced the program with choice musical numbers, Miss Beal giving a piano solo and Miss Workman a vocal solo, both being well received.

In moving the vote of thanks Mr. Sweet said it was one of the finest lectures delivered in the Collegiate Institute since the Rev. Dr. Scott, North Sydney, and the Canadian parliament. They were deeply indebted to him for the lecture and the influence of which would be great. Mr. L. E. Weldon seconded the motion in a nice little speech. In replying Dr. Russell expressed his pleasure at getting away from Ottawa for a few days, where everything was mourning and grip.

NOTHING EQUALS IT

For the Cure of Catarrh.

A physician now retired from practice, but who still keeps abreast of the times, in speaking of the advance made in medicine in the last ten years says:

"One of the most obstinate and baffling diseases is the very common, trouble, catarrh.

Nasal catarrh is only one of its many forms; catarrh of the throat, catarrh of the stomach, bowels, liver and bladder are very common, but the sufferer usually thinks it is something else than catarrh and is treated for the wrong disease.

The best and most successful treatment for any form of catarrh is now admitted to be by internal remedies through the stomach and the safest and probably the most efficient is in the tablet form, sold by druggists as Stuart's Catarrh Tablets.

I have seen many remarkable cures of catarrh resulting from regular daily use of these tablets, which seem to act on the blood and liver, driving the catarrhal poison out of the system through the natural channels.

I once had occasion to carry these tablets and found them to contain no cocaine or opiates, but simply a combination of harmless antiseptics like Eucalyptol, Guaiacol, Menthol and Thymol.

At any rate I have known of several catarrhal headaches which were cured by Stuart's Catarrh Tablets, and also catarrhal deafness, catarrhal and catarrh of the throat and nasal passages show great benefit after a few days' use of the remedy and it is worth remembering how much more convenient a tablet is than inhalers, douches, snouches, and powders it is not surprising that a remedy so simple should so rapidly supplant all other remedies for catarrh.

The Annual Railway Ball.

This annual ball of the United Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen was held last Thursday evening in the old opera; it was a gratifying success. Over 200 were present, among whom were many from Toronto, Peterboro and Port Hope. The refreshments, which consisted of the usual delicacies of the season, were served in the council chamber, under the supervision of Mesdames Crozier and other ladies. Messrs. Musselman and Woodhouse's orchestra furnished music for the occasion in a very pleasing manner.

Sensible Etiquette.

A man never uncovers when entering a theatre or public place.

A man leaves his overcoat, umbrella, cane, hat and rubbers in the anteroom before entering a drawing room.

A man precedes a woman in going up a public stairs in a private house he follows. He also goes before a woman in going down the aisle of a church or theatre.

A man does not take off his hat in a public elevator.

Let the hostess be the first to shake hands.

A man removes the glove of his right hand before offering to shake hands.

PERSONALS.

—Mr. and Mrs. Craig, of Lakefield, are guests of relatives in town.

—Miss J. Henderson and Miss L. Henderson are visiting friends in Oshawa.

—Rev. Father Twohey, of Peterboro, is spending a few days with friends in this vicinity.

—Miss C. Crilly, of Shawangan Falls, Que., is spending a few days in town, the guest of friends.

—Mr. Louis Archambault, who has been spending the winter with his parents, left Friday for Quebec City.

—Miss Buller and Miss Curtis, of Port Hope, are spending a few days in this village, the guest of Miss Walters, Hide-out-st.

—Mr. J. B. Simpson has returned from his visit with his sister, Mrs. E. H. Dunham, at Montreal, and left a few days here before leaving for his home in Victoria, B.C.

—Mr. R. Campbell, who three months ago was called away to Manitoba, Man., on account of the serious illness of his brother, Mr. J. N. Campbell, and was afterwards stricken down with typhoid fever at Portage la Prairie arrived home last Friday, and was accompanied by Mrs. Campbell.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

—The more the saloon-keeper grows in Kansas, the more Mrs. Nation seems disposed to rush the grower.

—The Anderson Furniture Co. of Wiarton, N. S., has 200 men at work on their limits near Trout Creek. Musselman and Hall have contracted for their factory.

—Mr. A. J. Graham, clothier, has decided to close his branch store in Bobcaygeon, and as he has no use for the stock here he has decided to hold an auction sale in Bobcaygeon, beginning Monday next.

—The tonic sol-fa system of music teaching has been condemned by Toronto school board, after a 20 years' trial. The inspection committee has recommended that the staff notation be again used, as the children are forced to learn it in any event if they want to pursue music studies after leaving school.

—Mr. Granger, a millionaire farmer, manufacturer of Washington, Indiana, believes that religion is a cure for tobacco and an incentive to good work, and has engaged a local paper at a liberal salary to hold a daily hour religious service daily. Dollars to doughnuts that Granger pays lower wages than any other furniture man in the States.

—Over three hundred steamers and sailing vessels of Great Lakes and Midland harbor that season, and the Free Trade says the number would have been doubled had there been a sufficient depth of water. The Mississippi Public Works has been approached by the Board of Trade and Commerce, with a request that a 20-foot channel and basin be dredged this next spring. Mr. Alfred A. La Duke, of Redwing, President of the Central Ontario Fruit Growers, brought last week from Belle field. He reported that the damage done by the frost was not extensive as at first reported, and is covered by insurance. The building used for treating the pest in the last stages was destroyed, but the implements, and the other buildings containing very valuable machinery were saved. A new building will be erected at once.

—A hundred things happen every week that the newspaper man never sees. He does the best he can, keeps his eyes and ears open, but he is only a human being, neither omniscient nor omnipresent. You often wonder why this thing or that thing was not published and maybe you say the newspaper has its favorites, and they have. Here are the people who are thoughtful enough to send what news they have to the newspaper office or inform the reporter to come.

Sale of East Ward Property.

Mr. A. D. Mallon has disposed of six water front lots near the Beaverbury, better known as the old paper mill site, to Messrs. Ellingwell & Beall, proprietors of the new lumber mill which they recently established in the north ward. Mr. Mallon has taken off the ground two brick-veneered cottages opposite Spratt & Killen's grocery store house on King-st., east ward.

Lindsay Man in Quarantine.

Some 36 travellers have been shut up in a Sudbury hotel all week, and will have to spend 14 days there for fear of the Provincial Board of Health. It seems that a sick man from Winnipeg put up there for a night, and it afterwards transpired that he had smallpox. There was no room and plenty of teeth among the travellers when the doctor arrived to put them under imprisonment, but the officers of the law proved dead to all their entreaties. Mr. John Dearson, of the ehat ward, is among the prisoners.

Police Court Calendar.

—Geo. Keasey, of Ops, spent a portion of Saturday in town, and the brief experience of our higher civilization, and the school, proved too much for him. Our Chief Nevison found him at the Daly house about 4 o'clock in a distinctly bellicose mood, and his language was of a character unfit in polite society a couple of centuries ago, according to what historians tell us, was decidedly more entertaining to present day standards. Geo. was summoned to appear before Magistrate Steele this morning, and his fine of $2.00 and costs was enough to pay for a couple of cords of stove for the stress.

Municipal Reform Association.

A committee of the Municipal Reform Association of Montreal, appointed to investigate the matter of taxing department stores, report against such a tax. It gives the following reasons: First, because taxes on industries are contrary to the association's principles; and tax on departments would ruin many of the department stores, and business in the departmental stores are a benefit to the community, being economical, advantageous and convenient. They are economical because they buy and sell for cash, and buy in large quantities, direct from the manufactures. They are advantageous because they can obtain or make things more quickly than smaller stores. They are convenient because everything except fuel can be bought under one roof, and all are delivered punctually.

DOCTORS BAFFLED

A CASE OF SCIATICA WHICH REFUSED TO YIELD TO THEIR TREATMENT.

The Patient Spent Nearly Three Months in a Hospital Without Getting Relief —Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Restored him to Health and Strength.

For upwards of a quarter of a century, Mr. Geo. McLean has been a resident of the town of Thorold. He is generally called upon his farm, in McCeary and McLean, and is known not only in the district of that town, but by most of the inhabitants of the adjoining region as well. Many of Mr. McLean's friends know that he was afflicted with a severe type of sciatica, and know that he has been released from the pangs of that excruciating trouble, believing that his story would be of public interest, a reporter called upon him and asked him to what agency he attributed his fortunate release from pain. Mr. McLean's unhesitating reply was: "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I never hesitate to say so, either." Mr. McLean continued: "I was afflicted with sciatica for a number of years. The most severe attack occurred several years ago, when I was confined to my bed for six weeks. I suffered horribly with the trouble, and had to resort to morphia to relieve the pain, taking either in tablets or hypodermically. Even when I could get my left foot on the ground without undergoing intense agony, I was treated by physicians and at the hospital in St. Catharines to which institution I went for treatment as a stretcher. I was in the hospital nearly three months, but without being cured. Then I returned home very much discouraged. I was treated electricity, but it had no perceptible effect. I also tried a number of advertised medicines, but with no better results. Finally I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and as I was willing to try anything that seemed to offer hope of a cure, I got several boxes. I had been using the pills nearly a month before I found, much to my surprise, that my recovery was rapid, and in the course of a few weeks I was as well as ever I had been. I am now a strong healthy man, and though I have since ensured much exposure, I have had no return of the trouble, and feel, but my experience with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills certainly proved to me that they are what they claim to be, and I embrace them opportunity of recommending them."

Rheumatism, sciatica, neuralgia, nervous prostration, paralysis, ataxia, nervous headache, nervous prostration, and all diseases arising from impurities in the blood, such as scrofula, chronic constipation, etc., are disappeared before a fair treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They build up healthy glow to pale and sallow complexions, and restore the vigor of vital power and at 50c. a box, or 6 boxes for $2.50, all druggists selling them, or by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont., Schenectady, N.Y. Be persuaded to take no substitute.

SENSE AND NONSENSE.

Not Necessarily News, but More or Less Entertaining.

"Hello, Bobby! Feeling fresh cold, haven't you?" The Victim: "Ugh! Maybe I have, but it takes an Esquimaux to feel it, I tell you."

How nice it would come about in the life only world of fashion. That poverty and trouble were "As hard to get as money.

"After all my friend," said the moralist, "life is but a dream."

"Life a dream, eh?" snorted the hard-headed man. "It nearly every dream I have had I was get up out of money than I knew what to do with."

On the walls of an old temple was found this picture:—A King forging from his crown a chain, and nearby a slave making of his chain a crown. And underneath the words: "Life is what one makes it, no matter of what it is made."

He—"You women don't have the same guilt. You can't pass a shop that has bonnets in the window without looking in."

She—"So different from you men. You can't pass a shop that has ties in the window without going in."

"Why don't you go to work?" asked the gentleman who was feeding the vagrant.

"Life dis way, lady," explained the tramp. "When I'm hungry, I'm too weak to work, and when I feel like work I ain't no necessity for me to work."

He (timidly)—"Now that we are engaged, Miss Cassie, I hope you will excuse me as much as I please, myself?" She (severely)—"Yes, Mr. Bobbed, Make the most of your time, because I shall be married nearly long after the engagement will last now-a-days, you know."

"Don't dear," said the minister's wife, "the cook has burned the steak to a crisp and ruined the pudding almost raw. "Hush" commented the parson, "remember, Jane, that these things she ought not to have done and left undone the things she ought to have done."

They were newly married, and were spending their honeymoon in Rothesay. At the expiration of a week she wrote a letter to the old home, in which it was written that "Everything went swimmingly, and that they often indulged in a little game of cribbage in the evening. Next day, on returning to lunch after an hour's walk, they found a telegram awaiting them, which said, "Mother-in-law has left for home." How do you pronounce last word?—Your answer, please.

A western paper has the following: A belated tourist having lost his way, called for a night's lodging at a farm house. The farmer's wife gladly complied, and placed the spare bedroom at his disposal. In the morning, the tourist arose, and had begun to put on his prunella. Looking about him he espied a small boy peering down the chimney piece, which he used. Later on, when the tourist had breakfasted, he apologized to the mistress for having used her tooth powder. "Tooth powder?" she queried, "we have have none." "Yes, I'm positive I did. It was a small round box on the chimney piece, white and nice." "That" she screamed, "you used that? That was aunty's tooth powder! That was aunty! Aunty! had been creamed.

A LIFE SAVED.

Marvellous recovery of little Minnie Gallagher from Malignant Diptheria.

Statement made by Mr. H. Gallagher, of Peterboro, regarding the case.

He says: 'Minnie Gallagher is my niece, and with four of the other children was prostrated by a malignant type of diptheria, Minnie was much worse than any of the others, and her life was despaired of in fact, the physician in attendance had given up all hope, and before leaving for the night expressed that her death would occur before morning, and had given directions for the disposal of the body. It was at this crisis I advised the family to try Dr. Arnold's Toxin Tablets. I had used them before, with excellent results in my own family, and owing to their great killing properties I felt confident they would do more to effect a cure than any other method of treatment. In most wonderful results followed. During the night we administered seven pills in all, and by morning the girl was able to take nourishment. Within two days more she was able to be about, and in a week was free from a splendid health. (Signed) H. Gallagher, 79 Charlotte-st. East, Toronto.

The above are the actual facts of this most wonderful cure, and besides the testimony given by Minnie's uncle, doctors and others in the neighborhood are familiar with the circumstances. Toxin Tablets are sold at 50c. a box, or six boxes for $2.50 at all druggists, large box (72 pills) 25 cents, or sent postpaid on receipt of price by the Arnold Chemical Co., Limited, Canada Life Building, 11 King-st. west, Toronto. Solid Comfort Shoes.

Goodyear Welt shoes, with Sleeper Insole.

There are two kinds of shoes, Goodyear Welt, and all other varieties.

In a Goodyear Welt there are two soles, the inner one is Leather, and the other is a Sleeper Patent Flexible Insole.

There is only one shoe that represents a perpetual comfort, whereby a shoe fits to the place of a wooden block, or a boot on the street—this is the Goodyear Welt that is made with the Sleeper Insole.

The Sleeper Patent Flexible Insole, which is made from 1-ounce Duck, is soft and pliable, perfectly waterproof, and shapes itself to the foot in such a manner as to afford the greatest possible comfort.

The Sleeper Insole will not harden with perspiration, as leather insoles do, and is always ready for dampness.

"THE SEAMY SIDE OF DEMOCRACY"

Thoughtful and Instructive Lecture Delivered by Dr. Russell, K.C., M.P., of Nova Scotia.

Ill-conceived invitations not to be selected a racial or religious issue on which to polarize the thought of our countrymen. When these conditions shall be supplied, and these conditions shall be fulfilled, then we too will have our problems to solve and our peculiar dangers to confront.

I have, then, a subject, rather than defined, one of the greatest weaknesses and perils of democracy—its liability to be swept from its moorings by such an overwhelming gusts of irrational passion as the Boer feeling, Jewish and dangerous courses by the WIDD, leagues of conspiracy and self-seeking organizations, to be perverted and sudden outbreaks and frenzies, captained with irreleveant fetishes, and dragged by fine words, big battle-cries, or fooled by the imaginations of successful phrase-makers. The potency and value of a battle-cry is fully and recognized by popular leaders and professional agitators. Dreaming of the Ephesian silversmiths, with their mob cry, "Great is Diana of the Ephesians," down to the more recent illustration furnished to us by the movement in junction to "Remember the Maine!" for less than a year has the political battle-cry served to stop their ears against the most cogent appeals the appeals of reason as effectually as the Ephesians, or others of Diana, were stopped against the sedge of the Syrens, who, by the cry, compelled Ulysses to drive them headlong into impassable rocks. Yet, this course demanded by the truth and justice of the case, this is the special use of a battle-cry. This is especially marked for the purposes of mortal conflict, but, as the Duke of Wellington used to say, cannot be conducted by shouting and battle-cry. There would be lost every day, if, the indefinitual soldier, before firing his gun, or delivering his sword-thrust, should pause to consider the merits of the cause in which he was selfless.

If Deities in Vain.

If this assembly of freemen to concert as to what is good for the common weal is the nature of a battle-royal, and a battle-cry, or a shout, then let us not distress ourselves if the methods of carnal warfare are adopted. The campaign will serve its purpose, which is never to stimulate reflection or to influence judgment of the elector, but always and everywhere to excite the emotions against argument and reason him, in the words of Milton, "a creature which is only that is demanded of the creature in sensual man."

II. CORRUPTION.

This, then, is one of the perils of democratic government, the liability of the people to be fooled by the ignorant, but of most of even fairly every intelligent and cultivated, to be led away by clamor and battle cry from the real issues of a great and deeved imagination for the time of intelligently weighing the claims of rival candidates on the merits of competing policies. I am not, in a country of intelligence and a wider diffusion of intelligence than ever before, so afraid of reform. But there is still more serious danger which threatens the safety of popular government and which is more to be feared and dreaded than this as more dangerous and more serious and inevitable than mere defective legislation. I refer to the existence and prevalence of electoral corruption, which, I fear, exists in every democratic community to a serious, and in the individual degree, that I think so well instructed observer will venture to deny. I hope it will not come to light both in the United States and in our own Dominion of corruption the most adjectival of the reality and consequence of its existence.

There is in very many constituencies a sufficiently large number of corruptible electors to turn the scale where the opinions of the constituency are anything like evenly balanced, or where the popularity of the candidate stands upon anything approaching equality. Flagrant and scandalous votes do not all go one way. They also are more or less divided in their sentiments, and it frequently happens that even a corrupt majority would rather be bought on one side than on the other, so that if the campaign funds on either side are spent on an equitable division of opinion of the constituency is not miserably misrepresented in the result. There are also times when public opinion is so pronounced and emphatic one way or other that it overbears the force of corruptible voters to go all one way.

will still make itself effectually felt. But there are doubtful times and there have doubtless been cases, in which the result of the vote of the electors of a given constituency, or even of a given ward, has been absolutely determined by the relative weight of the corruption funds at the command of the respective parties, or by the conscience of the respective barrels that happen to be larger than those of the rival candidates. Where it is simply a question of the success or failure of a candidate this matter is of comparatively unimportance, but only of comparative importance, for it is surely a thing of evil example to the youth of any country that a candidate of weaker intelligence or less elevated morality should triumph over his rival by his superior wealth in his corruption and overplugs in the course of the purchase of the votes of the electors, which should be deplored when a question of national policy is determined by the sheer preponderance of unprincipled votes, and it is to be regarded on the scale of the arts of bribery and corruption.

I am not disposed to argue that even in these days of the Roman degeneracy better than these, or that the prevalence of electoral corruption is peculiarly to be ascribed to the democratic form of government, let me tend from an unpublished letter of a friend of mine, Professor Smith, of Mount Allison University, to show that, so far from our being worse than our forefathers, we are improving upon their morals in this as in many other respects. Referring to the time of Pitt, before the passing of the first Reform Bill in 1832, he says: "Bribery and corruption were simply notoriously rife. We have, in spite of many things nowadays, and I have no doubt spectacle of the Boer war, to be, but political corruption has become comparatively a thing of the past, and corrupt, and the great mass of people, and more especially the gentry, it as a rule, hideous, monstrous thing. Pitt, I remember, was a very pure politician, and the great mass of people, and more especially the gentry, and many young gamers where he strain of genius. Small boroughs, the seats controlled, in fact virtually owned by large proprietors or corporations, sold themselves outright to the highest bidder. Pitt was some undoubtedly. The borough of Bodmin actually sold itself for sale in 1761. In 1790, at a time when many Englishmen were turning human hides with the spoils of Hindoo and Indian Pillage, Lord Lonsdale sold, being disatisfied with his bargain, the seat for Cockermouth, offered a borough-jobber £2,500 for a seat, and, when he was told that there was no such thing as a borough to be had now, he bought it."

Rich East and West Indians

had secured them all at the rate of £4,000 a seat, and, in the year 1796, and two or three that he knew of in Cornwall, "Sir Christopher Pilkington, Mayor of Oxford—a university town, noted for the high character of cultivation in Great Britain, —in conversation with me, said he knew all men of high social respectability, who had purchased their seats in the estimate of the city, offering to return the money if the parties would only pay the local debts of the city corporation. Lord Grey, whose virtues would seem to have been strongly developed in the form of purity, for they actually brought the tears to his eyes when he spoke of them. The offending eleven were dismissed by a unanimous vote of the House of Commons, some from going to church when it was not under the law compelled them from going to business or pleasure, and, in the case of a second, regulating a people who did not go to church are worse than the heathens, for every man who has an idol no longer than your finger would go to the temple to worship his idol."

Pitt was, and, in filling was then addressed. He said many people might, if they were, think Pitt was "the late Mr. So and So."

Pitt, he said, was the ideal, the sky, the responsive pews were in succession unanimously voted out of office. Mr. Roberts, though a man of about 70 years of age, was a man of vigor and ability, and, and, and he was a most interesting lecturer and a most delightful conversationalist, and critisers, which he uses to good effect. He said that Mr. Roberts, in one place, held for over an hour and everyone was sorry when he finished. He said he had spent a most enjoyable and profitable evening.

Shortborns and Lincoln Sheep

Mr. Corley, of Cipper Leaf Lodge Belgrave, Ont., is visiting under the parental roof, west end Kent-st. He is a breeder of Shorthorns, and has pure bred Shorthorn cattle, also Lincoln sheep, a very fine lot of stock, from H. Dudding, esq., the same block as the 1900 grand champion was sold recently, they slip from 25 to 30 lbs. more fine wool than anything in some instances 16 inches in length. The stock of themselves into a lovely pound, called.

"The Christian Club,"

—surely the name is not only of the kind that ever existed—for the express purpose of selling the votes of the lightest bidder. And a golden harvest did those Christian Gentlemen reap. There were five candidates, each willing to offer, if they could, a fully voted for—paying them $4,000 for their nominations, however, paled into insignificance by the generosity of the Premier of Grampsford, who at one time, spent over $10,000 in guineas, or about $1,500. In 1837 the citizens of Yorkville and the three candidates almost half a million pounds sterling, or, not far from $2,500,000, or over $800 for each voter. Ten of the candidates was the celebrated Wilberforce, liberator of the slaves, most great of men, whose share of the expenses, defrayed by public subscription, was $200,000. This election, I may say, was the most expensive Great Britain has ever known. When disguise was thought necessary in doing the bribery, which was not very often (in case it) till pretty well on, into this country, devices were adopted, some of which I have understood survive even to this day. Thus we hear of fifteen or twenty pounds being given for a canary bird. Still another would-be member, reversing the process, used a reversing tuner by selling him a sow with nine little pigs for a penny.

I should like to quote at greater length from this highly interesting and informative letter, but enough has been cited to show that, bad as we are, we are not worse than our forefathers; and indeed, I almost feel that, so far from regarding bribery and corruption as one of the peculiar dangers of democracy, I should have presented our comparative immunity from this evil as one of the distinguishing merits. That I will not do, however; the improvement that has been effected in this respect has simply gone on, your power is the remedy was passed, with all the other improvements by which it has been signalized. It remains true that electoral bribery, and the corruption of constituencies, on an extent that may permit the verdict of this country, still flourish to an extent that should and stimulate all who wish well to our young commonwealth to seek to apply a remedy. I have seen a suggestion in one of our religious newspapers that the cure for this serious and strengthening evil is to be found in the introduction into public life of a higher type of politician. It seems to me that the word is the wrong end to begin of. I am not disposed to the defence of the politicians and legislators who have so long filled the public life. It is safe enough to say that they are better than their constituencies. But whether they be good, bad or indifferent, I am sure that only when the people of the country have made them, and, by means in the power of the people, to the best the country desires to have, this stream cannot be cleansed at its source. If, and in so far as the constituencies are corrupt and venal, the acts of bribery and corruption will be covered in the dark and mysterious surfaces.

"TO THE PEWS"

Rev. E. Roberts of Lindsay, Delivers an Able Address.

At Cherrydale Avenue Baptist church Peterboro, the other evening, Rev. E. Roberts, of this town, gave a most interesting and instructive address on a fitable lecture entitled, "To the Pews." We take the following extracts from his address:

In opening the lecturer said "minister often get into trouble by dealing in personalities, and I will give an instance in which the noted "Billy Bray," after preaching a sermon was approached by a friend, who was a man who said, 'you gave was very eloquent concerning this morning and I enjoyed it very much and I want to know why you were so personal?' Bray replied, 'I did not know a man in the congregation and therefore could not be personal in my preaching.' Didn't you say that 'some young ministers may marry lovely ladies, then fall sick and drop out of the work, and live on their widows pensions?' Yes I said that, and were you a young minister?' Yes, I said. 'And did you marry a wealthy lady?' Yes, I married a wealthy lady.' 'Do sir, I was sick.' 'Are the living on your money?' 'No, it is none of your business.' 'Now, see here, I want to be personal, I want to such before and you are the sickly.' Bray said, 'I know I was going to talk to the pews, but if you happened to be in the Philippines I would hit you, put it on and wear it to get warm.' Bray was a great man.

First he addressed himself to the young people, and he said he was given why pews are sometimes empty. He said, 'Young people charities is far too small to accommodate all who would come.' He said the reasons assigned he mentioned, lack of opportunity, and lack of desire for worshiping God with the congregations. Young people have no excuse that the pastor had not called on them. Young people are aware they lived in town. Incidents of the pastor's visit would prevent some from going to church when it was not under the law compelled them from going to business or pleasure, and, in the case of a second, regulating a people who do not go to church are worse than the heathens, for every man who has an idol no longer than your finger would go to the temple to worship his idol.

He said that was in filling was then addressed. He said many people might, if they were, think Pitt was "the late Mr. So and So."

Pitt, he said, was the ideal, the sky, the responsive pews were in succession unanimously voted out of office. Mr. Roberts, though a man of about 70 years of age, was a man of vigor and ability, and, and, and he was a most interesting lecturer and a most delightful conversationalist, and critisers, which he uses to good effect. He said that Mr. Roberts, in one place, held for over an hour and everyone was sorry when he finished. He said he had spent a most enjoyable and profitable evening.

Gifts and Curios from Africa

Ex-Ald. and Mrs. J. D. Graham of the north ward, have recently spent some time to time many curious and valuable souvenirs from their son Charley, who has recently arrived at the Roberts Light Horse in South Africa since April 18th, 1900. Charley paid his own fare to the Cape, and joined the seat of war, and if he has not had his share of adventure, his longing must be insatiable, as he took part in some stiff engagements and had two horses shot under him. He was arrested for discharge on Jan. 9th last, and has spent seven weeks in hospital, and expected home Saturday next. The curios and souvenirs he brought home are interesting from a most interesting and delightful standpoint. Among the contents of a small pocket received by his father are a number of cartridges, one of which is a dum-dum, the point of which is cut off, and the other is a dum-dum, the point of which is cut off, and the other is a dum-dum, the point of which is cut off, and the other

THE REASON WHY

"Shiloh" Cures Consumption.

Consumption is not merely a disease of the lungs, as generally supposed, but before the lungs become affected the blood has—from various causes—been crowded with the bacillus of Consumption. These germs are deposited in the lungs by the blood, causing inflamation, coughing and the spitting up of diseased mucopurulent matter. Shiloh's Cure arrests the ravages of the germs by destroying them—it purifies the blood and enriches it—allays the inflamation and irritation and sets up a healing process, which causes the sore parts to get well and cicatrize. Shiloh's Consumption Cure strengthens and tones up the whole system and makes it particularly repellent to the dreaded germs of Consumption.

It is guaranteed to accomplish this. If dissatisfied when 25 of a bottle has been used, return the remaining portion and the whole purchase money will be refunded.

J. H. Caldwell of Malta, Idaho, writes as follows to S. C. Wells & Co., Toronto: "I have used SHILOH'S CONSUMPTION CURE many different times, and always received great benefit from it. I consider it the best cough remedy of the kind, and save no from an attack of consumption, as many people said I had it."

In Canada and United States, 25c., 50c. and $1.00 a bottle. Great Britain, 1s/d., 2s/6 and 4s/6d.

LETTER FROM SOUTH AFRICA

EXPERIENCES OF TROOPER SKINNER, OF THE STRATHCONAS

While out with his Regiment in Chase of Boers—Several Engagements with the Boer General's Rear Guard—On Duty Almost Night and Day

Our readers will remember the following interesting letter from Trooper Alex. Skinner, of the Strathcona Horse, for which we are indebted to his father, Mr. Alex. Skinner, of the same ward. The letter gives some interesting details of the tireless chase of the British troops after the wily De Wet.

In Camp near Ladybrand, (Vulnburg nearest Station, and Fickeburg nearest Village.)

Saturday Evening, Dec. 22, 1900.

My dear father:—I have a very hurried line I can send you and mother, and the dear ones at home, this beautiful midsummer evening, balmy as the famed breezes of Ceylon, the surrounding scenery being like a dream of fairy land—beautiful pastoral and farming valleys, interspersed with rocky kopjes, which here are of the most varying and odd shapes, rising here and there from out the valleys without any particular rhyme or reason with the adjoining ridges. Over to the east we see the blue line of the mountains dividing the State from Basutoland—the Drakensberg range, I think they call it.

This is the first leisure and rest we have had since we left Petchefstroom on "hurry" orders for Allwal North, and I assure you it has been a case of "hurry" with this regiment, or at least we have really had almost literally no rest neither night nor day.

To give you a sketch even of our trip would require several sheets of paper and more time than I now have, so will reserve that until I get home, where there is time to ponder and some spare moments, I am coming on.

Water Bottle as a Desk, and a scrap of paper that I have carried in my pocket for weeks, and had been unable to get many a time.

We arrived at Bethlehem Station on Sunday evening, the 2nd December, the end of a four days' continuous march of 60 miles, fair with Pretchel roses, the horses having to be unsaddled, cinched, fed and watered, and then re-laded every evening or night, rather. Our destination was a place of some consequence, we heard secret, even our own officer telling us, as we were rushing down to Fickeburg, that he thought we would be mutilated at Allwal North and proceed from some place. Instead of that we were detrained at Bethlehem Station, attached to Gen. Dixie's Brigade, ordered to saddle up at once, night march, 11.30 p.m., although all night march and next day, the light of a waning moon; sniffing in action, air smoke in the We'n trenches, and ourselves right into the firing-line shortly afterwards, regulars running back.

Gauntlet of a Hot Musser Fire

as we were getting over few poor horses. With the most powerful "luck" of the Strathconas, no one was hit, but all of our horses shot. We remained held in a "dongo" or dry creek bed and extended up the side of a kopje to repulse a mounted charge, taking stock at the top of another kopje and "Pom-Pom" off, where we's pounded the Boer influence, while meantime our artillery disembarked and shelled Boers in rear, over our heads into the Boer trenches in splendid fashion, and our pom-poms helped into them wherever they had a chance. Out of our ranks, Playfair, was wounded and by the explosion (premature) of one of our pom-poms shells, which fell very near some of our own men instead of delivering its message to the Boers, but he is all right and fairly hard and will soon be all right again.

About 2 p.m. our lyddite shells exploded fairly amongst the Boers and the survivors must have beaten a hurried retreat, for not another Musser did we hear that day. We remained in our position until after dark, when rain set in with darkness, so we had to "mount and ride" in spite of lads that made their way back to carry chat night. After four days with scarce a wink of sleep, eight hours in the saddle, 12 hours without a bite, it was my luck to be "retable picket" that night.

Revelled Next Day

3 a.m., and we are off on a stern hard chase after De Wet's commando, which now has degenerated into a lot of lawless, cowardly brigands or robbers, and have been on his track, more or less ever since we left Allwal North, where some other Regiments have taken up the chase, and after a day's rest at Vet River, made this camp in a valley of good grass and water, and will likely now a-stay go to the railway and get repaired, as home from us we are, and we are, we hope, to stay a little while. We have been up until and including to-day, we have been revelle at 3 a.m., and many times at 2 a.m. We were only allowed to take one blanket and sheet with us, no change of clothes, and we have had heavy thunderstorms and rains almost every day and night, you can imagine we have been "roughing" it in earnest at Lady.

We have only about 200 men with us now of "Strathconas," 40 or more of whom have no horses, having lost them either by bullet or exhaustion on the trip. I had the misfortune to lose my little horse, and have been like a lost sheep myself ever since to a certain extent. The second day out we had the experience of when in flood—rather exciting and dangerous proceeding, but all the regiment luckily got over safely. The crossing was at about 3 a.m. The Boers had tried to get back at this Ford but could not cross, and left one of our captured 18 pounder cannon and a pom-pom there. That same morning being on the left flanking party, we came across a complete rank of British saddles, harness and about 20 played out horses left by the Boers. Right on this trail we kept, and went into Rouxville Saturday afternoon at 4 p.m. for a rest, and 12 hours kick and 24 day but carried me in all right. Monday got a cotton shirt and a collar and tie, socks again then.

Orders to move at 5 p.m. that afternoon, (only an hour or two) and we had to cross over the Caledon River, and had to go 30 miles next day, and next day 30 miles more, and we were on the trail of Kritzinger's rear guard, and yesterday on his weekly provisional stand, and we had captured a hundred of many friends, including his cousin, Mrs. T. C. Mitchell.

Another Avenue of Trade for Lindsay

Mr. Thos. McConnell of the Royal Hotel received the following letter which speaks for itself. The result may be that Lindsay will open up a profitable trade with Uncle Sam in our far famed sausage.

Schenectady, N.Y., Feb. 11, '01.

Mr. Thomas McConnell, Prop. Royal Hotel, Lindsay, Ont.

Dear Sir,—When Mr. Davis and myself visited Lindsay last July on our way to Bobcaygeon last July you mentioned your famed sausage. Knowing you as a man who enjoyed seeing his fellow-men eat, we were surprised. We have met you before and know you to be a man who sometimes goes down to camp, and they were good you once, but he was so far gone he could not walk even with the saddle off, so I felt sure you would never come back to camp to ask me about him, as they say our orders were, 'It has got to be a blizzard' case to write any more, so will wind up. I have kept pretty well on this trip, but I can tell you there is not much of it on me now. And now good-night, with love to mother, I remain, and all the dear ones, yours truly, Happy New Year. Here are some Christmas cards formed by one of our corps yesterday of some samples of this country's grass.—Very affectionately yours,

ALEX. SKINNER.

Railway Notes.

—There are 20,000 employees on the railways in the United Kingdom, and their cost has been about 200 per cent. of their wages.

—The Hallingston Lumber Company has shipped into Port Arthur 1,000,000 wooden wedges for the Grand Trunk Railway in the Yukon. The wedges are slipping under rails that have been shipped by Ford, to raise the Yukon Railway.

—It appears that Euston station, London, was considered large enough in 1846 for a single train, but in 1847 and again in 1882 it was found necessary to enlarge the station at a cost of a great expenditure, to accommodate the enormous increase of traffic which had taken place.

Fell Dead at the station

WM RAMSAY, OF MARIPOSA, HAD HEART DISEASE.

He Expired Suddenly in the G. T. R. Station Waiting Room—Went down to Bit Good-bye to his Grand daughter—Inquest Unnecessary.

Mr. Wm Ramsay, a highly respected and well-known resident of the township of Mariposa, expired suddenly in the G.T.R. waiting room Thursday morning about 9.05 o'clock.

Mr. Ramsay had been spending a few days in town with his son, Mr. George Ramsay, of Cambridge—a brakeman on the G.T.R. running out of Lindsay. He went to the station to see his grandchild, a little Nellie, who was going to Mariposa Station, and he suddenly fell over and expired just as the Port Hope train, No. 21, had pulled into the station.

Dr. Gillespie was immediately sent for, but life had been extinct several minutes when the physician arrived. Heart Failure was undoubtedly the cause of the old gentleman's death, as he was under treatment for that complaint for several years. It is supposed that a hurried walk to the station brought on the attack. Mr. Ramsay was in his 82nd year. Mr. T. H. Cooke, a well-known Mariposa farmer, is a son-in-law of the deceased. Dr. Poole deemed an inquest unnecessary.

WEDDING BELLS

McNeilie-McCullough.

A quiet but interesting wedding was solemnized on Tuesday, Feb. 5th, at 4.30 p.m. at Erskine Presbyterian church, Toronto, when Dr. T. P. McCullough, of Peterboro, was united in marriage to Rachel Kerr, eldest daughter of I. B. McNeilie, 167 Borden-st., Toronto. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. James Murray, B.A., pastor of Erskine church. The bride was attired in a travelling dress of brown, with hat to match, and carried a bouquet of white Bridal roses. The bridesmaid was Miss McCullough, sister of Nickols' hospital, Peterboro, who was attired in a blue tailor-made costume and carried a bouquet of pink roses. The groom was supported by Mr. Fred McCutcheon, of Toronto. After the ceremony the Dr. and Mrs. McCullough left on the Midland train to spend their honeymoon in New York and other American cities. The wedding gifts were very numerous and valuable, testifying to the high esteem in which the happy couple are held. The bride's father was in town yesterday on his weekly professional visit, and received congratulations of many friends, including his cousin, Mrs. T. C. Mitchell.

To Preserve the Deer.

Now that the Ontario legislature is in session, discussion of the amendment of the game laws will come as naturally as snow and ice come in winter. Some want to have the deer-hunting season shortened from 15 days to 10, and others want to prohibit the killing of bucks for a term of years, on the ground that species of slaughter is not sport, lower convenient it may be to those who must depend on the supply of meat for his family with the least possible loss of time. The Ontario game law of 1897 and 1898 the game laws of Ontario are undergoing their annual amendment the legislature of 1899 added to the list of protected game, the wanton practice of killing deer in the waters. It is not good sport to paddle up to deer that has been bounded into the water and let fly at it from one barrel of a rifle, duck or catcher-rifle. It may gratify some Angling Society tyro to kill the most abundant chiefly cannot regard it as sport. Last year 1899 there were computed 2,032 carcasses of deer. There were 3,569 deer-hunting licenses issued to Ontario settlers took out permits to hunt deer. Incomplete returns published in the Globe Commissioner's report show that there were 5,600 deer-hunters in the woods during the fifteen days' open season. Now, if we multiply, each one of the assumption that the laws were generally observed, we have a total number of deer killed of 9,600, but there were 5,600 hunters, so that ten thousand would be nearer the actual number.

The figures are sufficiently alarming to warrant some radical changes in the law to prevent depletion. The prohibitory clause should be strengthened. That would be retaliation for the action of Michigan, which has have been changed from time to time in the last 10 years, and reduced the average hunter from the city whose fear excites the sympathy of those who cannot see a deer till it jumps, would stand a good chance of killing one or fifteen days, or even fifteen weeks shall have passed. There are special clauses in the game law applicable to the Indian peninsula of Bruce county, making it illegal to kill deer in the water, or immediately after they have swum in. This law should be made applicable to the entire province. Much fun be said in favor of genuine sport but butchery should not be encouraged. The Ontario Game Protective Association tate the camera for the rifle is growing, and is worthy of all commendation.

"For God's Sake Get Me a Place to Die In."

These words were uttered a few weeks ago by a poor fellow as he lay on his death-bed in a hotel at Gravenhurst. A week before he had travelled a weary day to reach the Sanatorium, but on medical examination it was found that the disease (consumption) was too far advanced to admit him. He tried to get board in Gravenhurst and finally three weeks ago fell into secured admission to one of the hotels. He soon became worse and the resident physician of the Sanatorium was called in. When it became known that he had consumption, it was found impossible to get attendants to wait on him for fear of risk of contagion. The hostler of the hotel was asked to help and on his refusal was offered $1.00 a day extra, but preferred to give up his position rather than risk his health. He was finally, to the danger of infection from the patient. The physician from the Sanatorium had to perform the duties of nurse and maid to the end of his life. Now, I do not follow found that the management of the hotel wished to get him out of the way, and he cried out "for God's sake to get him a place to die in. The doctor looked after him for some days, remaining with him on his last visit until one o'clock in the morning. The poor man died a few hours after his last day in his bed and beyond the need of further care. Telegrams had been sent to his friends, and his sister, a fine young woman, reached Gravenhurst just in time to take away the dead body of her brother.

Various proposals have been made to erect suitable structures to commemorate our late beloved Queen. When Diamond Jubilee was celebrated four years ago large hospital endowments were begun in London and elsewhere with the special association of the royal expression of the nation's congratulations. To make it universal, similar conditions were called for.

The National Sanitarium Association has provided a place in Gravenhurst for patients who are able to pay, and this has proved a blessing by saving hundreds of lives since it was opened. Three-fourths of the Sanatorium's 100 poor patients who cannot pay and who are in the early stages of consumption, are in process of erection near the Sanatorium.

VICTORIA HOSPITAL FOR CONSUMPTIVES.

To round up this work the National Sanitarium Association proposes to build another hospital, near Toronto, for incurable consumptives. What a fitting memorial could be erected than a "Victoria Hospital" for such cases? It would be a memorial, of course, will have their statue of the Queen, but this will not be a national memorial. Let us call it "Victoria" or the "Victoria Hospital" under the auspices of the National Sanitarium Association, and this might be built by contributions from Canada, and the towns, villages and town could send to it consumptive patients and thus become a memorial to the Queen, to which they have contributed.

Humanity demands that something should be done; self-protection against the spread of the dreadful disease demands something be done; but the very doing of this humane work of the Queen makes it more difficult for its hopeless victims to remain in their public resorts long enough to die in peace.

"For God's sake get me a place to die in" is a call that should be no longer left unanswered. Your dollar will help to answer it.

Contributions are already coming in for this much needed institution.

HOME FROM SOUTH AFRICA.

Trooper Eagleson was Welcomed by the Collegiate Cadets.

Trooper Eagleson, of the 2nd Canadian Contingent, who is well known townsman, Mr. David Eagleson, arrived in town Monday at 10.30 a.m., by the north-bound train. He was met and received by his friends until early that morning. Trooper Eagleson's homecoming was not thought to be so marked by the Collegiate Cadets, who paraded about 40 strong, in command of Lieut. Hopkins, to the station. When the gallant Trooper made his appearance at the platform he was cheered, he was welcomed by his many old school chums, who had assembled in several leading citizens. The Cadets gave a hearty cheer, which was followed by Lieutenant Hopkins, who called for Auditors—Messrs. G. A Little and Peter Kennedy.

At a subsequent meeting of the Up-town Cadets, Mr. Hopkins was re-elected president and Mr. G. H. Hopkins secretary-treasurer.

A person who has lost appetite has lost something besides—vitality, vigor and tone.

The way to recover appetite and all that goes with it to take Hood's Sarsaparilla. It cures dyspepsia, dispels the blues, perfects digestion and makes eating a pleasure again.

Thousands take it for spring loss of appetite and every one says there's nothing else so good as Hood's.

Medical Examination Before Marriage.

(St. Paul Pioneer Press.)

A marriage license bill has been introduced which has been much popular beverage. Thousands of barrels of beer were emptied into the gutter by the brewers rather than risk of reaching the bibulous public that they would not allow their patrons to run up bills. Some complained that one particular brew which was supposed to have developed the green owing to some chemical change in the ingredients, but the majority of the brewers risked poisoning thousands for a pecuniary loss. Beer is brewed in the city analysis, testifying it a beer containing 4 per cent. of alcohol. Beer, estimated from samples examined that the average weekly consumption of beer in Liverpool in the summer time would contain three hundred pounds of arsenic, enough to kill a million, if administered in equal doses and at one time.

3. The Rink is insured for $1,000 and the policy expires on 28th October, 1902.

4. That practically the only income we have is what we receive from the Lindsay Curling Club, last year we received only $137, nearly $70 less than the year before. This is not sufficient to run the Club, and as there is now a balance of $2,81 due the contractor, and unpaid dividends to the amount of $61, it will be necessary to declare a dividend for this year, as unless we can get more from the Lindsay Curling Club during the coming year it will take that amount of our capital to defray only the current expenses, without paying any dividend. We hope, however, that next year we may receive the usual amount of Lindsay Curling Club receipts, and pay dividends in the future as usual.

5. We feel it necessary again that we think it a grievance that the Lindsay Curling Club should charge us a polling booth. The present polling booth is a disgrace to the town. But in any case the rink is of great use and benefit to the town generally and furnishes a great deal of amusement for non-players. No fee is ever charged for admittance, although several hundred people come to the rink to see the match games, and we think the Club is fairly entitled to the $10 or $15 a year which is usually paid for that purpose. We hope the Town Council will be fair to press the matter upon the Aldermen.

BAPTIST CHURCH ANNIVERSARY

Sketch of Sermons on Sunday, by Prof. Farmer, of Toronto.

The attendants of the Baptist church Sunday had the pleasure of twice hearing fine sermons by Prof. Farmer of McMaster University, Toronto, who was in town in connection with the anniversary sermons which had been held in the church. Farmer is an easy and pleasing delivery, and carried his audience with him by his spiritual knowledge of the Word. He bears a striking resemblance to Mr. Geo. Hughes Pentor, of conservative "Grey" fame. His morning sermon was on Growth, his text being taken from Hebrews, "Wherefore let us go on to perfection." He thought that Christian growth should be measured, in order to ascertain whether we were gaining in strength and capability. Growth was a subject the thought of which caused joy and brought impressions to come to him. Sadness came to him when he saw a man rolling on being good to take him into heaven, when that fact alone will never benefit him. He must have Christ, and in that way alone can avoid the disappointment which would result if not knowing this truth. Another proof of growth is to see one with more life, but who doesn't grow. When we see physical life crushed, we have filled with pity and sorrow for the sufferer, to go before an examining board of the spiritual life of grace, and be found wanting in spiritual growth is not so pitiable, but is also happy thoughts, one of which is the joy of the Apostle Paul, Spurgeon and Moody to be great saints, but they felt they were but little in God's sight. We will grow in grace into the fulness of the stature of Christ. Some christians think they must fight against sin all the time. This is not a proper idea. We have to gain ascendancy over the flesh, and although it is sometimes hard to tell, which is Spirit and which is flesh, we soon will know the difference and gain the victory if we always rely on the help of the Spirit. Growth is a progressive, and we must expect some time to elapse before we reach maturity. Paul was of no ripe patient, we will in God's time be like Him, and transformed into His glory.——In the evening Dr. Farmer spoke from Acts, 16, 30 31: "What must I do to be saved? Believe in the Lord Jesus," etc. In morning life the fact that will so many messengers pointing the way, to one of the people know it is made the same as Hagar's inability to find the well in the wilderness, until an angel pointed it to her, and thus saved her child. The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Catarrh is the only disease that science has been able to cure in the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing the work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for a list of testimonials. Address F. J. A Freak Calf.

W. R. Armstrong, of Whitchurch, has one of the greatest freaks of nature that has ever been seen in that part of the country. It is a calf without eyes or a tail. The head is wedge-shaped with no openings for the eyes whatever. Otherwise the animal is fully developed and healthy.

Church Notes.

—Ash Wednesday, Feb. 20, was beginning of the penitential season of Lent. High mass was celebrated at St. Mary's church at 9.30, when a very large congregation attended. The name "Ash" Wednesday comes from a custom which is still in vogue in the Roman church to remind the faithful that they are dust and ashes, in which the priest sprinkles dust and ashes with holy water, blesses them, and makes the mark of the cross on the worshipper's forehead with them, saying in Latin: "Remember, man, that thou art but dust, and to dust thou will return."

Obituary.

—Mr. Dennis Twohey, one of the oldest and most highly esteemed residents of the township of Ops, died at his home, Adelaide-st., Lindsay, early last Saturday. The deceased had not been in the best of health for a couple of years, but was able to be about. Friday evening about 8 o'clock he was taken seriously ill, and despite the best medical aid he expired at 3 o'clock next morning. Mr. Twohey was 78 years of age, and was a brother of the late John Twohey, of the 4th con. of Ops. Mr. E. P. Gillogly, town, is a son-in-law. An extended notice will appear in Monday's issue.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

—Clearing out sale of coats from 95c. up, at Miss Mitchell's.—tf.

—Cutting done free for all goods bought in the shop at Miss Mitchell's. —wtf.

—The editor of the Fenelon Falls Gazette announces the first robin, but hasn't a word to say about sparrows or their habits.

A bachelor says a woman can't
Throw straight because she squints;
But just the same she's accurate
When it comes to throwing hints.

O weather man, so (wise?) that you
Fill all our hearts with awe,
Speak out and tell us where the duce
Is February's thaw.

—Twelve head of cattle and six calves were sold last week by Mr. William Thexton, of Ops, to Mr. T. Davidson, Mariposa, at good prices.

The day is over now and we
Look out for hidden signs,
That may perhaps tell who it was Sent us those Valentines.

—A gang of government men are making repairs to the abutments of the Ops swing bridge. They will also inspect the two swing bridges in town.

—An ice plow is now being used by Armstrong Bros. in the taking out of ice on the Scugog. It is quite a novelty and makes the work much easier.

—Ice thirty-three inches in thickness is being taken out at Davidson's mill-pond, Mariposa. This indicates some solid freezing.

—The duck farm in Ops, generally known as the "Low Park Farm," has been leased for a term of years by Mr. Jamieson, of Omemee.

—The Woolie family are moving into their new property on Lindsay-st., recently purchased from Mr. Wm. Fierce. They come from Woodville.

—The lady who had her hat kicked off by a clumsy boy clambering for a seat on top of a partition in the east ward Methodist church on Sunday evening, is thankful it was not her head that rolled to the bottom

—Toronto News: W. Henders, of Lindsay, challenges Oliver Dusty, of Peterboro, to skate one mile, best two in three heats, on Lindsay rink, on or about Friday, Feb. 22nd, for $10 or $25 a side. The challenge has been accepted.

—In our report of the carnival, in Saturday's issue, we inadvertently stated that Mr. R. Bell secured first prize for the best gentleman's costume. It should have read Mr. Robt. Spratt, who represented a French Count. His costume was very handsome.

—Wm. Northcutt, alias James Mitchell, of Lakefield, has been convicted of an attempt to pass a forged cheque on a Peterboro bank, of having committed several burglaries, and of having set fire to a barn and to Gough Bros.' store, all on the one night. He was sentenced to 14 years in Kingston penitentiary, where he had already served a term.

—A hulk of a young man from the suburbs has been working a quiet game on some unsuspecting citizens in order to obtain spending money without working hard for it. He has just purchased a lot of potatoes, but lacks 50c. of the sum required for payment. This amount he borrows, if he can, but invariably forgets to repay. A couple of clergymen are among his latest victims. Look out for him.

—The entertainment and oyster supper given by C.O.O.F. Friday evening was well attended. The grand master, Mr. W H. Shaw, principal of the Central Business College, Toronto, gave an interesting address. On the completion of the program in the lodge rooms the members and friends gathered at the "Big 20" restaurant, where an excellent oyster and fowl supper was served by Mr. F. Taylor.

—"There is a time to laugh and a time to weep." This was impressed on the minds of a driving party who were returning to town about midnight a few evenings since. As another sleigh was seen approaching one of the number suggested that all should laugh in chorus on passing the other rig. This was agreed to, and as they were about to pass by those with their backs to the other sleigh began to break out into loud laughter, but were promptly suppressed by the others. There was a coffin in the other sleigh. The solemn spectacle made a very solemn crowd out of a gay party in an instant. The reflection, "In the midst of life we are in death," was never more forcibly illustrated.

—Messrs. O'Loughlin & McIntyre's reduction price sale of white goods will end on Saturday, 23rd.

For twenty-four years Vapo-Cresolene has been extensively used for all forms of throat and bronchial troubles. All Druggists.

—The hockey game to-night between Port Hope and Orillia will be fast and exciting. The winning team will go into the semi-finals of the Intermediate O.H.A. series.

—On account of the Orillia-Port Hope hockey match being played in Lindsay this evening, the $25.00 challenge skating race between W. Henders and O. Dusty, of Peterboro, has been postponed until further notice.

—Mr. Wm. Irwin, lumberman, of Peterboro, and Mr. W. D. Lummis, of Spragge, Ont., a leading share holder in the Lindsay Light, Heat & Power Company, are largely interested in the new pulp industry at Spanish River. The capitalization of the concern is $1,500,000.

—Peterboro citizens are very anxious that the town should purchase the local waterworks system, and the council has appointed a committee to confer with the company. The latter are said to be willing to sell at cost price, said to be somewhere about $210,000.

—An ordinance recently adopted in Cincinnati provides that new tenements shall have a bath-room for each suite of rooms having a separate hallway, and that remodelled tenements shall have one bathroom for each three rooms. Some regulation of this kind is needed in Lindsay to compel landlords to fit up their houses in decent and modern fashion.

—Town Commissioner Chalmers has returned from Toronto with a new 20 inch Wye level for sewer work, which has compass and tripod attached. The sighting rod used in connection therewith could not be secured in Toronto, and will be sent on from Philadelphia. Its length will be 7 feet closed, but can be extended to 12 feet. The cost of the outfit will be about $104.

—Mr. R. H. Fortye, a former Peterboro citizen, met with an unfortunate experience a few nights ago near the town of Collingwood while driving. The night was bitterly cold and stormy, and the cutter upset, throwing Mr. Fortye out. The team got away and Mr. Fortye struggled after them till he fell completely exhausted He was discovered at 3 a.m. by a party of searchers who suspected an accident owing to the return of the horses. His hands and feet were so badly frost bitten that they may have to be amputated.

An Evening with the Lost Heir.

Tuesday evening about fifty members and ex-members of the Cambridge-st. Methodist church choir assembled at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. Parnell Morris, and spent the evening pleasantly, all taking part in an interesting game of progressive "Lost Heir." The prize, was awarded to Miss E. Workman. Refreshments were served during the evening. Mr. and Mrs. Morris not only take a deep interest in the musical welfare of each member of the choir, but also look well after them from a social standpoint, and the high musical standard of the choir to-day is largely due to the courteous and hearty receptions accorded each member on occasions of a similar nature.

Railway Notes.

—Citizens living in the vicinity of the G.T.R. tracks have been able to sleep well for several Sundays past, the usual trains having been cancelled. This is not because the management have become converted by the the Lord's Day Alliance, but because there is no "rush" freight offering.

—The driver of a passenger train on the Erie & Central New York Railway thought his engine was a "hoodoo" the other day. The steam dropped rapidly after a stop had been made to take in water, and such a spluttering set up about the guage that the driver and fireman became frightened and at the next station telegraphed for an extra to be sent to haul the train to the end of the run. When the engine was examined in the shops it was discovered that the boiler had been filled with milk instead of water. When the engine stopped for water the fireman, a new man, had turned a valve connecting with a near-by milk depot instead of the valve connected with the water supply.

Getting Ready Early.

The male employees in the Dundas & Flavelle Bros. store will meet at an early date for the purpose of forming a baseball club, to be called "The Dunflas." Having a good battery in the bunch, and lots of material to draw from, they will be able to place a strong team in the field, and hope to be able to arrange a number of games with clubs in town, composed of the druggists, grocers, tailors, dry goods clerks, and mill and round-house men. The others ball players should fall into line and strive to give amateur ball a good "boost" this coming summer.

Curling Notes.

—A bonspiel at Campbellford will be held next week, commencing on Tuesday. The competitions are restricted to the following Clubs: Peterboro Thistles, Peterboro Granites, Norwood, Napanee, Cobourg, Belleville, Port Hope, Keene, Kingston, Lakefield, Bobcaygeon, Lindsay, Millbrook and Campbellford. There is a double rink competition, and also a single rink competition. It is to be hoped that the Lindsay Club may be represented this year.

The clubs represented were Barrie, Beaverton, Collingwood, Lindsay, Bracebridge, Midland and Queen City, Toronto. The Lindsay rinks were beaten out for the main prize, but Skips Flavelle, Greer and F. Dundas started in to make a warm fight for the Consolation trophy. Score for the main prize was;

AN INSPIRING LIFE-STORY.

From Coal-mine to Pulpit — Hardship, Pluck, Divine Grace, Success.

The anniversary services, commemorating the 38 years of church-life of the Lindsay Baptist church, were continued last evening by the congregational tea and the platform meeting. About 200 people enjoyed a most bounteous supper provided by the ladies of the church, and about 8 o'clock the church was well filled with an audience expectant of an intellectual treat, Rev. J. Bastow having been announced as the speaker.

Simply, and yet very graphically, Mr. Bastow told the story of his life. It would not be fair, perhaps, to reproduce it here in print, but the merest outline will indicate its power. An orphan lad at six years of age, sent to work in a coal mine, and beaten, starved and deprived of all chance to learn. Converted at about fifteen. Left the coal mine in his sixteenth year. Living from hand to mouth for next two or three years, often in want and misery. Through it all a passionate desire for an education and an opportunity to preach the gospel. Met by a venerable old minister from America on a tour through England for denominational funds. Taken to America and educated. Called to some exceedingly important pastorates in the United States and Canada. Such is the story.

In moving a vote of thanks, Mr. Hardy remarked that this life-story was a most inspiring instance of "a human document." It influence would be profoundly felt by those present. Mr. J. E. Allan, of Reaboro, seconded the motion, to which Mr. Bastow aptly responded. Mr. Bastow will be sure of a large audience on any subsequent visits.

The Salvation Army.

Special six weeks' meetings, from Sunday next to Friday, April 5th, being the annual siege in the interest of drunkards, wanderers and the careless. Subjects Sunday; 11 a.m., "Old Fashioned Love Feast;" 3. p.m., "Rising and Falling;" 7.30 p.m., "Reconciliation."

Rev. J. H. Hector's Visit.

The lectures given by the Rev J. H. Hector in the Queen-st. Methodist church on Monday and Tuesday evenings were thoroughly enjoyed by those present. The lecturer is a man of fine physique and as black as a coal. His father and mother were slaves and ran away to Canada, where, under the Union Jack, this hero was shortly afterwards born. He is a sparkling speaker and during his two addresses he held his audience spell bound for an hour and a half, which seemed scarcely half an hour. He kept them constantly in ripples of mirth with his humor and flashes of wit; then, as he would depict some sad scene he would have them bathed in tears. Those who heard Mr. Hector on Sunday, and on Monday and Tuesday evenings, speak in the highest terms of his ability as a preacher and lecturer.

The First Carnival.

The first carnival of the season was held Friday evening at the Lindsay-st. rink, and was a success. The attendance of masqueraders and spectators was fairly large, and some of the costumes were very handsome and striking. Mr. R. Spratt was succesful in securing 1st prize for the best gentleman's costume; Miss Fee, daughter of Capt. Fee, for the ladies', and Messrs. Forbert Bros., for the best comic costume on the ice. The two races were interesting and exciting. The one-mile open race was won by C. O'Leary in two straight heats; Messrs. Massaw, LaPage, Wilson and Sylvester, competed in this event. Carl Sylvester ed first prize in the boys' race under 14 years, with Henders a close follower; Hetiger, Menzies and Gray also competed. Mr. W. H. Thompson was the lucky winner of the spectators prize. The Citizens' band furnished music for the occasion.

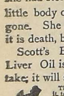
Pity and Beauty

The most beautiful thing in the world is the baby, all dimples and joy. The most pitiful thing is that same baby, thin and in pain. And the mother does not know that a little fat makes all the difference.

Dimples and joy have gone, and left hollows and fear; the fat, that was comfort and color and curve—all but pity and love—is gone.

The little one gets no fat from her food. There is something wrong; it is either her food or food-mill. She has had no fat for weeks; is living on what she had stored in that plump little body of hers; and that is gone. She is starving for fat; it is death, be quick!

Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil is the fat she can take; it will save her.



The genuine has this picture on it, take no other.
If you have not tried it, send for free sample, its agreeable taste will surprise you.

LINDSAY, FRIDAY, FEB. 22nd, '01

THE ADDRESS PASSED

Mr. Hugh Guthrie and Mr. Marcil Move and Second It.

PREMIER AND MR. R.L. BORDEN.

Mr. Marcil Makes an Eloquent Plea for Canadian Unity and a Total Submergence of Racial Questions—Sir Wilfrid Laurier Completely Answers Mr. Borden's Questions on Various Things

Ottawa, Feb. 12.—The debate upon the address in reply to the speech from the throne in the House yesterday was brief, being confined to speeches by Mr. Hugh Guthrie and Mr. Charles Marcil, the mover and seconder, the leader of the Opposition and the Premier. By mutual consent controversial questions were avoided by the speakers. The main estimates for the ensuing year were brought down, together with half a dozen departmental reports, and the House adjourned at 5.15.

Mr. Ingram introduced his bill to amend the Dominion election act, which received a first reading, as did also Mr. Madore's bill "respecting money-lenders."

Eight reports of departments were laid on the table, viz.: Public Accounts, Postoffice, Interior, Indian Affairs, Agriculture, Public Works, Inland Revenue and Marine and Fisheries.

Mr. Hugh Guthrie.

Mr. Guthrie (South Wellington), rose at 3.12 to move the Address in reply to His Excellency's speech. He referred to the new Parliament, the new century and the new sovereign. He described the Conservatives in 1896 as a Government battling against adversity, and in the late election as an Opposition battling against prosperity. He rebutted the theory that trade conditions in Canada are dominated by trade conditions throughout the world. One reason he advanced was the immense natural wealth of the country, that might be regarded as its reserve capital. Another reason was that Canada was a producer of the necessaries of life, not of luxuries, and that, as in time of distress, the producer of luxuries is the first to suffer, Canada would necessarily be the last sufferer from world-wide conditions of distress. So long as England continued to dominate the world's trade, Canada would possess an advantage over the United States in the British market.

Mr. Guthrie alluded to the McKinley tariff as a crisis in the commercial history of Canada, which had made Canada most self-reliant. He charged that the Administration of the day missed the opportunity which that crisis presented, and instead of finding markets for the people, waited simply for something to turn up. The Liberals had found the way by the policy of British preference. Formerly the idea prevailed that Canada should be a vast raw material emporium for the rest of the world, but that is an exploded theory now.

Canada should not forget the Victorian reign as that which gave Canada national birth, a reign which had seen her rise from a position of comparative colonial obscurity to that of an important part in the British Imperial system.

He hoped when the Duke of Cornwall came through Canada, as was expected, that a welcome would await him worthy of his exalted station and worthy of the son of the Sovereign and the grandson of the late Queen.

Mr. Guthrie spoke of the period of prosperity upon which Canada has entered, and thought the time had come when the Government should be asked to establish the dead meat trade on a firm basis.

A reference to the gallant way in which Canadian soldiers had acquitted themselves in South Africa made both sides of the House applaud.

The coming census, he said, would not only be a numbering of the people, but also a measure of the industrial growth of the country. Canadians could look forward with confidence to the census returns, and in the near future to being citizens of one of the foremost, most prosperous and intelligent nations in the world.

The conclusion of the speech brought a loud burst of applause.

Mr Marcil Seconded

M. Charles Marcil (Bonaventure) seconded the motion, speaking in French. He spoke of the gallantry of the Canadian soldiers in South Africa, and told how French, English and Irish-Canadians rushed together upon the enemy at Paardeberg. The French-Canadian, he said, was as loyal as any other Canadian. It was time to recognize this, time to do away with sectionalism in Canada. He thought it a good suggestion to take the coat of arms of the Canadian flag and replace it with the simple leaf, emblematic of Canadian unity. (Loud French-Canadian applause.)

From French to English.

Speaking in perfect English, Mr. Marcil said he had seconded the motion in the first place in the French tongue, in order to maintain the tradition of the House in that regard. But he liked to address a few words to the Speaker in the tongue of the great majority of the members of the House. He came from a constituency where one-third of the electors spoke English, a constituency which sent an English-speaking representative to the Quebec Legislature. Throughout Quebec he said there was general grief for the late Queen. The people remembered all she had done to promote better feeling among her subjects.

Questions of race or creed, which in the past have been raised in Canada, were but dissensions imported from Europe. It was time that Canada had done with European quarrels, though it was possible England and France might quarrel some time in the future. Mr. Marcil, speaking for the French-Canadian people, said: "France to us is no more than a remembrance." We have never had any other than this country. This is the country to which we are attached. It is the country in which our fathers sleep and where we ourselves will sleep eternally. (Loud applause from both sides of the House.)

Mr. Marcil: I hope to be able to tell my children when I am grown old that I served in the first Parliament of Canada, which was known as the Parliament of the peace-makers.

Mr. Borden's Address.

Mr. R. L. Borden: I have to congratulate heartily both the mover and the seconder of the address on the very excellent manner in which they have addressed the House. I was not able to follow as well as I could wish the portion of the seconder's address which was given in his own beautiful language, but if I may judge it by that which he spoke to us in my own language, I am sure I cannot compliment him too highly upon the sentiments which he expressed, and the manner in which he expressed them. So far as the race problem is concerned, I may say that in the province from which I come, the race question has been a matter of the past for years. There it is never even thought of. I trust it will become a thing of the past also in other parts of Canada, if as the hon. gentleman suggests, there is such a thing in Canada to-day, as a race problem.

After pleasantly criticising the matter of Mr. Guthrie's speech, Mr. Borden said: "I desire to add a word to what has been said about our citizen soldiers, who fought for the Empire beyond the sea. I think that Canada is bound to see that those who have been prevented by wounds or disease from taking an active part in life and earning their livelihood are not forgotten or neglected. (Conservative applause.) I regret that mention was not made of this matter in the address. I hope the omission occurred through inadvertence rather than anything else. That the Government do not propose to deal with this matter, I for one moment do not imagine."

He continued: "I also regret that no mention has been made of the present position of any negotiations outstanding with regard to the fast Atlantic service. That is a matter upon which both parties in the House are united. The Government undertook to deal with it in 1897."

Mr. Borden also asked for information as to the present position of the negotiations with the United States begun by a joint High Commission about two years ago. About a year and a half ago the commission ceased to operate, and the country was left completely in the dark as to whether the commission proposed to resume, or whether the negotiations had been absolutely abandoned. It was the right of the House and the country to know whether the negotiations would be resumed at an early date. The Government should say how the Alaska boundary question stands at the present time. That was reported to have been the question that stood in the way of the negotiations between the Commissioners of the United States and Great Britain. Was that question to be dealt with apart from the commission altogether? If so, the House should know it. Mr. Borden closed with a reference to the expected visit of the Duke of Cornwall.

Mr. Andrew Border wished to ask a particular question about the case of Blind Trooper Mulloy, who was born in Mr. Border's county.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier congratulated the mover and seconder of the address, and said Mr. Guthrie was a chip off the old block. Twenty-four years ago a Guthrie had moved the address on the floor of the House. In passing, he would also compliment the Conservative leader upon his reference to the settlement of the race question in the Province of Nova Scotia. In Nova Scotia no one ever inquired what a man's race or creed might be. Sir Wilfrid called it a "blessed province." In that respect, he said, Nova Scotia is an example to the other provinces of the Dominion.

The Canadian Soldiers.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier: "I am interrogated upon three or four points of information. First, what is the intention of the Government with regard to wounded and disabled soldiers? What is the intention in the particular case of Trooper Mulloy? I will tell my hon. friend, the leader of the Opposition, that the omission of any mention of this matter in the speech was not through inadvertence. The omission was well calculated. The reason is that we want to know what position we stand in at the present moment towards the Imperial authorities."

The Premier read the despatch of last October from the Imperial Government dealing with the subject, saying the colonial forces would be dealt with like the Imperial forces, and that good pensions would be allowed all by the Imperial Government. The question would arise, would the Imperial pension be adequate, according to the standard of the Canadian people? However, it was meet and proper that the Canadian Government should know how it stands in regard to the action intended to be taken by the Imperial authorities. As to whether the measure of the pension on the other side of the ocean will be adequate, my own view is that when found insufficient the Canadian Parliament will be found ready and willing to do what is possible and proper to do." (Cheers from both sides of the House.)

The Fast Atlantic Service.

"As to the fast Atlantic service, I am sorry to say I have no information to give to the House at this moment. The conditions are not favorable in England at this moment for securing the service at an early date. Probably, as the war is now drawing to an end, and normal conditions will be resumed, the time may be appropriate soon for dealing with that question.

The Commission Will Resume.

"As to the Joint High Commission, the condition is just the same to-day as last year. The commission has not been dissolved. It is still in existence. At the earliest possible moment we will resume negotiations. As my hon. friend knows, the conditions have not been favorable for the resumption of negotiations since the commission separated. There was a general election in this country and a general election in the United States. On account of the agitation attending the two elections it was impossible to expect a resumption of the negotiations. When the American Congress adjourns I have no reason to doubt we will be able to resume the negotiations and bring them to a satisfactory conclusion. When I say satisfactory conclusion, take, for instance, the Alaska boundary matter. The Americans have taken a course, and it is almost impossible to reconcile the two views. If I were not a member of the commission myself, I might be inclined to say more than I do. But, without presuming upon the commission or criticizing the position taken by the Americans, I say we can hope that if we cannot have an honorable settlement of that question, we can have an honorable compromise. Between two such countries as the United States and Canada, with Great Britain added, I am sure there is no difficulty that cannot be settled by an honorable compromise or arbitration. (Loud applause.) If we cannot ourselves agree we certainly can agree to call in a third party, a friendly power, and submit the difficulty to arbitration. In the meantime we have taken such steps as it was proper to take. We have left the boundary uncertain, undetermined. There may be a discovery of gold in that region, and, knowing the character of the miners, if we did not know exactly whether the discovery of the gold was in the territory of Canada or the United States grave complications might result. We have agreed upon a provisional boundary, which shall be the boundary until the main question has been settled. I believe in a short time we will have the report of the Joint High Commission, and for the present the two Governments have agreed to abide by the provisional boundary."

Mr. Borden: "Is the temporary boundary in the nature of a compromise? Is it between the two boundaries, or nearer one than the other?"

Sir Wilfrid Laurier: "It is in the nature of a compromise between the respective positions. The main idea which guided us was to place the boundary where it would be most convenient for trade by the Dalton Trail, and around the Lynn Canal."

The Preferential Tariff.

He would be glad, while they were on the subject, to know whether or not they were in favor of the preferential tariff. A hard campaign had been fought, and everything was discussed by these gentlemen, but when we came to the preferential tariff they were neither for nor against it.

Mr. W. F. Maclean—I am against a one-sided one.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier—I am glad there is one gentleman who has an opinion. I understand he had some aspirations for the leadership, and perhaps that is the reason why he did not get it.

The Premier said that Mr. Borden had not taken the House into his confidence as to his own views, and perhaps at some future time he would do so as frankly as Mr. Maclean, a stalwart of the stalwarts, who said: "I am against the preferential tariff." He asked how many others on that side were opposed to it.

Mr. Maclean—A one-sided preference.

Sir Wilfrid went on to quote a speech of Lord Disraeli on the sweep his Government made of the country, and compared that British Tory victory to the late Canadian Liberal victory.

After Sir Wilfrid had concluded, the address was unanimously adopted, and the House adjourned.

Senators Debate the Address.

Ottawa, Feb. 12.—The Senate sat all yesterday afternoon discussing the address in reply to the speech from the throne. Senator Ellis was cordially applauded on rising to move the address. Hon. Lyman Jones seconded the address. Sir Mackenzie Bowell reserved his remarks on the death of the sovereign for a future occasion. Speaking of the Canadian contingents, he congratulated Sir C. A. P. Pelletier on the bravery of his son, expressing deep sympathy with Hon. Mr. Borden on the loss of his only son, a gallant young soldier. Sir Mackenzie spoke at great length on the Pacific cable.

Hon. David Mills moved the adjournment of the debate.

The Senate will take up the message to the King to-day.

Ottawa, Feb. 12.—The debate on the address began and ended in less than two hours, and the estimates for 1901-02 were submitted to the House yesterday on what is practically the first business day of the session. This is a good start to make with the first session of the new Parliament, and it is to be hoped that it is a good augury for shorter sessions than have heretofore been held. With such a splendid beginning it looks as though prorogation might be hoped for about the beginning of May. The total sum asked for on account of ordinary expenditure is $44,102,323, which is net decrease of $2,001,258 when compared with the amount granted for the present fiscal year.

Ottawa, Feb. 14.—The annual meeting of the British Empire League in Canada, took place at 10.30 o'clock yesterday morning in the Railway Committee room of the House of Commons. The president, Lt.-Col. George T. Denison, occupied the chair, and there was a good attendance of members of the House and Senate.

Before the business was taken up Hon. R. R. Dobell moved a resolution placing on record the association's deep grief at the death of Queen Victoria and loyalty to King Edward VII. This was seconded by Dr. Peter Macdonald, the Deputy Speaker, and adopted.

Col. Denison read a letter of regret at inability to attend from Hon. G. W. Ross, Premier of Ontario, in which he advocated that the colonies should enter into a federation of trade between themselves and the United Kingdom as against the world.

Mr. Ross was not prepared to endorse the placing of a small tariff on imports by the colonies, as a nucleus for Imperial defence, as he had not given this phase of preferential trade sufficient consideration.

Sir Hibbert Tupper moved a resolution "That this British Empire League is in favor of an Imperial Consultative Council, and suggests that a conference be called in London at an early date to take up and discuss the questions of Imperial defence, Imperial preferential trade, Imperial cables, uniform insolvency law, and such other subjects as may be agreed upon."

Dr. B. Russell seconded it, and it was unanimously adopted.

Mr. R. L. Borden, the Opposition leader, moved a resolution in favor of the formation of a Royal navy reserve amongst our seafaring men. Mr. Aulay Morrison, M. P., seconded the motion, which was carried.

A letter was read from Sir Sandford Fleming, strongly endorsing the Pacific cable scheme and urging the removal of the monopolistic tax upon free intercourse by cable between every part of the British Empire. It was followed by the moving of a resolution by Sir Mackenzie Bowell strongly reaffirming the motion passed at the last annual meeting respecting State-owned cables, and urging the Executive Committee to spare no effort to impress the importance of the project upon the several Governments concerned.

Sir Mackenzie Bowell warmly endorsed the Pacific cable, which, he said, should be constructed exclusively within British territory. Sir Mackenzie charged that the enormous influence exercised by the Eastern Telegraph Company had successfully blockaded the scheme for a long time and the same sinister influences were still at work trying to delay its accomplishment. "I think it would be to the advantage of Canada to take possession of the telegraph lines in this country as well as the telephone," said the speaker, amidst a chorus of hear, hears. "England has done that, and the Australian colonies own not only the telegraphs, but the railways. I am sure, however, that State ownership of railways is a very great advantage."

Mr. T. B. Flint seconded the resolution. The resolution was unanimously concurred in.

A resolution was unanimously adopted on the motion of Mr. H. M. Mowat, seconded by Sir Charles H. Tupper, urging that the present is a fitting time for the name of Canada to be associated with the other domains already mentioned in the title of His Majesty the King, and asking for the endeavors of the league to bring it about.

The election of officers resulted in the re-election of Lieut.-Col. Geo. T. Denison as President for the ensuing year. Hon. A. G. Jones was elected Vice-President for Nova Scotia, and Sir Henri Joly Vice-President for British Columbia.

An exhaustive list of names was added to the Council.

The meeting concluded with three cheers for the King.

WILL BANKRUPT MANITOBA.

Sir W. C. Van Horne's Opinion of Roblin's Railway Deal.

Toronto, Feb. 16.—Sir William Van Horne stopped a few minutes at the Union Station, in transit from an Ottawa G. T. R. to his private C. P. R. car, en route to Chicago yesterday.

Asked as to his opinion of Premier's Roblin's deal with Mackenzie & Mann, he said: "The bargain will bankrupt the Province; that's my opinion of it. Understand, it makes no difference to the Canadian Pacific. A strong corporation like the Southern Pacific would be a rival more to be feared than the prospective operators of the road. We will be affected in this way, however. If the Province goes bankrupt, it will be a blow at the road."

"What about the railway situation in British Columbia?" was asked.

"Can any rational Canadian have other than one opinion on the problem there? When a man has a few good things in this world, he generally tries to hang on to them, doesn't he? He doesn't look around for strangers to give them away to."

LINDSAY, FRIDAY, FEB. 22nd, '01

THE ONTARIO HOUSE

Passes a Resolution of Condolence to His Majesty the King.

EULOGIES OF THE LATE QUEEN.

Text of the Address of Condolence—Eloquent Speeches by the Premier and Mr. Whitney—Hon. Mr. Ross' Peroration—Brilliant and Touching Oratory—Fearly Replete of a King Edward.

Toronto, Feb. 13.—On the opening of the Legislature yesterday, Premier Ross' eloquent words received the life of our late sovereign lady, Queen Victoria, and after conveying her influence upon her own and the country of other countries, the mover of the address to His Majesty exclaimed

"What a noble reign! Can the imagination supply anything to intensify the reality? A girl Queen at 18 years of age takes up the sceptre of royalty and the doubts and fears of many of her subjects, and at the age of four score years lays it down amid the sighs and tears of 400,000,000 subjects. A girl Queen ascends the throne at 18 years of age to be the plaything of courtiers and political intriguers. Before 21 it was expected. At the close of her career it was found that in the presence of the ablest statesman her judgment was not easily shaken nor frequently often at fault. Worthy was she to receive the reverence of her people and the homage of the world. Hands and triumphs that bound hands could erect would be too small as a memorial of her life no mausoleum, no matter how costly or how adorned, would worthily retain her ashes. With addressed hands we draw the curtain as we exclaim 'Rest of women and mother of sovereigns, the reign is over, but the beauty of thy womanhood and the majesty of thy power will never pass away. The sceptre of royalty may have fallen from thy hand, but to the end of time thy spirit shall speak to the imagination and inspiration and glory of thy reign. British history as it unfolds, shall hail thee, and British soil more sacred because it holds thy mortal remains, but no more, all that is mortal of the Queen her subjects love so well and whom all the nations revered for the noble virtues which adorn her blameless life.

"To King Edward, who, by hereditary right, ascends the throne of his ancestors, we offer condolence. Our loss is great, but his is greater. He bears an honored name and succeeds to a degree of sovereignty and dominion—God Save the King. Long live King Edward, may his reign add to the lustre of the throne of his ancestors and to the security of the throne, bring prosperity to his dominions, respects and peace to the nation, and a larger measure of freedom and religious liberty to the whole world.

Mr. Whitney's Eulogy.

Mr. Whitney in seconding the motion, said that, for reasons given by his hon. friend, it was difficult to deal with a subject so vast and so far-reaching as the effect of the life and acts of Queen Victoria. Her influence, we are all glad to know and feel, is widespread, was always exerted for good. By force of character she had exercised a far greater power and influence than any absolute monarch. By its high quality, religious growers had been brought under the spell of her influence. It was too near the Victorian era to be able to give a full and complete conception of the influence exerted by the life and work of Queen Victoria. It has been said that it was not her own Empire by which she was loved and revered, but that a world was revered and mourning with only one dissenting voice, and that where sun reigns supreme, on a municipal throne. While we cannot estimate the value to humanity of her life we can comfort ourselves with the conclusion that while many other benefactors of humanity have risen in past eras, from no single one human being has so much good gone out as from the great Queen Monarch, whose loss we mourn."

"We greet King Edward," Mr. Whitney proceeded, "offering him our condolence. We have no fear for the future. He is a man of great experience and great tact. All signs point to his being a wise and generous reign. This he showed by his declaration, in nobly Anglo-Saxon, that he would follow in the steps of his mother so long as breath remained in his body. We cannot forget the gentle lady, the present Queen of Great Britain and Ireland, whose popularity was only second to that of the Queen. We hail His Majesty as the descendant of Britain and Alfred, Norman and Saxon, of the houses of Stuart and Tudor, Hanover and Guelph, and, figuratively, placing his hands in his, with confidence, We say, God save our Lord the King."

The motion, as contained in the following resolution, was read by the Speaker, the members standing, and unanimously adopted.

Resolution of Condolence.

"Most Gracious and Most Excellent Majesty—Most Gracious Sovereign—We, Your Majesty's most loyal and dutiful subjects, the Legislative Assembly of the Province of Ontario, in Parliament assembled, beg leave to approach Your Majesty for the purpose of tendering the deep sorrow and sympathy felt by Your Majesty's loyal subjects in the Province of Ontario, with Your Majesty, with our gracious Queen Alexandra, and with Their Royal Highnesses George, Duke of Cornwall and York, and Prince of Cornwall and York, and the other members of the Royal Family, in the great loss which Your Majesty has sustained by your mother, the late Queen Victoria, of blessed memory, and to express our sincerest condolence with you and them in your grief. We, Your Majesty's loyal subjects, feel, with Your Majesty and Your Family, but by your subjects throughout the British Empire. In referring to Your Majesty our gracious sympathy, we cannot but recall the fact that under the wise measures for the extension of the constitutional liberties of the Empire, the government of our national affairs was assented to by Her Majesty's name, and, while Your Majesty is governed, as we believe it is, according to the best principles of the British constitution, and thus enjoys the sentiments advantages of responsible government, it is owing largely to the far-sighted and beneficent statesmanship of Her Majesty, Your Grandmother, of the United Kingdom, and to which her late Majesty gave her assent.

"Your Majesty will, we sincerely trust, accept our condolence and sympathy at this great sorrow, to have lived under the Queen Victoria's beneficent rule, and therefore, feeling the more deeply the greatness of your bereavement, we pray that Your Majesty's God may grant that He may send Your Majesty comfort in your sorrow. We trust, under the blessing of Your present sovereign, Your Majesty may, with some measure, derive from the knowledge that you have the deepest sympathy of Your loyal subjects throughout this Province, and attbe we feel that it is hard for Your Majesty, yet we, Your Majesty's subjects from the deep sorrow which has come upon you, yet we trust, nevertheless, proud of the victory to you the joy and satisfaction, that Your Majesty's mother, Your Majesty's sovereign, has left the legacy of your ancestors, as well as Kin by right of your birth, and deeper loyalty to your person and Your Throne, and to express our fervent hope that Your Majesty's reign will be marked by the same wise and generous statesmanship, fostering and to promote the general happiness and prosperity of your people.

On motion of the same mover and seconder, the speaker and mover were ordered to be transmitted to His Majesty through the proper channels.

The striking and impressive committees were agreed to

The usual formalities having been read from His House the House adjourned. Mr. Ross was appointed Minister of Works and Mines, Mr. Charlton was elected by a majority vote of 4420.000 was agreed to.

The item having been adopted by the House, it adjourned until the afternoon.

IS YET IN THE FUTURE

Province Cannot Take the Prohibition Leap in the Dark.

WILL GO ON PERFECTING LAW.

Deputation From the Dominion Alliance and Other Prohibitory Bodies Asked the Government for Prohibition in Ontario—The Premier's Answer—The Powers of the Province Not Clear.

Toronto, Feb. 14.—The prohibition deputation which waited on the Government nearly filled the large reception room at the Parliament Buildings yesterday. It was received by Premier Ross, Messrs Gibson, Tarcovett, Davis, Latchford and Stratton. It included representatives of all the temperance societies, about a dozen officers of the Women's Christian Temperance Union and a number of ministers of various denominations.

T. G. J. Macaren, K. C., introduced the deputation, which, he said, represented a very large convention of temperance people, held in this city some months ago.

Rev. W. A. Mackay, D. D., of Woodstock, president of the Ontario Alliance, said The alliance includes the I. O. G. T., R. T. of T., W. C. T. U., Canadian Temperance League, and of the churches are represented in it by regularly appointed delegates, which includes among its most honored officials your yourself, Mr. Premier. Our aim is the abolition of the liquor traffic. We are strong that it is a matter of dispute how far the province may go. We have the opinion of the Hon. David Mills that the province can prohibit absolutely. What we ask is the largest measure of prohibition in your power. Sir Oliver Mowat's opinion was not been forgotten, and we were assured by Your predecessor that this was a temperance Government, which would continue to advance forward.

They asked for provincial prohibition because they wished Ontario to take a place in the front rank, which it was entitled to by its morality and intelligence. There should be no lagging and no need of urging. In the new statutes, Ontario had spoken overwhelmingly in favor of prohibition the bar-rooms were useless and a nuisance. They should be abolished. He appealed to Premier Ross as a Christian patriotism and convictions above partisan, and, if in consequence his Government should fall, it would be said of him as of another statesman, "He has lost his office, but has saved his country."

Secretary F. S. Spence, Rev. Dr. Sutherland and Mrs. A. O. Rutherford, president of the W. C. T. U., also spoke, urging the deputation.

Premier Ross Replies.

Premier Ross said the newspaper reports that the coming session of house law would be retrogressive were outside by without foundation. The policy of the Government had been one of progress from session to session. The issues in regard to which it was the more difficult to enforce, but the Government was making a strong effort to see that it was enforced. Some years ago, his daughter, Mr. Stratton, had removed some license in consequence of which had given satisfaction. Some years ago, when they had greater confidence had been appointed. But notwithstanding all the difficulties, they believed the law was generally well enforced. The Rev. Dr. MacKay was mistaken in thinking there had been an increase in the number of licenses. The fact that there was a greater number of convictions for law violations and of committals for drunkenness went to show that the law was effective.

Not all Liberals or Conservatives were temperance men, but the temperance men could not be looked for in any one party. Perhaps, he said, he was not a good enough temperance man for Rev. Dr. MacKay. Hugh John Macdonald had stated that he was a temperance man and could not be depended on for political purposes.

Rev. Dr. MacKay. They supported his Government.

Premier Ross answered: "There has only been a mere change of Premiers since then." Rev. Dr. MacKay could reply, the Premier proceeded, that he was sure that the Government must do, no matter what the consequence, what is our duty. That is the great question. How far does our power allow us to go? We don't know. Perhaps you read the Privy Council's decision one way, and others another. We must do what we think to do." His predecessors had gone as far as they could. He shared "Though Manitoba, and Prince Edward Island had passed such laws, the Attorney-General of Manitoba was asking the courts to decide questions respecting the Manitoba enactment. The Manitoba law was in force. He had taken up by Mr. Atkins, a prohibitionist. And a prohibitionist Premier had the same as theirs. If we enacted such a law and Manitoba and we are with uncertainty, what would be the outcome? It was too adverse as to pass a prohibitory law. We must leave it all in doubt? The McCarthy Act caused great loss to manufacturers, and the license law for two years. If we passed a law beyond our rights, or assumed rights, would be in the courts for a year or two.

The Government's position was that, legislation should be confined to the powers possessed by the Legislature, and when the decks are clear for action, we will proceed to take such action as may appear proper.

There is no doubt a strong prohibition sentiment, but it is at times dormant. What was your doing for the enforcement of the Scott Act?

Rev. Dr. MacKay. Paying over taxes to pay the officers to enforce the act.

Premier Ross repeated the declaration that temperance sentiment was at that time a dormant. What he was the question. Would it be dormant if you get such a law? He would be glad when the Government, he did not care what Government, should get such a law, but would the temperance sentiment be arrayed to enforce it? At present the Government considered that it would be a leap in the dark. It would be time enough to refer to legislation when all doubts are removed. Until then the license law should be made as effective as possible.

Rev. Dr. Carman asked: "How long do you expect the Manitoba battle will have to stew?"

Premier Ross: "It may have to stew for a year or two."

Rev. Dr. Carman expressed a view that something could and should be done in the meantime.

In reply to a question as to what Premier Ross thought his views on Manitoba judgment was finally given as follows: "I shall be guided by it as far as our constitutional powers warrant."

BY KING IN PERSON.

Brilliant Opening of First Parliament of Edward's Reign.

THE DUKE OF CORNWALL'S VISIT

Parliament Opened With Old-Time splendor—King and Queen Greeted With Hearty Manifestations of Loyalty—The King's Speech Contains Salisbury Says Britain's Enemies Must be Defeated.

London, Feb. 15.—The first Parliament of the reign of King Edward VII. was opened yesterday afternoon by the King in person. His Majesty was accompanied by Queen Alexandra, the Duke of York and Cornwall, the Duke of Connaught and many others of the royal family.

The ceremony was unlike any of the kind occurred in 1861, when Queen Victoria opened Parliament, accompanied by the Prince Consort, and since the death of the latter nothing equal to yesterday's pomp has been witnessed in London in connection with the opening of the Legislature. Not since the wedding of the then Prince of Wales with Princess Alexandra has the gorgeous state coach been seen in London, and in the streets of the capital. In this coach the King and Queen drove from Buckingham Palace to the Palace of Westminster.

When the six-horse coach carrying the sovereign appeared, the Horse Guards mounted bore a banner with "God Save the King," the people uncovered and cheered lustily out of the archway in the centre of the palace, and the King bowed right and left in acknowledgment. The Horse Guards took up position in front and behind the state coach. The loyalty of the crowd were the members of the Strathcona's Horse (Canadian volunteers just returned from South Africa) who occupied seats on the horse brakes, carrying the colors and wearing informal slouch hats and khaki uniforms, were aligned in front of the palace and marched to the Horse Guards about a mile distance from the palace, where they were dismissed, the King saluting as they passed. The King saluted them most graciously, and the people cheered them repeatedly.

The King's Speech.

"My Lords and Gentlemen:

"I address you for the first time at a moment when my heart is full, when the whole country is mourning, when the world is, we have so recently sustained, and which has been in a peculiar severity on myself. My beloved mother, the Queen, whose glorious reign has set an example before us, which we can only pray we should be. It is my earnest desire to follow in her footsteps.

"Amid this public and private grief it is a great comfort to me to be able to assure you that my relations with the other powers continue friendly. The South African war has not yet entirely terminated, but the capitals of the enemy and the main lines of communication are in my possession. I have confidence that the end, which will, I trust, enable my troops to deal effectually with the forces by which they are still opposed.

"I greatly regret the loss of life and expenditure of treasure, but the fruitless guerilla warfare maintained by Boers compelled us to remove territories of the two republics. Their continued existence is not to be desired in their own interests, as under it a state place it will be impossible for me to establish in these territories the institutions which will secure the equal rights of all the white inhabitants and protection and justice for the native inhabitants.

"The capture of Pekin by the allied forces, with large reliance with those who were besieged in the Legations, between which my Indian troops and my naval forces largely contributed, have been removed by the submission of the Chinese Government to the demands insisted on by the powers. Negotiations are proceeding regarding the manner in which compliance with those demands is to be effected.

"The establishment of an Australian Commonwealth was proclaimed at Sydney, January 1, with many manifestations of popular enthusiasm and rejoicings. My deeply-beloved daughter-in-law, and I accorded to the visit of the Duke of Cornwall and York to open the first Parliament of the new commonwealth in her name. My sympathies from my son, especially at such a moment, cannot be otherwise than deeply painful, but I have sacrificed my feelings to her late Majesty's wishes, and as evidence of my interest, as well as of my own, I am all that concerns the welfare of my subjects beyond the seas, I have decided that the visit to Australia shall not be abandoned, and shall be extended to New Zealand and the Dominion of Canada.

"The prolongation of the hostilities in South Africa has led me to make further call upon the patriotism and devotion of Canada and Australasia. I trust that my request has met with a generous response, and large additional contingents from those colonies will embark for the seat of war at an early date.

"The expedition organized for the suppression of the rebellion in Sierra Leone, which, and led by British officers, have succeeded in putting a stubborn resistance of the most warlike of West African tribes, the exceptional difficulties of the climate and season of the year in which the operations were conducted. The expense of the expedition, which was besieged by the enemy, has been relieved after a prolonged and gallant defence. The prolongation of the war, announced, and the chief impediment to the progress of the development of this rich portion of my West African possessions, which I trust, has been finally removed.

"The suffering and mortality caused by the prolonged drought in a large portion of my Indian Empire have been considerably relieved by seasonable rainfall, but I regret, to be informed that the Bombay Presidency is distress of a serious character, and the measures which my officers are using every endeavor to mitigate.

"Gentlemen of the House of Commons:

"The estimates for the year will be laid before you. Every care has been taken to limit that amount, but the naval and military requirements of the country, and especially the military consequent upon the South African war, have involved an inevitable increase.

"The demise of the Crown renders it necessary that a new Parliament should be made for the civil list. I have confidence in your disposal these hereditary revenues, which I have placed in my predecessor, and I have commanded that the papers necessary for a full consideration of the subject shall be laid before you.

"My Lord and Gentlemen:

"Certain changes have been made in the constitution of the judicial committee of the Privy Council, by which the ultimate recourse to it which has resulted from the expansion of the Empire during the last two generations.

"Legislation will be proposed very shortly for the amendment of the law relating to trade unions.

"Legislation has been prepared, and, if, at the time of its introduction, proves to be adequate, it will be laid before you, for the purpose of regulating the conditions of employment in occupying tenants in Ireland; for regulating and consolidating the factory and workshops acts; for the further administration of the law respecting the relief of destitution; for public health acts in regard to water supply, and the prevention of drunkenness in licensed houses and public houses, and for amending the law of literary copyright.

"I pray that Almighty God may continue to guide you in your deliberations, and that He may bless them to your advantage."

Return to Buckingham.

At the conclusion of the reading His Majesty turned to the Queen, helped her to rise, and led her out of the chamber, preceded by the procession through the royal gallery again and into the robing room, whence, within a few minutes, they emerged to enter the state carriages and drove away amid a tumult of cheers to Buckingham Palace.

HOUSE OF LORDS.

Lord Salisbury Says War Policy Is Unchanged and That the Boers Will Be Conquered.

London, Feb. 15.—The House of Lords yesterday, after the formal opening of Parliament, proceeded to business. The Lord Chancellor read the King's speech and the Marquis of Waterford moved and seconded the address in reply. Lord Manners seconded the address.

Lord Kimberley, the Liberal leader, after preliminaries said the present conditions in South Africa filled him with apprehension. The Government of the Empire was in fool's paradise. Unless they enabled General Kitchener to speedily terminate the war, the situation could scarcely be dangerous. If the Government attempted to put the whole military system on a more satisfactory basis they would receive every support from the Liberals.

Lord Salisbury, after references to Kitchener, said the Government was the mover and seconder, and the Government there. Was nothing unusual in the length of the campaign. He referred Lord Kimberley to history, and then said he would be glad to see Lord Kimberley repudiate all idea of asking the Government to alter its conduct towards the Boers or alter the business of the Government. He was in the strongest and most powerful position that the Government ever occupied. The Government to adopt action short of what was implied in carrying the operations to a successful issue. If the Government to adopt action short of portion of their independence it would involve incessant, continuous warfare. Unless the Boers surrendered and conquerors of these territories, there was no hope of holding peace. What the country should do with the power when obtained, was another question. But it was perfectly obvious that the purpose to which the enemy would put the power they would then would be to accumulate new forces and new means, to await a fitting occasion for a new attack. The Government had exhausted her efforts it would be an avoidable loss to the world but her frontier could be invaded in the most insulting manner and that the Empire was powerless to effectively resist it.

"If Lord Kimberley could impose his conditions he his peace, morally, it would be a great advantage to the Empire; it would be a great blessing to an end the insane resistance which was bringing desolation and misery to the two territories.

The Croup

Any of the children ever have it? Then you will never forget it, will you? Don't let it go until midnight again, but begin treatment during the evening, when that dry, hollow, barking cough first begins.

Get out your Vapo-Cresolene (for you surely keep this in the house), put some Cresolene in the vaporizer, light the lamp beneath, and let the child breathe-in the quieting, soothing, healing vapor. There will be no croup that night. If it's midnight, and the croup is on, inhaling the vapor will break the spasm and bring prompt relief.

For asthma, bronchitis, sore throat, coughs and colds, it is a prompt and pleasant cure, while for whooping-cough it is a perfect specific. Your doctor knows, ask him about it.

Vapo-Cresolene.

CURES WHILE YOU SLEEP

"The appearance is simple, inexpensive, and I believe, unequaled in the treatment of whooping-cough. The vapor is soothing and healing to the inflamed mucous membrane, relieving the irritation and the desire to cough in bronchitis. I earnestly recommend it."

JOHN MERRITT, M.D., of Brooklyn, in the N. Y. Medical Record.

Vapo-Cresolene is sold by druggists everywhere. The Vaporizer and Lamp, which should last a life time, and a bottle of Cresolene complete, is sent anywhere on receipt of price, $1.50. GLENARM.

(From Our Own Correspondent)

The recent severe storm has completely blocked our east and west roads, and traffic was suspended for a few days.

The alternative mild and cold spells have given rise to much sickness in the form of colds and la grippe.

The time of the year has arrived when the changes caused by the buying and renting farms are being made. Mr. John Brownlee moves to his farm at Cambray, Mr. D. Ferguson and family move to Mr. Brownlee's vacated house, and Mr. Norman Ferguson and family take up the house vacated by Mr. Ferguson, Mr. Angus Jamieson goes on the farm on the 1st first, Mariposa, near Woodville; Mr. S. Bagshaw moves to Brendanum farm near Cambray, and Mr. Hamill, of Lorneville, moves to Mr. Bagshaw's farm at Islay.

The coming season promises to be a busy one for carpenters and stonemasons, judging from the improvements contemplated during the summer. Mr. McKay will erect a large barn, capable of housing of sheep and pigs. Mr. McKechnie intends building a driving shed with stone foundation underneath. Mr. Alex. Murchison intends to have a well already commenced under the Graham farm barn. Mr. J. Brethour intends to have a well for the erection of an addition to his residence in the summer. Mr. Ronald McEnzyen will erect a large brick barn. He will also have to build this summer.

Just a word about this organ business. At the annual meeting of the congregation the purchase of an organ for church was approved of by those present. A committee was appointed to look into the matter, and they could do anything a vote of meeting, by a majority of those present, or any man. The committee were again instructed to proceed and if they got went lovely until the session again opened and then looked the way just because they thought the price too great. Now we will be the church and give to lowest tenderer, the cheapest furnace was put in, and now they want a cheap organ. It is about time people learned by experience and not at the matter of dollars and cents always stand as a first consideration. If it is a bargain they want, why we can get a second-hand organ at a bargain and freight and carting will be saved. It is high time we should wake up and get the church out of the rut we have been in.

Trotter's Jubilee, who has been conducting a singing class at Hartley, closes up his term by giving a concert on Friday night, Feb. 22nd. The class will be assisted by outside talent, and the affair promises to be a success.

The ladies served the supper, and it was the boards for a time in the village, and it was said that the Kirkcudbrightshire under the leadership of Mr. Jas. Gibson, of Eldon, will be prorogatulated on this their first effort to give an evening's entertainment.

The directorate of the Fenelon Falls Skating Rink Association will give a grand carnival on Wednesday evening, Feb. 27th. The decoration of the rink is being now provided and a full house is expected.

Fenelon Falls is unusually rich this year in its amusements. Last Monday done was never better than at the Opera House, when Miss McDougall, Brandon & Austin, Frank Sheffield, and Clement Chenery, assisted by George Martin, all give employment to a crowded house, but there is no reason why we should not have the same kind of entertainment right here when we consider the location, the work and material on hand, which are patent to anyone knowing the ability of the boys engaged in carrying in this matter? Two years ago Mr. Jas. Gibson and the municipal business was going to undergo a change, and it was thought by some concerned. One year ago at the nominating meeting it was felt we had good prospects of the English fund coming from Manchester, but it is coming out here, and at the last nominating meeting the feeling of the people was very in an easy chair, prospects are good for a change in the near future, before us, but now there is not a word about it in the Scotsville, Newmarket and dozens of other papers are doing their greatest efforts to get manufacturers to come to their towns and getting them, too—our country is taking no viable action now. We do not demonstrate to our satisfaction that they were in earnest when they were speaking for voteseand using the "work for the idiots" cry. If they do not do this the ratepayers will believe that they have been hamboogled. However, with a good government, good water and good water on all sides, we are a very prosperous community, and we think that times should not relieve men who above them selves into positions of trust from doing their duty, and thus prevent the manifestation of their desire to carry out their promises and further the interests of the municipality that they were elected for. We look for things from the council, and trust that next January we will see not only with the old annual bulletin of great prospects, with nothing realized.

DEATH OF WILLIAM CLUXTON.

The Name of the Deceased will Always be Associated with the Early History of Peterborough.

(Peterboro Examiner, Saturday.)

It is with most profound regret that this announcement will be received of the death, at noon to-day, of Mr. William Cluxton, one of the pioneer business men of the Peterboro district, and one whose name has always been associated with deeds of philanthropy and charity.

William Cluxton was one of Peterborough's oldest residents. He was born March 31st, 1819, in Dundalk, County Louth, Ireland. He emigrated to Peterborough, at an early age and established a situation with Hall & Chambers grocery and liquor establishment on Charlotte-st. In 1835 he entered the firm of Chambers of John B. Brown, and subsequently became manager of the business, which was called "The Yellow Store," on Aylmer-st. In 1856 he left Peterboro' to take charge of a store at Port Hope belonging to the firm of Chambers & Brown, and returned in a month and took charge of a branch business which Mr. Crawford had established here. So successful was his management of this business that at the expiration of three years he became the sole buyer of all of Mr. Crawford's establishments. On his death, he was appointed by the trustees to wind up the business, which he did in six months to the satisfaction of all concerned. In 1842 Mr. Cluxton opened a stock of general goods and established a Tinsmith's business on himself. From that year forward his success was phenomenal.

In 1872, having acquired a considerable fortune, he retired from the grocery business, and disposed of his Peterboro establishment to his two sons and brother. He however continued in the grain, cheese and produce trade, in which he was largely concerned. For many years he moved the principal part of the grain along the line of railway from Lindsay to the lake front, his transactions amounting to half a million dollars annually. In 1874 Mr. Cluxton became manager of the Peterboro branch of the Canadian Pacific Railway, a position which he resigned after eight years of faithful service. In 1862, accompanied by his wife and a portion of his family, he visited Europe.

Mr. Cluxton has held many important public offices. He was President of the Midland Railway Company, President of the Marmora Mining Company, President of the Belleville Lake Cemetery Company, President of the Peterboro and Port Hope Gravel Road Company, President of the Lake Huron and Michigan Railway Company, and President of the Peterboro Water-Works Company. He was a magistrate of many years standing, and was a member of the militia. He was both the town and county councils, and represented the town in the Parliament of Canada in the Reform interest.

The following children survive: Mrs. Angel, Harriston; Pa.; William Cluxton, one of the pioneer business men of the Peterboro district, and one whose name has always been associated with deeds of philanthropy and charity.
